Lewis Likely To Call Strike Today at UMW Parley

Policy Committee To Decide Whether To Walk Out or Take Fight to WLB

By Ben W. Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

With 13,500 coal miners already reported idle as a result of strikes scattered throughout the soft coal fields, the War Labor Board yesterday appealed to the patriotism of United Mine Worker President John L. Lewis and 450,000 miners and asked that the strikers return to work and make use of the board's established machinery to settle the present dispute with the coal operators.

Lewis will meet with the U. M. W. policy committee in New York today to decide this question—whether to call a general coal strike or submit demands for higher wages to the War Labor Board, which Lewis has denounced as a "packed court against labor."

Meanwhile, though snubbed a second time by Lewis who failed to submit recommendations for the labor membership of the three-man tripartite panel which is to hear the coal wage dispute, the WLB went ahead to appoint the panel, thus starting work on the case.

First snub occurred Saturday when Lewis failed to answer a WLB summons to appear at a preliminary procedural hearing on the case.

The panel will have the job of investigating the facts of the case and submitting a report with recommendations to the full board, which has been empowered by the President to "finally determine" all labor disputes.

Panel Membership

The panel as announced by the board is as follows:

For the public: Morris L. Cooke, Philadelphia management engineer, who served as administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration from 1935 to 1937, acted as first chairman of the emergency Shipbuilding Stabilization Committee, and more recently assisted in the settlement of the Mexican oil claims dispute as the "expert" for the United States.

For industry: Walter White, assistant to the chairman of the Business Advisory Council of the Department of Commerce. He has served as a management mediator for the War Labor Board and served on the panel which made a wage determination for the rubber processing industry.

For labor: David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, one of the four operating railroad brotherhoods. He is a former chairman of the Railroad Labor Executives Association, and has represented railroad labor on the President's "labor cabinet," the so-called Labor Victory Board. His home is in Cleveland, Ohio.

The panel may hold an organization meeting today, and is scheduled to hold a first meeting with the parties tomorrow.

Indications that Lewis might use the policy committee meeting today as a possible forum for the announcement of a general soft-coal strike increased as District 20 of the U. M. W. at Birmingham notified the Alabama coal operators negotiating committee that it was terminating, in five days, the temporary agreement under which approximately 22,000 Alabama miners are working.

Total of 13,500 Out

A similar notification went to the Illinois operators Saturday.

The Associated Press reported ten mines down in Pennsylvania, two down in Kentucky, and seven in Alabama. The Kentucky and Pennsylvania mines were reported to have employed 9500 workers with the Alabama mines employing

Materials Ban Blamed

Rooming-House Safety Drive Recorded as a 'False Alarm'

By Roger Young
Post Staff Writer

The Commissioners' short campaign to force rooming and boarding house operators to comply with fire safety regulations quietly collapsed yesterday, just at the start of the week that promised to produce some action.

Blaming WPB restrictions on materials for the necessary fire escapes, the Commissioners said that after all there would be no prosecutions for operating rooming and apartment houses without a license if the license had been denied because of failure to have proper fire safety appliances.

Although the Commissioners reached their decision to throw in the sponge Saturday, police licensing officers busied themselves yesterday completing the survey of violators to choose the six who, by the previous arrangement, were to be prosecuted as test cases. And fire marshal inspectors were still waiting for reports from the Building Inspectors Office on what premises should be rechecked.

Chairman Pat McCarran of the Senate District Committee said last night that he had no answer for the Commissioners' action except to remind them that they were there to enforce the law and that "if lives are lost by reason of failure to enforce the law, the result is plain."

"It is the duty of public officials to enforce the law. If the law is unreasonable, they should apply to the legislative body for a new one. The Commissioners have not done that, so we may assume that the law is a reasonable one. The congressional committees cannot enforce the law; that is up to the Commissioners," McCarran said.

As to the WPB decision not to give fire escapes as freely as previously had been indicated, McCarran said: "Does that mean that the WPB is closing its eyes to the possibility of disaster? Or will they recognize the possibilities, and after disaster occurs say 'we're so sorry?'"

"The Commissioners have directed the Regulations Committee to consider in the light of the limitations imposed by the War Production Board on the procuring of certain materials, the revision of the existing fire safety appliance in existing buildings converted to use as apartment houses, lodging, rooming or boarding houses," was the statement the Commissioners gave the press.

"For the time being and until further notice, the Commissioners

Turning Out More Vessels Than Rest Of World Combined, Admiral Declares

By the Associated Press

New York, April 26.—Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, U. S. N., retired, chairman of the United States Maritime Commission, said today that American shipyards, turning out five vessels each 24 hours, "are building more ships than all the rest of the world combined."

Admiral Land spoke at the presentation of the Maritime Commission "M" award, the victory fleet flag and employes' merit badges at the Todd Erie Basin Dry Docks, Inc., Brooklyn division of the Todd Shipyards Corp.

"The shipyards of the Nation will build nearly 19 million deadweight tons of new vessels this year," the admiral said. "We have capacity to build 20 million tons a year so long as the need exists. We are confident that the repair industry will keep in full stride with builders."

Countering Hitler's Boast

Admiral Land said American shipbuilding activity was meeting "Hitler's boast that the program announced for American shipbuilders was 'impossible' and 'fantastic,'" and also the submarine threat.

Hitler his answer more than two-fold," Land said. "They are building more than twice as many ships as the Nazi warlord said could not be built. The Nazi naval chiefs overlooked the fact that in addition to our greatly increased ship production we took over, in accordance with an act of Congress, about one million tons of ships interned in our ports.

Calls Nazi Claim "Fanciful"

"They overlooked, too, the further fact that through efforts of such organizations as yours we have salvaged, repaired and reinstated a considerable tonnage that was considered economically unavailable in peace time."

Land called the Nazi claim of sinking more than 30 million tons of United Nations ships "fanciful and exaggerated."

Moscow, April 26 (AP).—Soviet Russia has broken off diplomatic relations with the Polish Government in Exile, accusing it of cooperating with Germany in charging that the Soviet Union was responsible for the deaths of 10,000 Polish officers, it was announced officially today.

Tass, the Russian official news agency, said Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov handed the Polish ambassador, Tadeusz Romer, a note here yesterday, denouncing the Polish government and charging it with helping the Germans carry out a "hostile campaign" against Russia in connection with Germany's accusation that the Russians murdered the Polish officers near Smolensk.

Territory Involved

Molotov's note, which said the recent behavior of the Polish Government violated "all regulations and standards of relations between two allied states," charged flatly that the Germans had killed the Polish officers.

The territorial question also was involved. The note charged that the Poles, by falling in line with Nazi propaganda, hoped to gain some territorial concessions in Russia.

Helmet Saved McNair's Life; Shell Splinter Missed Brain

By the Associated Press

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, April 26.—Lieut. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, who was wounded last Friday at the Tunisian front, had to take a three-hour jeep ride to a hospital with a shell splinter lodged only a quarter of an inch from his brain, it was disclosed today.

The commanding general of all United States ground forces was watching American troops advance in the northern sector against German forces defending the approaches to Mateur when an Axis shell exploded near his forward observation post.

Fragments of the shell ripped into his body and struck his head. One of them pierced his helmet, but lacked sufficient force to reach the brain. The steel headgear was credited officially today with saving the general's life.

Although the area was under heavy fire from Axis artillery and mortars, General McNair then walked down a hill to the jeep. After the three-hour ride, he underwent an hour-long operation for removal of the shell fragments. He was reported to day to be progressing favorably.

The helmet "really did me a good turn," the general told Associated Press Correspondent Harold V. Boyle, admiring the green-painted headpiece as it lay on a chair beside his hospital cot.

Boyle said a 4-inch shell fragment slashed across the general's left shoulder and smashed the tip of the collar bone. Another splinter, about an inch and a half long pierced his helmet and lodged against the base of the skull.

"Another quarter of an inch and the shell would have penetrated to the brain and he would have been a goner," said Col. Frank Y. Leaver at the evacuation hospital where McNair underwent the operation.

"As it is, he snapped out of the operation fine and is doing very

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, April 26.—Steadily hacking down Axis defenses in hard fighting, Allied forces have seized important heights on each of the three main sectors of the Tunisian Front, and in the central area posed critical threats of smashing through to the Tunisian plain for a surge that would crumple all the enemy's mountain lines.

French troops drove to within nearly 3 miles of Pont du Fahs on the Southern Front, and on the central sector east of Goubellat, 30 miles from Tunis, First Army armor was reported clashing in a finish fight against all the tanks that the German command could muster, with heavy losses already inflicted on the Germans.

German positions fell back yesterday before the American attack to the north, with advanced elements of the Second Army Corps coming within 3 miles east of Sidi N' Sir, and only some 10 miles southwest of Mateur, rail and highway junction between Tunis and Bizerte.

The French, striking at Pont du Fahs, have advanced 12½ miles in 36 hours of fighting, the French communique said, and east of the Kebir Dam have captured the strong positoin of Djebel Chirich.

"General Improvement"

Allied infantry seized the fortified hill of Sidi Marrour, 6 miles east of Bou Arada, and repelled enemy counterattacks.

A military spokesman declared that there was "general improvement in all our positions all along the line" yesterday despite "very hard fighting against very hard opposition."

[The International News Service said yesterday that the British radio had broadcast a report that the British Navy is "lying in wait" somewhere near the Straits of Sicily in order to give the Axis forces the "cbup de grace" in the event of an attempted evacuation of Tunisia.]

The Axis forces—which headquarters announced today had lost 60,000 men killed, wounded and captured between January 1 and April 15—were clinging desperately to their mountain postions, and beginning to show signs of exhaustion in the face of the incessant Allied land and air attack maintained for four days.

The Allied advance was eating into their defenses at the rate of 2 to 3 miles a day, and Allied spokesmen said the Axis loss of strategic hills overlooking the plain along which the Pont du Fahs-Tunis road runs could have been avoided if they had had reserves to throw into the battle.

If German lines give way at any point, they said, letting Allied

Formal Vote Of FCC Backs Dodd, Watson

Two Had Been Called Unfit to Hold Office By House Group

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

By a formal 4-3 vote, the Federal Communications Commission yesterday adopted a report warmly praising two of its employes whom a congressional committee called "unfit" to hold office, and also decided to keep them on the job.

The two are:

Dr. William E. Dodd, jr., 220 Greenbrier Street, Arlington, Va., son of the former Ambassador to Berlin, nad now assistant news editor in the FCC's Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, at $3200 a year.

Dr. Goodwin B. Watson of New York City, chief analyst at $6500 a year in the same branch.

Contradicts House Finding

The Commission's action sharply contradicted the finding last week by a five-member House Appropriations subcommittee that both men were unfit to hold office because of connections with "subversive" activities. The House group said it had been unable to substantiate similar charges aganist a third employe, Dr. Frederick L. Schuman, political analyst, of 2410 Eleventh Street, Arlington, Va., and the commission's report praised his work, too. It said, in part:

Sought to Awaken Nation

"Watson, Schuman, and Dodd enjoy the full respect and confidence of their superiors, associates, and subordinates. The removal of any one of them would result in a direct reduction in the efficiency and quality of the essential war activity carried on by the Foreign

Senate Stands 2 to 1 in Favor Of Trade Pact

Democratic Poll Points to Passage Without Change

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

A Democratic leadership poll has found the Senate to be more than two to one in favor of extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act without amendment, it was learned yesterday on the eve of the first official test scheduled to be made in the House Ways and Means Committee today of the Administration's ability to obtain unrestricted renewal of the law.

The poll was taken before Senate Republican Leader McNary of Oregon called over the weekend [illegible] amendment of pending bills for another three-year extension of the act by insertion of a provision reserving to Congress the right to nullify any agreement within 60 days by a majority vote.

Amendment to Come Up

Result of the test of present Senate sentiment on the legislative cornerstone of New Deal foreign policy was made known to Secretary of State Cordell Hull and presumably was a factor in encouraging him last week to repeat his opposition to proposed changes in the law.

McNary's amendment will be submitted to the Ways and Means Committee when it meets behind closed doors today to reach a decision on this and at least four other amendments prepared by Republican committeemen.

Committee Chairman Doughton (Democrat) of North Carolina, last night said he was "quite confident" that he has enough votes to beat these and any other proposed modifications and to send the bill out of committee today in the same form in which the Administration has had its trade agreements authority for about nine years.

Representative Knutson of Minnesota, ranking Republican on the committee said he would call together minority committeemen this morning to see if they will be willing to support in a block these additional amendments.

1. A prohibition against reduction of tariffs below a point which would permit commodities to enter this country at prices lower than domestic production costs.

2. A provision for customs court review, with power to suspend any trade agreement tariff

4-Nation Rule Over Postwar World Planned

U. S., Britain, Russia, China to Act, Exiled Allied Leaders Told

By Frederick Kuh
(London Bureau of The Chicago Sun)

London, April 26.—The eight exiled governments in London have now been informed more fully of American-British plans for a post-war world structure. This outline, which emerged from the Roosevelt-Eden discussions, has been communicated to other Allied administrations, including Russia, orally, but officially.

According to the project, at the top will be a world council of four, the United States, Britain, Russia and China. As a corollary to that four-power directorate, a committee of eight small nations would be created. By a system of rotation, all smaller powers eventually would serve terms on the council.

The idea is that the United Nations and neutrals will form this superstructure. After awhile, assuming their demilitarization and presumably also, their democratization, some Axis satellite countries would be admitted; then, on the same conditions, perhaps Italy. But Germany and Japan would be eligible for membership only after a long trial period.

Disarmament Plans

Plans include measures for dismantling — either destroying or transferring to United Nations—Axis key rearmament and war-making industries.

It has been suggested that Germany and Japan, moreover, even would be forbidden to maintain civil aviation for a certain period.

The scheme evidently proposes that under the four-power directorate and eight-power council of small nations there would be a regional council and under them federations. According to one version, the United States would be a member of the four-power body and

Ranger Safe; Navy Denies Nazi Claim

'No U. S. Carrier Sunk or Damaged In Any Ocean'

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The Navy yesterday flatly denied that the American aircraft carrier Ranger had been sunk in the Atlantic by a German submarine as claimed by the Berlin radio.

An official spokesman gave the lie to the Nazi assertion as the Navy Department reported that four United States fighter planes had fought an air battle with 30 Jap aircraft over the Solomons.

"Neither the Ranger nor any other United States carrier has been sunk or damaged in any ocean," said the Navy spokesman.

In telling of the Southwest Pacific aerial fight the Navy revealed that five Japanese Zeros and two American Corsairs were shot down.

Jap Force Intercepted

Four of our Vought Corsairs were on a mission over the Central Solomon Sunday, when they intercepted a large force of Japanese planes apparently en route to bomb Henderson Field on Guadalcanal.

There were ten Nipponese bombers and 20 Zero fighters, but the Corsairs waded right in.

"During the aerial combat which followed 5 Zeros were shot down," said the Navy communique. "Two United States planes failed to return."

The Vought fighters already had strafed Japanese bases on Kolombangara Island when they sighted the enemy air force only 95 miles from their home base on Guadalcanal. Apparently the Jap planes turned back after the flight, for there was no report of any bombing attack on Henderson Field.

Berlin Claimed Loss

Berlin had claimed that the 14,500-ton Ranger was sunk by a German submarine commanded by Lieut. Comdr. von Buelow in

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday made plans to have the Secretaries of War and Navy conduct press conferences in the presence of the committee, similar to the press meeting staged by OWI Director Elmer Davis last week.

Postoffice Department officials also will be called to explain distribution of Government pamphlets under the franking privilege.

Has Strong Backing

Joseph Kennedy May Be Head Of New Civilian Supply Office

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Joseph P. Kennedy, prewar Ambassador to Great Britain and one of the President's key administrators in the early New Deal, may return to Washington as head of the proposed new Civilian Supply Administration, if pending legislation becomes law.

The former Boston banker, who helped launch the SEC and served as chairman of the Maritime Commission before the President sent him to the Court of St. James, has strong Senate and Administration support for the $12,000-a-year post of Civilian Supply Administrator created under the Maloney bill.

Friends of the red-headed former Ambassador represent him as anxious to get back into harness in a constructive capacity. Authors of the bill to set up an independent civilian agency, headed up indirectly under Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes, have him definitely in mind for the job of determining minimum civilian war needs. Kennedy is understood to be acceptable to Byrnes, who favors the proposed new civilian establishment.

Invited by Nelson

It was learned that Kennedy was first asked to head up WPB's own Office of Civilian Supply now being reorganized by War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson. Kennedy felt he could not serve under the prevailing OCS setup and Nelson called in Arthur D. Whiteside, president of Dun & Bradstreet, instead as WPB vice chairman in charge of civilian needs. Nelson was and still is vigorously opposed to an independent agency such as provided in the Maloney bill, feeling WPB authority over civilian and military allocations cannot be divided.

Kennedy's relations with the Administration had become strained before United States entry into the war. Through the presidential campaign of 1940 he opposed "talk about going to war" and favored "more action about building up our defenses." He has been publicly on the sidelines ever since but recently has been a more frequent visitor in Washington, and at the White House. Kennedy's friendship for the President goes back to World War I days.

Bill Expected to Pass

Supported by a unanimously favorable Banking Committee report,, the Maloney bill transferring WPB control over civilian supply to the proposed CSA is expected to pass the Senate next week.

The new civilian supply administrator would be charged with the overall policy of "keeping the civilian population healthy and functioning effectively." If his requests for minimum goods and services were overruled by the allocating agencies, the administrator could appeal directly to the economic stabilization director, or to any other officer the President designated.

Essential, Says Taft

Actually the bill would cut into much of the authority now held not only by Nelson, but by heads of various agencies having power over civilian supplies of food, rub-

Nazis in Ambush Behind White Flag Shoot Americans

With the United States Army in Northern Tunisia, April 26 (AP).—Four badly wounded Americans lay at a roadside collection station today, the victims of shots fired from ambush by German troops who had hidden while their companions waved the white flag of surrender.

(Similar acts of treachery were committed by the Japanese on and around Guadalcanal.)

The ambulance driver explained: "They were in a bunch closing in on some Germans. When a couple of Germans came out waving a flag of truce, these men got to their feet and came forward to meet them. Other hidden Germans opened fire on them. They didn't have a chance."

Born in the mind of Norman Rockwell, painter of note, during the predawn hours of a rural Vermont day, the paintings of the "Four Freedoms," crystalizing in oils the objectives of the historic Atlantic Charter, last night won the homage of official and social Washington at the opening of the exhibit at the Hecht Co. at Seventh and F Streets Northwest.

Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, the principal speaker, asserted that America, remembering the murder of the Tokyo bombers, would gain a victory that:

"Will sweep into limbo of outworn things the degenerate society which has produced these high crimes in the Pacific."

Rockwell's now famous four paintings, together with others from the brush of the same artist as well as from other paintings that have been used on the covers of the Saturday Evening Post, had their premiere last night in the opening of the traveling U. Nation-Wide Stabilization Of Labor Viewed With Favor

The War Manpower Commission's management-labor policy committee tentatively indorsed yesterday the principle of a Nation-wide labor stabilization agreement, reliable sources reported.

These sources, who asked that their names be withheld, said a specific agreement will be drafted for consideration by the committee, which is composed of three representatives each of management, labor and agriculture. The major objective would be to extend WMC Chairman Paul V. McNutt's recent job-wage control order so that essential workers anywhere in the country would be eligible under certain circumstances to transfer to higher-paying jobs with new employers.

(Meanwhile, McNutt told a press conference that he had directed his regional officials to use "common sense" in applying the wage-job freeze regulations while the modification was being prepared. Under this directive, merchant seamen in the port of New York were authorized to return to sea immediately at higher pay, instead of being compelled to wait around in port until a job at similar or lower pay than their former job showed up, it was explained.—Editor's note.)

McNutt's original order provided for such job transfers only in areas where stabilization agreements have been adopted. Only some 63 communities now have these programs, but since McNutt's order, several of the 12 WMC regions have adopted region-wide plans.

The proposed Nation-wide agreement, the informants said, would take care of points now lacking local or regional agreements, but armor onto that plain, Von Arnim would have to withdraw all his forces to new positions before Tunis—if he could.

Axis Yields Strategic Hills In 3 Sectors

(The Algiers radio said in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that 64 German tanks had been knocked out in the last 72 hours.)

On the southern end of their western mountain line the Germans were yielding many of their strongholds with little resistance. Headquarters announced that the French Nineteenth Army Corps had won five mountains after only brief fighting. It was speculated that Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim had ordered withdrawals on his flanks while he still had the power to fight a delaying action.

A military spokesman said Von Arnim had concentrated his remaining armor to "fight it out" with the British tanks east of Goubellat. "This is a vital area," he said.

North and south of Medjez-El-Bab the British army captured strategic hills. Djebel Tanngoucha, a peak commanding the road from Medjez-El-Bab to Tebourba, "gateway to Tunis," finally was cleared by British infantry and tanks and a spokesman said "the remnants of the garrison were captured."

Peak Again Changes Hands

South of Medjez-El-Bab British infantry seized a hill six miles east of Bou Arada and clung to it in the face of a Nazi counter-attack. This placed Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson's forces almost within artillery range of Pont Du Fahs. It was the fourth time the peak had changed hands within 10 days.

There was hard tank fighting throughout yesterday below Sebkret El Krouzia, which is in the same area. An Allied spokesman said the Axis "suffered heavy losses in men and tanks" and that all Allied forward positions remained intact. The Germans were fighting desperately to prevent Allied tank formations from cutting the road from Pont De Fahs to Tunis.

(The German high command communique said the battle on the West front continued "with unabated viloence" and that Allied attempts to break through with masses of tanks had been thrown back with serious losses.)

Allied headquarters announced that the Axis had lost a total of 60,000 men killed, wounded and captured in North Africa between January 1 and April 15, and in the same period had lost 250 tanks, 3000 vehicles, 425 guns and 34 ships sunk by Allied land-based aircraft alone.

"In air combat," the announcement said, "our air forces destroyed 918 enemy planes, probably destroyed 278 more and damaged another 586. Allied air raids accounted for another 586 enemy planes destroyed on the ground." Of the Axis personnel losses, 36,000 were said to have been taken prisoner and the others killed or wounded.

The Allied tactical air force continued to pound advanced enemy gun positions, infantry, tanks and transport yesterday. The missions were difficult because of the danger of hitting Allied troops in the tangled fighting for the hill-tops, but all missions were reported successful. Twelve Allied planes were lost on the sorties, while seven German and Italian planes were shot down during the day.

"Results of the day's bombing were probably among the most successful of the campaign, although the number of sorties was not so large as on the previous day," an official statement said.

French units closing in on Pont du Fahs were reported to have advanced more than 12 miles in 36 hours of fighting since they dislodged the enemy from the Djebel Mansour, strongly fortified 2200-foot peak. Another mountain height was reported occupied in the same region yesterday, and the French were said to have seized many prisoners and important war material.

The British Eighth Army, which has played a comparatively minor role in the Allies' current effort to smash through the Axis defense line from the west, was reported to have mopped up Djebel Terhouna, 5 miles northwest of Enfidaville on the east coast and to have taken 50 more prisoners.

Allies Hurl 83 Bombers in 80 Minutes Against German's Tunisian Stronghold

By Daniel De Luce
Associated Press Staff Writer

Goubellat, Tunisia, April 25 (Delayed).—Allied air power struck at the Germans' outer defense line in northern Tunisia this Easter Day at the rate of better than a bomber a minute.

Sitting under a gnarled olive tree on a green knoll just outside the village of Goubellat, we watched 86 bombers in 80 minutes attack the enemy's high ground just 9 miles away.

And still they came—Bostons, Mitchells and Marauders—neatly in formations of 12 most of the time. They passed overhead and in a matter of seconds we heard rumbles of thunder. Clouds of smoke and dust erupted from the horizon.

At high altitudes, Spitfires were tracing scrolls of vapor as they leaped about like porpoises 5 miles above the earth. They kept up almost a constant guard for the bomber parade. The bombers appeared so frequently that a flight of 20 Spitfires was able to protect two or more waves of the attack.

Just once, a hit and run party of four German fighter-bombers tried to evade the Allied air cover and strike at a target at the edge of the Goubellat Plain. As the raiders turned and fled after dropping their bombs, the First Army flak made the sky look like a rash of measles.

The Allied bombing was concentrated on an enemy hedgehog position slightly northeast of the salt shore of Lake Krouzia.

British tanks knocked out 20 German tanks in this area today but until the enemy is driven off this high ground, the advance must be slow.

Goubellat village is a cluster of 25 or 30 neat French houses screened by rows of Eucalyptus. It is deserted.

It said "Chasse Interdite"—hunting forbidden—and the greatest manhunt in Tunisian history goes on 9 miles away.

The 20 tanks knocked out were part of a force of 44 German tanks that engaged in a swirling Easter Day battle with the British north of Lake Kourzia.

Heavy-gunned Churchill tanks swung through a gap in a mine field to destroy or disable nearly half of the enemy tank column thrown against them.

This British armored thrust previously had knocked out nine German tanks on Friday and 11 on Saturday. Salvage crews were recovering a number of them for future Allied use.

The Germans were using 15 Mark VI Tiger tanks in hull-down positions to keep a British force from fanning out northeastward in a direction which would bypass Tebourba.

well unless infection develops. But he sure is a tough man to keep in bed.

"I am going to pin the Purple Heart on him before he leaves."

[In Washington, the War Department said the 59-year-old officer would be incapacitated several weeks. He is expected to leave the front within the next day or two, it was said, and will return home for further treatment in the near future.]

While surgeons said they thought it possibly was a mortar shell that caused the injury, McNair told Boyle he believed he was struck by fragments from an artillery shell.

"I didn't see it land," he said, "but I think it was a high explosive shell of about 75-millimeter caliber. It didn't knock me out and I was able to walk down the hill to a jeep.

"We had to drive about three hours to reach the hospital, but it wasn't bad. That driver was really good.

"I didn't get anything from the Germans in the last war. They must have been saving it up to give it to me here.

Ed Murrow
TALKS TO US FROM LONDON*

Let's Make SURE There'll Never Be an American Dunkerque!

DID you ever see an army—a battered, broken, beaten, bitter army—come home? Did you ever hear strong men with the mud and blood still on them asking, "Where were our tanks? Why did we have no planes? Why no armor-piercing ammunition?"

Well, I have—twice. When friends of mine came home from Norway and from Dunkerque.

It's not a pretty sight. But I can't help thinking about it when it's my turn to talk about War Bonds.

There are a lot of Americans over here now—hundreds of thousands more coming.

You want those boys to win. You want them to have the necessary gear—and BETTER gear—than their enemies have.

You want bridgeheads bombed out for them.

You want a fighterplane umbrella over them while they land.

And if you want it hard enough to help pay for all the stuff those boys are going to need, do this:

Even though you're doing all you can, take another look and see if there's isn't a little more you can spare.

Reds Wipe Out Nazi Battalion And Halt Drive

By the Associated Press

London, Tuesday, April 27.—Russian troops flung back a numerically superior German attack force, annihilating about 800 of the enemy, in a resurgence of activity Monday on the Northwestern Front south of Leningrad, Moscow announced today.

The Nazi thrust carried Soviet forward elements back into a populated place, but an immediate counterattack threw back the German forces before they had time to consolidate their new position, said the midnight war communique, recorded here by the Soviet Monitor. About a battalion of German infantry was wiped out.

Infantry Repelled

In the important Sevsk area northwest of Kursk, Russian units also repelled attacks of enemy infantry, killing 80 German officers and men. In the Kuban Valley, where German forces have tried to extend their bridge head around Novorossisk, activity was limited to exchanges of gunfire.

Air battles ranged over various sectors of the long front and Russian airmen destroyed a total of 17 enemy planes, destroyed or damaged about 40 trucks carrying troops and supplies, blew up two ammunition dumps, smashed a German train, and sank a transport and a trawler in the Barents Sea.

The Russian airmen ran up their highest toll on the Western Front, presumably in the Smolensk area, by destroying eight aircraft in enemy airdromes and knocking down three in air combats.

On the same front, more than 200 Germans were killed and four artillery and five mortar batteries silenced by Russian artillery, mortar batteries and snipers. The noon communique reported 70 Germans killed in a light engagement on this front and 100 more on the Donets River line.

Five enemy aircraft also were sent down in a ten-minute dogfight in the Kuban area of the northern Caucasus.

also belong to the council of Asia, but remain aloof from the council of Europe.

The Allied governments have bene told few details of the plans for federations of Europe, but this conception is still apparently vague.

As has already been stated, plans finally are said to embrace corresponding arrangements for the Far East, including

First, the establishment of international trusteeship for certain Japanese island.

Second, the United States, China and possibly Russia—subject to her consent—as policing powers over Japan.

Third, that Formosa be returned to China.

Fourth, that Korea temporarily be placed under international guardianship before becoming independent.

Fifth, that Manchuria be restored to China.

Meanwhile the United States and British governments are continuing interesting talks concerning the future of many colonies.

United Nations.)

(These British circles, who may not be identified by name, said however, that the situation is not "impossible" and held hope for eventual reconciliation between the governments of Russia and Poland.

(In Washington, State Department officials of the United States expressed regret over the break, but declined further comment.

(B. B. C. said in a broadcast recorded in New York by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service that Ambassador Romer had left Moscow.)

"The Polish government, to please Hitler's tyranny, deals a treacherous blow to the Soviet Union," the Russian note said. "The Soviet government is aware that this hostile campaign against the Soviet Union was undertaken by the Polish government in order to exert pressure for the purpose of wresting from it the territorial concessions at the expense of the interests of the Soviet Ukraine, Soviet Byelo-Russia and Soviet Lithuania.

"All these circumstances compel the Soviet government to recognize that the government of Poland, having slid to the path of accord with Hitler's government, actually have discontinued Allied relations with the U. S. S. R. and adopted a hostile attitude toward the Soviet Union. On the strength of all above, the Soviet government has decided to sever relations with the Polish government."

Slanderous Campaign

The note declared that the Germans had launched a "slanderous campaign in connection with the murder of Polish officers which they themselves committed in the Smolensk area on territory occupied by German troops" and accused the Poles of immediately taking up the campaign.

"Far from offering a rebuff to the vile Fascist slander of the U. S. S. R., the Polish government did not even find it necessary to address the Soviet government with an inquiry or explanation on this subject," the note added.

Accusing the Germans of staging a "farcical investigation" of the alleged murders in order to cover up their own "monstrous crime," the Soviets charged that Polish pro-Fascist elements, picked by the Germans in Occupied Poland, had helped them.

"Both the Polish government and the Hitlerite government invited the International Red Cross, which is compelled, in conditions of a terroristic regime with its gallows and mass extermination of peaceful population, to take part in this investigation farce," the note said.

(The International Red Cross announced last week that it would undertake the investigation only if invited by all interested parties. It appeared unlikely that the Red Cross would take part, since no invitation has come from the Russians.

(The London Daily Mail said today that Anthony Eden, secretary of state for foreign affairs, would start discussions immediately in an effort to mediate the dispute and that Sir Archibald John Clark Kerr, British ambassador to Russia, would seek an early interview with Molotov to determine how Britain can help.)

(When the Germans announced the finding of 10,000 graves of Polish officers near Smolensk, the Polish government in exile declared that 15,000 officers, soldiers and civilians imprisoned by the Russians after the occupation of eastern Poland were missing. The Poles said neither their government nor their embassy in Kuibyshev had received a satisfactory explanation to requests for information.)

"The fact," Molotov's note concluded, "that the hostile campaign against the Soviet Union commences simultaneously in the German and Polish press and is conducted along the same lines—this fact leaves no doubt as to the existence of contact and accord in carrying out this hostile campaign between the enemy of the Allies—Hitler and the Polish government."

The Polish Ambassador arrived here from Kuibyshev almost a month ago and took up residence in the National Hotel from where he had been following the situation closely. It had been apparent in talks with him that he was under a strain.

All the Polish soldiers who have been training here have departed.

Russo-Polish Break Viewed With Concern

Russia's action in breaking off diplomatic relations with the Polish government-in-exile, the first such breach in the United Nations lineup, caused deep concern here yesterday.

A spokesman for the State Department said that, without reference to the merits in the matter of the differences between the two governments and without knowing as yet the full facts, it was with regret that the United States Government learned of the situation.

Jan Ciechanowski, the Polish Ambassador, conferred with Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles in the afternoon, but declined to comment to newspapermen afterward. He said he had not yet received official confirmation of Russia's action.

Only three of America's prewar carriers are now afloat—the Ranger, Saratoga and Enterprise. Four have been sunk in the Pacific, the Lexington, Yorktown, Wasp and Hornet. A considerable number of others have been launched in the past nine months, and are being readied for active service.

At each city in which the paintings are shown the same procedure will be followed and all will be disposed of with the exception of the "Four Freedoms" and Mead Schaeffer's series of "Men at War."

Included in the list of high Government and diplomatic officials were about 1500 who viewed the pictures on display and heard the talks.

Outstanding in the evening's events was the presentation of the Treasury's award to Rockwell for distinguished service in behalf of its war bond savings program by Daniel W. Bell, Undersecretary of the Treasury.

In his presentation speech Bell extolled the high quality of Rockwell's are and the splendid work it was doing in promoting the sale of war bonds.

Rockwell on Program

Appearing on the program were: Charles B. Dulcan, sr., vice president and general chairman of the Hecht Co.; Hugh Lynch, vice chairman of the District War Finance Committee; Robert W. Coyne, National Field Director of the War Savings Staff, Lowell Thomas, news commentator; Anna Kaskas, and Lansing Hatfield of the Metropolitan Opera Co. Bell, Rockwell and Justice Douglas.

Closing the program, Justice Douglas spoke of the American fliers who were killed by the Japs.

"But these boys were not killed. They were murdered," he said.

"They have left us with a debt we shall never be able to repay. They laid on us oblightions from which we cannot escape.

"One of these obligations is to realize what we are fighting. It is not Hirohito alone. It is not just a few fanatics or a sadistic army clique. Our boys were not lynched in darkness by a mob run mad. They were put to death by an official act of the Japanese government.

Throwback to Dark Ages

"It has brought home to us that the Japanese state is a mockery of decent human government and that we are dealing with a society which is a throwback to the dark ages. The Chinese have tried to tell us this. The men on Guadalcanal learned it early. But it was not until the Japanese admitted it, and boasted with perverted pride of the murder of these boys of ours that we came fully to understand what we had been told.

"The Japanese are not free from it (responsibility for the actions of their government) either. Their rulers have committed these high crimes against humanity. But, let no one say that the Japanese people ent murder. For they have not only consulted before the murders. They may not be absolved of the treachery of Pearl Harbor; of the brutality of the rape of China; for the conscious outrage of this present murder. For they have not only flung away their rights, they have refused and woefully neglected their responsibility . . . They have suffered a great moral default. They have allowed to be cast upon the world a Frankenstein state—a primitive system nurtured into a cult of death and destruction. A state is what its people wish it to be or suffer it to become. Until a people casts off its tyrants, it must stand at the bar of justice with them."

In his speech of welcome, Dulcan, representing the Hecht Co., told of the work that is being done by retail merchants to forward the war effort.

Rockwell Honored at Premier of Four Freedoms Paintings

Norman Rockwell, artist, was honored last night by ranking Government officials for distinguished service in behalf of the war savings program, at the world premier of the Four Freedoms war bond show in the auditorium of the Hecht Co. Looking at Rockwell's oil painting are William O. Douglas (left), Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, principal speaker; Daniel W. Secretary Stimson Opposes Bill Barring Draft of Fathers

By the Associated Press

Secretary Stimson, declaring that "great opportunities are now developing for us to end the war as quickly as possible," opposed yesterday the enactment of legislation which would bar the induction this years of fathers married prior to Pearl Harbor.

The Senate Military Affairs Committee made public Stimson's letter. Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, is seeking to grant the blanket deferment, for the remainder of 1943, through an amendment to a measure dealing with unemployment compensation benefits for conscientious objectors. This is scheduled for Senate consideration next Monday.

Stimson said that in order to take advantage of developing opportunities to bring the war to a speedy close "it is essential that the carefully planned and coordinated program of raising and training an Army composed of our best-equipped fighting men be not impeded.

"It is manifest," his letter continued, "that this (the Wheeler) bill would greatly limit the source of necessary men available for this purpose and would dangerously affect our ultimate victory."

Stimson said more than eight million men are deferred in the 3-A classification up to January 1, 1943, and of these about six million have one or more children under age 18.

"The proposed legislation, therefore, presents the simple issue of whether the war effort can suffer, without serious impairment, the withdrawal of six million men who are eligible for training and service from the national pool of manpower," Stimson wrote. "Plainly, it cannot."

Sacrifices Inevitable

No legislation is needed, the Secretary went on, to impress the War Department with the importance of preserving the American home. That is what the war is being fought for, he said, but sacrifices have to be made to attain victory.

"That men must be subjected to great hardship for that ideal is unfortunate, but the war in which we are engaged cannot be won in an easy manner and without much trouble and sacrifice," he said.

The Secretary declared the six million fathers must include many who could go into the armed services without subjecting their families to undue financial hardships. The rule of individual deferments, geared to the needs of the individual, should be followed rather than blanket deferments, he argued.

"All three, by reason of their close contact and exhaustive study of world affairs, perceived earlier than many of their countrymen the rising menace of the Nazis, Fascists, and Japanese.

"Spurred on by this insight, they sought by speech, by writing, and by cooperation with others working toward similar ends to awaken their countrymen to the peril which became manifest to all at Pearl Harbor.

"In practical effect these men have only been farsighted and aggressive in opposing naziism and fascism. Their citizenship and the legality of their conduct have not been brought into question in any court of law.

"We find no basis or reason for the dismissal of Watson, Schuman or Dodd . . ."

The three dissenting members were Commissioners Norman S. Case, George Henry Payne, and T. A. M. Craven, with the majority made up of Chairman James Lawrence Fly, Paul A. Walker, Ray C. Wakefield and Clifford J. Durr.

It was indicated that all three of the dissenters questioned the strategic abvisability of stepping into the case before Congress had determined finally what to do about Watson and Dodd.

It was recalled that a year ago, the House followed the lead of its Appropriations Committee in declining funds to pay Watson, but the Senate saved his job.

The House is conducting an investigation of the FFC through a special committee headed by Representative E. E. Cox of Georgia.

WHY GOD PERMITS WAR!

Why does God permit war? Why does He permit cruelty, injustice, pain, starvation, sickness and death?

Thirty years ago, in Forbidden Tibet, behind the highest mountains in the world, a young Englishman named Edwin J. Dingle found the answers to these questions. A great mystic opened his eyes. A great change came over him. He realized the strange Power that Knowledge gives.

That Power, he says, can transform the life of anyone. Questions, whatever they are, can be answered. The problems of health, death, poverty and wrong, can be solved.

In his own case, he was brought back to splendid health. He acquired wealth, too, as well as world-wide professional recognition. Thirty years ago, he was sick as a man could be and live. Once his coffin was bought. Years of almost continuous tropical fevers, broken bones, near blindness, privation and danger had made a human wreck of him, physically and mentally.

He was about to be sent back to England to die, when a strange message came—"They are waiting for you in Tibet." He wants to tell the whole world what he learned there, under the guidance of the greatest mystic he ever encountered during his twenty-one years in the Far East. He wants everyone to experience the greater health and the Power, which there came to him.

Within ten years, he was able to retire to this country with a fortune. He had been honored by fellowships in the World's leading geographical societies, for his work as a geographer. And today, 30 years later, he is still so athletic, capable of so much work, so young in appearance, it is hard to believe he has lived so long.

As a first step in their progress toward the Power that Knowledge gives, Mr. Dingle wants to send to readers of this notice a 9000-word treatise. It is free. For your free copy, send your name and address to the Institute of Mentalphysics, 213 South Hobart Blvd., Dept. F-259, Los Angeles, Calif. Write promptly.

Do YOU—and YOU—and YOU Want a Part in Winning This War

here is your chance—lend your fighting dollars in this Second War Loan drive, that ends May 1

Yes, your taxes are heavy—but buying bonds makes it less necessary for the Government to make taxes still higher.

Yes, you are buying bonds regularly now—but 13 billion fighting dollars additional must be raised in this Second War Loan campaign.

Yes, you have made many sacrifices, perhaps even lost a son or a husband. Buying bonds helps you make sure those sacrifices were not in vain.

Yes, wartime wages are high—you want to enjoy spending. But spending means inflation—makes every dollar you earn, worth less. Money invested in bonds earns more money for you.

Yes, you may disapprove of the way some national problems are handled. But, remember, much larger issues are at stake: for instance, the freedom of speech that makes it possible, in America, for you to voice that disapproval. And, foremost issue of all is the winning of the war.

Yes, you would do everything possible to save the life of one of our fighting men. Investing in bonds to the limit now means limiting the death lists caused by a longer war.

Seven types of U. S. Government Securities—choose the best for you:

United States War Savings Bonds—Series E: The perfect investment for individual and family savings. Gives you back $4 for every $3 when the Bond matures. Designed especially for the smaller investor. Dated 1st day of month in which payment is received. Interest: 2.9% a year if held to maturity. Denominations: $25, $50, $100, $500, $1000. Redemption: any time 60 days after issue date. Price: 75% of maturity value.

2½% Treasury Bonds of 1964-1969: Readily marketable, acceptable as bank collateral, these Bonds are ideal investments for trust funds, estates and individuals. A special feature provides that they may be redeemed at par and accrued interest for the purpose of satisfying Federal estate taxes. Dated April 15, 1943; due June 15, 1969. Do Your Part in Winning This War BY BUYING WAR BONDS NOW—Only Five More Days to Share in the Second War Loan of 13 Billion Dollars

Bond Buyers Within 12% Of D. C. Quota

Swamped with more than 400 orders, mostly for Series E, F and G current war loan bonds, the District War Finance Committee had one of its "biggest days" yesterday.

That was the summation of Wilmer J. Waller, chairman of the banking division of the committee, who said that any previous suggestion of lagging had been allayed by the rush experienced yesterday.

Sales reported by the committee for the District now stand at $36,831,043.75, or 88 per cent of the quota of 42 million dollars for investors other than those of commercial banks and dealers.

Individual investors were purchasing in "large numbers," it was indicated, and total securities sold last Saturday amounted to $2,190,263.

"Limit" Investment Urged

Individual investors, too, with but five remaining days in which to make Second War Loan security purchases, were strongly urged to participate to the "very limit" of his particular ability.

Commercial banks in the Nation had oversubscribed nearly five times an allotment of seven-eighths per cent Treasury certificates made available to them in the Second War Loan campaign, Secretary Morgenthau announced.

Total subscriptions amounted to $9,782,005,000 but the banks were allotted only $2,138,224,000.

Subscriptions and allotment for the Richmond Federal Reserve District, which includes the District of Columbia, was: Subscribed, $419,912,000; allotted, $101,568,000.

A mass meeting of District members of the Retail Wine & Beverage Association cheered long and loud last night as they were told that their purchases of war bonds already totaled $750,000 and are expected to go over the million mark.

Wings Raise $11,500

More than a thousand persons packed the U. S. Chamber of Commerce auditorium to listen to Capt. C. W. Lawson, who flew in the raid on Japan with Doolittle, and who had been decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Order of the Purple Heart and the Military Order of China. When he finished speaking his silver wings were auctioned off for the highest war bond purchase. Mrs. Sophie Nathanson of 1000 Fourth Street Southwest was the high bidder, with $11,500.

Guests of honor at the meeting, which closed District liquor stores two hours earlier last night, included members of the Alchool Beverage Control Board. Paul McGrath served as master of ceremonies. Speakers included Manuel Davis, attorney for the association, and Little Jack Little, who also played. Music was furnished by the Navy School of Music Band.

Fred G. Holderman, jr., chairman of the Insurance Division of the District Committee, reported that his volunteer workers had succeeded in a total of 615 sales, to date, amounting to $405,550 in War Loan securities.

Announement was made yesterday by the American Airlines of the purchase of $100,000 worth of bonds in Washington.

Twenty orders totaling nearly $200,000 is the record of members of the District of Columbia Credit Union League.

Friday, April 30, was designated as "Remember Our Martyred Fliers Day" by the District committee, and thus made available a date when an outraged people may voice its denunciation of the despicable act by buying war bonds to help supply the planes and bombs to be used in making good the vow of the buddies of executed fliers to "Blast Tokyo off the map."

Workers last night continued to outline plans to promote the city-wide observance through the press, retail advertisements, radio, posters, displays and other methods of communication.

All citizens and workers are asked to display the national colors, service flags, posters and window displays of their own device in order that every Washingtonian may become thoroughly familiar with the reason for the day.

Policeman Sells Car, Entertainer Gives Week's Pay for Bonds

SHEILA ROGERS

Sincerity and unity of purpose in the current War Loan Drive was evident in many sections of the District yesterday.

Sacrifice, too, was not bypassed.

Sheila Rogers, hazel-eyed young entertainer, and John L. Boccina, a detectvie of the Metropolitan Police, have one thing in common—they want to buy bonds.

Miss Rogers, who last night opened an engagement at the Lotus Club, where she does singing impersonations, will invest her first week's salary in securities . . . and Private Boccina, whose lone hobby for 10 years has been good automobiles is now afoot, having sold his sleek Packard and purchased $2000 in bonds.

Miss Rogers, a native of New York and who recently finished a tour with the USO, will also appear in downtown bond boths to boost the sale of bonds.

Incidentally, Private Boccina's $2000 purchase announced last night makes him top purchaser in the Detective Bureau. His home is 3812 Calvert Street Northwest.

ber, oil, gas, manpower and transportation. Officials of these agencies could appeal over the head of the Economic Stabilization Director to the President, but for all ordinary purposes the final say would rest with Byrnes.

Senator Robert A. Taft (Republican) of Ohio, who collaborated with Senator Francis T. Maloney (Democrat) of Connecticut in drafting the bill, told reporters he thought it essential that such overall authority be granted to avoid the many disputes and conflicting decisions of allocating agencies now administering various phases of the civilian supply program.

Taft said the Maloney bill was but a step, though a long one, toward statutory recognition of Byrnes as the arbiter of all conflicts arising among agencies concerned with domestic phases of the war program. In practice Byrnes is already exercising much of this authority.

"What we really need," said Taft, "is a war council similar to the war cabinet formed by President Wilson during the last war. But, as it seems we are not to have that, I believe Byrnes ought to be put in a position where he can settle all the disputes that arise and not let them go on for months as they do now."

rate which could be shown to be harmful to United States industry and agriculture.

3. Reduction of the period of extension from three to two years.

Another Republican committeeman, Representative Dewey of Illinois, disclosed that he would propose an amendment to embody within the bill language which would declare it to be against Congressional policy for trade agreements to be disrupted by international cartels by which corporations in this country, Germany and Great Britain before the war gained exclusive rights to world markets in petroleum products, magnesium, quinine, rubber and other materials.

Observing that trade agreements made under congressional authority on occasion have been rendered inoperative in certain fields by secret understandings between big corporations here and abroad, Dewey said he believed the State Department and other Government agencies should be required by law to take cognizance of the effect of cartels on tariff rates.

2 Federal Workers File Suits for Double-Time Pay

Two Customs employes of the Treasury Department filed suit yesterday in District Court alleging they were owed $59.93 by Secretary Henry Morgenthau, jr., because of not receiving double time for overtime when their agreement with the Federal department called for that arrangement.

The two employes were John Di Benedette, Long Island City, N. Y., and Wayland C. Dorrance, of Jersey City, N. J.

The suit requested that besides settling their individual claims the Treasury Department be forced to pay to all customs employes, who have a similar arrangement, double time for all overtime worked.

Nazi Railways Bombed by R.A.F.

London, April 26 (AP).—British bombers attacked railway targets in Germany and France late today, and radio stations in Nazi-occupied territory went off the air tonight, indicating that the Allied air offensive against the European continent was being resumed after a recent lull.

Mosquito bombers struck at a railway center in northwest Germany, another in the Rhineland and a third in France, near the Loire River. All the British planes returned.

(The Federal Communications Commission reported in New York that the Calais and Allouis radios in Nazi-ocupied France had gone off the air.)

Lewis Likely To Call Coal Strike Today

4000. Another 4000 Alabama miners who were out on strike Saturday returned to work, however.

A spokesman for the United Mine Workers in New York denied that any strike had been authorized by the union, although the board's telegraphed appeal which was sent to Lewis and presidents of various U. M. W. districts, opened with the assertion:

"We have been informed that several strikes involving members of the United Mine Workers have been called and are continuing."

It was also learned that Department of Justice attorneys have been reviewing Federal conspiracy statutes to examine the possibility of using them to charge conspiracy to violate the October 2 Stabilization Act, in the event of a prolonged strike.

Contrary to Pledge

The telegram, which was signed by Board Chairman William H. Davis, continued:

"The continuing of these strikes is seriously interrupting the production of vitally needed war materials. These strikes are not only contrary to the national policy and labor's pledge, but are also contrary to the terms of your present extended agreement with the mine operators. . . .

"We call upon you as a leader of your union to urge the workers to return to their jobs immediately under the plan as suggested by the President and ordered by the board so that a Nation at war may have maximum production not only in the coal fields, but in countless related war industries which are so vitally dependent on their continued operation. . . .

"With the knowledge that large numbers of mine workers and their sons are at the fightig front, we feel confident that with a proper understanding of the plan for the peaceful settlement of their dispute, they will return to their jobs to continue their most important contribution to full production and winning the war. Please reply."

Tied to Wage Demands

The telegram clearly tied the strikes which have been taking place in scattered regions of the coal fields with the pending wage case and Lewis' demand for a $2 a day wage increase. Although it did not state so explicitly, it was interpreted as a warning that the board's customary policy of refusing to hear a dispute on its merits while a strike is in progress would be applied to this case if the strike continued.

would not affect places where community stabilization programs have been adopted.

Stabilization programs set up controls over all hiring by the WMC's job-placement nit, the U. S. Employment Service, and provide for the possible release of essential workers from current employers so that they may take higher paying jobs with other employers.

If adopted, the informants said, the Nation-wide stabilization program would assure workers everywhere of eligibility to shift to higher-paying jobs if they are fired, laid off indefinitely, or are not used full-time at their highest skill. McNutt told a press conference, however, that the President's order to "hold the line" against inflation would prevent any modification of the job-wage order which would permit essential workers to change jobs merely because their current wages are substandard.

12 Squads Seek 'Hammer Man'

Chicago, April 26 (AP).—A dozen police squads combed the Northwest Side for a "'hammer man" who attacked or terrorized six girls and women within a period of not less than four hours today.

Gaining entrance to homes by posing variously as a prospective boarder, health department representtive and possible garage renter, the sleek-haired terrorist struck two girls on the head with a hammer concealed under his jacket; chased two other girls from their home with a butcher knife and struggled with two women who broke out of his embrace.

Senate Votes Pay To Air Trainees

A $7,246,000 deficiency appropriation bill amended to provide payment of $50 a month to civil aeronautics trainees taking or awaiting Army courses was passed yesterday by the Senate and returned to the House.

Senator McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, said the Navy had been paying similar trainees $50 a month since last December 15. His amendment, which was adopted, would make the pay for about 13,000 Army trainees retroactive to that date.

no witness but the silent snows, no other reward than duty done

No nation has a monopoly on heroism. Soldiers all over the world, and on both sides of the battle formations, are doing deeds every day beside which the most arduous of all civilian activities rank as mere child's play. And in the military contest where life and death are the stakes and where courage is taken for granted, the formula for success may be reduced to three essential M's. They are Manpower, Material, and Morale. Failure can result from a breakdown of any one of the three. And not the least of them is the factor of morale. In the American war effort, there's where Esquire is making a contribution which, though obviously small, is nevertheless direct. The Magazine for Men is an avowed favorite of our armed forces (a measureable percentage read it regularly), as well as our merchant sailors and auxiliary services. In the military life, which someone once defined as "long periods of intense boredom mixed with short periods of intense strain," the much-thumbed copies of Esquire perform yeoman service in affording escape from tedium and tonic for action. Best thing about it, from a morale standpoint, they tell us, is the very fact that it neither preaches nor propagandizes, but simply gives them the things they most need and want to look at, to laugh at, and now and then to dream about. It gives a much-needed smile to those who are engaged in the world's least funny job. Of course it does no high deeds on its own, and its function is no more heroic than that of the mascot, that only goes along on the travels of the team. But that, too, they tell us, can be pretty important.

Senators to 'Look In' on Knox, Stimson Press Conferences

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday extended its preliminary investigation of Government information methods to the Army and Navy and arranged to "listen in" on press conferences of both Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of Navy Knox.

Senator Frederick Van Nuys (Democrat) of Indiana, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said he first would ask Secretary Stimson to conduct one of his regular press conferences before the committee, possibly on Thursday. The committee is considering the O'Mahoney resolution for a full-fledged inquiry into Government news dispensing agencies, and last week staged its first dress rehearsal with Director of War Information Elmer Davis.

"It is the feeling of the committee that whatever the news, so long as it is based on facts, the American people can take it," said Van Nuys. "The trouble is they are often kept in ignorance of some events for so long that they become disquieted and nervous. There may be a perfectly reasonable explanation of some of the delays that have occurred in the release of news, and if so we want to hear it."

In addition to the committee's question and answer session with Secretaries Stimson and Knox, Van Nuys said Postoffice Department officials later will be called to explain the need of "wholesale" distribution of Government pamphlets through the mails under so called "penalty mail" franking privileges. Davis himself will later be called back before the committee. "We are not through with him yet," said Chairman Van Nuys. "We want to talk with him again after we have heard from some of the other agencies."

Van Nuys said Secretary Stimson will be asked to brnig with him spokesmen for the War Department's Bureau of Public Relations. As in the recent sessoin with Davis, he said the committee first will stand by while Stimson conducts his press conference. Then reporters will be dismissed from the room while the committee talks in private with the Secretary. The same procedure will be followed when Knox is called, he said.

While the Judiciary Committee chairman said he was chiefly concerned with the delayed release of some news on the war, he said the committee also would investigate instances of conflicting statements and release of war news through nonmilitary channels. For example, he said he could not understand why Roane Waring, national commander of the American Legion, "was permitted to put out facts on the war in Tunisia." (Waring was quoted last week as saying the Yanks have paid a "terrible price" in casualties in North Africa.) "There should be only one mouthpiece," said the Senator.

"Wholesome Things"

Van Nuys referred to the recent committee session with Elmer Davis as a "wholesome thing—Davis himself admitted the OWI had made a mistake in not giving both sides of some purely domestic questions dealt with in OWI pamphlets." Chiefly under fire at the Davis inquiry was the OWI pamphlet "Battle Stations for All." Senator Joseph P. O'Mahoney (Democrat) of Wyoming complained the pamphlet discussed domestic questions at issue between Congress and the executive departments. Davis is said to have agreed to steer clear of such controversies in the future.

The committee's decision to call Postoffice Department officials on free franking of departmental literature stemmed from distribution of the controversial OWI pamphlets, Van Nuys said.

"We want to know just what kind of 'propaganda' is being distributed in this way," he told newsmen. "We might decide to abolish the franking of penalty mail."

Double Dose Of Bombs Fed Japs at Mubo

By the Associated Press

Allied Headquarters in Australia, April 27.—Allied ground troops who hold ridgetop positions overlooking the Japanese-occupied village and airstrip of Mubo, New Guinea, were given a fresh burst of aerial support Monday by a formation of Boston attack planes.

The raiders twice bombed and strafed the area, which is on the approaches to the vital Japanese Huon golf bases of Lae and Salamaua. Mubo is only 15 miles below Salamaua.

The Bostons centered their attacks upon a hill a mile and a quarter northeast of Mubo, where a small force of Japanese is entrenched.

Due to extremely stormy weather, lasting for several days, air activity throughout the sector northeast of Australia was on a small scale and in the northwest was limited to reconnaissance.

A Flying Fortress bombed and strafed Gasmata, on the southern tip of New Britain, destroying a wireless tower and a building.

The raider then stafed two other New Britain posts, Ubili and Arawe.

A delayed report disclosed that a single heavy bomber attacked the airdrome at Finschhafen, on New Guinea's Huon Peninsula, Sunday. The pilots had icing trouble, a rare experience in the tropics.

One plane even reported encountering a heavy snowstorm over the New Guinea mountains.

Ground activity in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command area has been limited to patrol activity virtually ever since the end of the Allied conquest of the Papuan Peninsula in New Guinea.

WPB Priority Denial Blamed for Collapse of Rooming-House Safety Drive

will not prosecute for failure to obtain licenses, the operators of apartment houses, lodging, rooming and boarding houses whose licenses have been denied through failure to comply with the provisions of existing regulations. Any such operator whose license had been denied for any other reason will be prosecuted for operating without a license."

Not only had the War Production Board notified the Commissioners that only a very few fire escapes for the most extreme needs would be granted—after virtual assurance two weeks ago that priorities would be given for as many cases as necessary—but that it is practically impossible to obtain fire extinguishers or fire gongs as specified in the regulations, one District spokesman said.

For this reason, it was decid. it would be unfair to prosecute proprietors for noncompliance with regulations that present conditions makes completely out of the question, this spokesman added. This is exactly the point that the proprietors have been stressing for the past three weeks, since 1780 of them were served notice on April 5 that their premises had been disapproved by Fire Marshal's inspectors and that to continue to operate without a license would make them liable to prosecution.

Wooden Escapes Suggested

One alternative suggested by the WPB was the use of wooden fire escapes as a temporary safety measure. A representative of a company making such devices appeared at the April 15 hearing on the new building regulations and asked that the Commissioners give consideration to approving such a device. Building Inspector Robert H. Davis questioned at the time if the Bureau of Standards had approved this kind of fire escape. Although he was given assurance that such certification could be had, Davis said last night that he had not yet received it and therefore had given no more consideration to this possibility.

Emergency amendments to the new fire regulations now being drawn up by the regulations committee are expected to be added "to afford the maximum protection within the limits imposed by the WPB decision," a member of the committee said. This represents another complete about ace by the Commissioners, who had insisted that present conditions could not relax the minimum safety standards set up in the regulations.

The Commissioners' drastic order of April 5, which had kept the proprietors, the Building Inspectors and the Commissioners themselves going around in circles for the past three weeks, was prompted by intense Congressional and public reaction to a recent series of fatal rooming house fires.

The order issued yesterday put the situation back just where it was before the pressure was begun, and makes all the turmoil of the past few weeks so much lost motion, one District official admitted. What the Commissioners will do if another series of rooming house fires would cause the heat to be turned on again is a matter of District Building conjecture.

GOING HOME

This is Flight 44.

It shortens the distance between places by many hours.

It makes possible a trip for busy people who otherwise would not have time to go.

Like this boy in uniform—going home.

Going home, on a furlough for just 30 hours.

Going home, to a piece of Mother's apple pie... a few hours with Mary... a heart-to-heart talk with Dad.

Going home, to sleep in his own bed... to take a long look at everything he cares about.

He thinks about these things now... and he thinks about the man who, ten minutes ago, gave up his seat in the plane to him.

He remembers that the man looked important, and busy.

But the man overheard him say he couldn't get home at all in 30 hours unless he got on this plane.

And the man had stepped up and asked to be changed to a later flight... and he had said something about a responsibility to men in uniform.

And something about... one of the reasons we have an America to fight for is because Americans take time to think about the the other fellow.

The boy felt warm and good inside. A stranger knew how much it meant to a soldier to be going home.

Going home... maybe for the last time in a long while.

Maybe for the last time.

To our boys in the Armed Forces, leave is the most precious thing they can have. Maybe they're only coming home from camp. Maybe they're coming back from the hellholes of the Solomons or Africa. Every hour, every minute of that leave means more to them than they can say. For many of them, with the little time they have, the only way they can get home, the only way they can see their folks again, is to fly. We of Eastern Air Lines would like to give each one of them an "unofficial priority." But we can't. So we're going to leave it up to you—and we don't mean that you should stop traveling by air for the duration. Just continue to make plane reservations—and if your business is important or your trip is urgent, travel as usual. However, if you find you can take a later plane and there's a soldier, sailor or marine waiting—who can't get home and back in time any other way—why not give him your seat?

Elmer Davis Works Hard to Get the Facts

WHEN you sift down all the hullabaloo about Elmer Davis and his Office of War Information, the only valid criticism you can make against the drawling Hoosier is that he is working too hard. The last two weeks when he went on the air, he was so exhausted he had a stand-by alongside ready to take up his script if he collapsed.

Davis works far into the night, tries to read all that his voluminous office produces, sees almost everyone who wants to see him.

But given a tough situation, basically he has done a good job. Senators like Montana's Wheeler and Nevada's McCarran, whose acid digestive systems are always poisoning their political outlook, make a wry face at Davis. But Wheeler and McCarran are always demanding more facts and inside fact is that Davis has been fighting their battle in keeping the American public informed.

Most of Davis' fight is getting news, squeezing it out of Government bureaus which don't want to give, making the Army and Navy release facts which show up their mistakes, rowing with Czarubber Jeffers because his estimates on tires are too rosy.

When Davis stepped down from his well-paying radio job to correlate Government information, everyone envied him his job, thought he had a softie. But the job of digging news, accurate news, unpleasant news out of the Government is not soft. And it is not popular.

Davis is a good newsman. Being such, he is not popular, never will be in some quarters.

Note: Davis did his best to release the story on bombing Tokyo long ago. Several times he urged the White House that the American public should know the facts. Earlier, when the Japs released a picture of U. S. fliers supposedly captured in the Tokyo raid, Davis wanted to point out the truth, namely that these were naval fliers, not Doolittle's. They had been captured in a naval battle. This explanation was broadcast to foreign countries by OWI, but Davis, through no fault of his own, was not permitted to tell folks at home.

FDR's Congressman

As Commander in Chief, the President has supreme powers in the conduct of the war, but he is just another citizen on the books of the Hyde Park (N. Y.) Rationing Board.

At a recent White House meeting, the President was telling three Congressmen—Gale (Republican) of Minnesota, Jackson (Democrat) of Washington, and Manasco (Democrat) of Alabama—about the red tape involved in buying meat and groceries on his trips home to Hyde Park.

"I have my problems with point rationing, the same as you fellows," he grinned.

"Why don't you write your Congressman?" suggested Republican Representative Gale.

The President reflected briefly, then threw up his hands and roared with laughter.

"Oh, no!" he exclaimed. "Not that!"

The man who represents the Hyde Park district in Congress is Hamilton Fish, one of the most vitriolic, vituperative foes the President has in Congress.

Army Politics

POLITICS is played every day on Capitol Hill, frequently with a smile. But Army politics is a grim and serious business. Take the mysterious tug of war going on back stage regarding the new surgeon general of the United States Army.

Gen. George Marshall, chief of staff, had selected as the new surgeon brilliant, popular Brig. Gen. Albert W. Kenner, who did an outstanding job as chief doctor for United States forces in the tough North African campaign. Marshall ordered Kenner back to Washington under orders so secret he was told not to report to Medical Corps headquarters. Knowing how Army politics operates, Marshall did not want news of the appointment to leak out and induce rival candidates to get busy.

However, the news did leak out and Army politicos started lobbying. Most powerful lobbyist was venerable Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, Surgeon General of the Army during the World War. Another was Col. William L. Keller, head doctor at Walter Reed Hospital. Both are retired, so it is permissible for them to pull wires in a way active officers couldn't. They got their views to the White House against General Kenner.

Instead General Ireland and Colonel Keller backed Brig. Gen. Norman Kirk, a bone specialist, who had an interesting record in the days when he was up for promotion from lieutenant to captain. Another doctor popular with the Medical Corps is Brig Gen. George Lull.

The wire-pulling over this coveted medical post extended to Gen. B. B. Somervell and Undersecretary of War Patterson.

However, just before the President was about to leave on his Mexican trip, and was in a hurry, the Kirk appointment was put on his desk. General Kenner is going to the Pacific like the good soldier that he is.

District Warned Surprise Test May Be Ordered at Any Moment

A surprise air raid test may be expected any time between today and Friday midnight, as the four-day period of warning for such a test began at 12:01 a. m. today.

Since it will not be announced, there is no way of telling whether this test will be a blackout or a daytime alert. Therefore all residents of the District and the nearby Virginia and Maryland counties are warned to have their houses ready for a blackout at any time, and to be prepared to be 15 minutes late for any engagement in case the alarm catches them en route.

The new system of signals, with the 2-minute fluctuating preliminary "blue" signal and the 2-minute steady "red" will be employed.

Admonishing all persons to obey all blackout precautions, especially about leaving unattended lights burning at night, H. C. Whitehurst, civilian defense director, pointed out that since the first arrest during the fourth blackout April 13, 1942, there have been 153 arrests for blackout violations.

Russian Plays Tonight

Two plays from the Russian Theater will be presented by a group of players under auspices of Russian War Relief, Inc., tonight at 8:30 in the 1218 Connecticut Avenue United War Relief Center. Like other events in connection with the Russian War Relief exhibit at the center this month, admission is free.

Grant Ceremony

The Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War will commemorate the 121st birthday of General Grant at a service at Grant Statute this afternoon at 5. Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, retired, will speak and the United States Army Band will give a concert.

Feeding Class to Begin

The Canteen Corps of the District of Columbia Red Cross announces that a class at All Souls Church, Sixteenth and Harvard Avenue Northwest, will begin today and will continue on Tuesdays and Fridays from 7:30 to 9:30 until May 28. The purpose is to train more women for work with the Red Cross Central Feeding Kitchen No. 1 at All Souls Church. The Central Kitchens are equipped to serve three meals a day in case of a natural or military disaster.

Dr. Koo Halts Wife's Book

By the Associated Press

New York, April 26.—Mme. V. K. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador to Great Britain, today explained the cancellation of the publication of her autobiography, "Hui-Lan Koo," by announcing that her husband was "opposed to the idea of my writing such a book."

Publishers of the book last Saturday sent the cancellation order to 8000 bookstores which were ready to release the book today.

In a prepared statement, the author said:

"My husband arrived recently in New York, and last week I showed him a copy of the book which was a surprise to him as he had all along been opposed to the idea of my writing such a book, and unaware of the fact that I had proceeded with it. . . .

"Not having been consulted about the manuscript, either, he was naturally anxious that in any case I should exercise every possible care before letting the book come out to see that nothing was said in it about our friends, foreign or Chinese, which in substance or phrasing, might even remotely appear to them as a want of courtesy or consideration on my part."

Air Pilots Get New Uniform

Sans fanfare or distinctive garb, pilots of the Air Transport Command remained the unsung, unrecognized heroes of the war despite their hazardous jobs, until the War Department recently approved a uniform modeled after those of Army officers, thereby enabling the public to identify the men who carry vital cargo and materiel to military bases all over the world.

Chief differences between the blouse of the Air carrier contract personnel and the Army is that airline pilots and flight crews of the A. T. C. all under contract to the Air Forces, wear stripes on their lower sleeves to indicate rank, in addition to shoulder bars.

And in place of the Army shield on visored caps, A. T. C. men wear distinctive upswept wings surmounted by the initials of the command. Otherwise they are thoroughly Army in appearance.

The world at large knows little of their operations because most of it is secret. But contractor air lines have trained their own men and newcomers in the complicated "know-how" of transoceanic flights.

Theirs, earned the hard way, is the Kitty Hawk Memorial Emblem worn on shoulder loops: "Achieved by dauntless resolution and unconquerable faith."

Navy Reports Tucker Dead

Lieut. Comdr. Alfred Bland Tucker, 30, of Winchester, Va., previously said to be missing on October 3, was reported dead by the Navy Department yesterday in an announcement of 11 additional casualties to U. S. naval forces.

The list, which announced 8 dead and 3 missing, include names of one man whose status has changed from missing to safe, three from missing to dead and one from wounded to dead.

This brings to 24,861 the casualties reported by the Navy since Pearl Harbor, including 7159 dead, 4664 wounded and 13,038 missing.

HE'S IN THERE PITCHING!

SEE that strong right arm up above. That's Bill Brown. Not many months ago the hand holding that grenade held a baseball. Not so long ago that strong right arm pitched the best "roundhouse" in the whole town.

Times have changed, but Bill's still pitching. Pitching for all he's worth. Pitching in the greatest battle humanity ever undertook. Pitching for the home team—U. S. A.

THEY GIVE THEIR LIVES, YOU LEND YOUR MONEY

But it takes more than Bill to fight this war . . . even more than ten million "Bills." IT TAKES DOLLARS . . . FIGHTING DOLLARS INVESTED IN WAR BONDS. Dollars to help pitch the enemy to kingdom-come.

What's your score? Sure, you're investing 10% in War Bonds regularly, but it's the EXTRA Bonds you buy that count today. Invest all you can now . . . today! Uncle Sam needs your support.

This is the Honor Roll of Cal-Aero, Mira Loma and Polaris Flight Academies—the names of 249 graduates who have been acclaimed for valor above and beyond the call of duty since Pearl Harbor. There are even more names which should appear with these superb pilot-heroes of the Army Air Forces, but of whose exploits, due to difficulties of wartime transportation, we have not yet learned.

"ABOVE AND BEYOND THE CALL OF DUTY"

Typical of the 249 gripping and poignant stories of masterful military piloting by our hero graduates whose names appear on the Honor Roll of these schools are the following samples, picked at random.

C. W. SAWYER won the D.S.C., Purple Heart, Air Medal, Silver Star Medal, the British D.F.C., the Chinese Cloud Banner Medal, personally presented by Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, and the wings of the Chinese Air Force, personally presented by the Generalissimo. He is credited with 20 victories, 12 probable and eight confirmed. He served with the A.V.G. "Flying Tigers" and with Col. Bob Scott's Fighter Command in China.

Over Canton while Sawyer was leading a small force of fighters, escorting bombers, beyond the call of duty after his mission was performed, he attacked without hesitation a superior force of Jap fighters, shooting one down in flames and probably destroying two others. He then rallied his small flight and returned safely to base without loss.

A. T. HOUSE, JR., won the D.S.C. for a flight during which he shot down a Japanese Zero fighter. Then, with guns jammed, he saw another fighter on the tail of his squadron commander's airplane. He swerved to drag a wing of his ship through the cockpit of the fighter Zero and cut it in half. He returned safely to his base with four feet of his own wing missing.

G. S. WELCH. In the attack on Hawaii of December 7th, Lt. Welch shot down a Japanese ship after a battle over the pineapple fields of Wahiawa, landed and refueled, went up again and shot down three bombers. He landed with a bullet hole in the propeller; one in the motor, and one just behind the pilot's seat. For this quadruple victory he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

P. H. DANIELS. Piloting a fighter ship escorting bombers in a raid on a Jap invasion port in China, Lt. Daniels observed several Jap Zeros approaching and dove into them. Coming out with three enemy ships on his tail, he evaded two of them, then turned headlong into the third and with two bursts of machine gun fire apparently hit the Jap's engine, the ship crashing into a mountain. The bombing raid which was able to continue as a result of the dispersal of the Zeros was described by Col. Haynes (commanding bombardment in China) as the best he ever made.

In another action during a raid on Lashio a machine gun bullet struck within eight inches of Daniels' head. Infuriated by what he considered this exhibition of impudence, he dove on the machine gun post and strafed it; then dove on two Jap ships on the ground and destroyed both. Award of the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Order of the Purple Heart and the Silver Star Medal to Lt. Daniels was announced coincidentally with another exploit in which, 300 miles above Burma over the China jungles, his right shoulder was pierced by a bullet and his radio cord severed by another bullet. With his right arm useless, Lt. Daniels, who was squadron leader, led his flight safely back to base, flying with his left hand and making a perfect landing despite loss of considerable blood. Subsequently, he was awarded the Air Medal. His home is Van Nuys, Calif.

W. L. DINN had the distinction of bringing back the first Jap Zero pilot captured alive since the beginning of the battle of Guadalcanal. After victories over two Japanese float planes and a transport, and having set afire a large Jap gasoline dump, Dinn was shot down in a jungle on one of the Solomon Islands. Here he found the Jap officer; captured him, and brought him back prisoner.

G. MAHONEY. The citation accompanying Lt. Mahoney's Distinguished Service Cross awarded for action in the Philippines reads, in part: "Lt. Mahoney volunteered for a vital night mission December 10 in thick weather, during a complete ground blackout and in the face of severe ground fire from strongly held positions. Lt. Mahoney secured information which was needed for a subsequent successful bombing attack. Again on the following day, returning from escorting a bomber mission near Legaspi in which he destroyed an enemy flying boat and strafed an enemy-held radio station, this pilot displayed exceptional courage, performing the highly dangerous feat of landing his airplane with bombs hanging from an improperly-functioning bomb release in preference to bailing out."

This officer again was mentioned in dispatches when he led a raid on Lashio in which pilots under his command shot down at least two Zeros and probably accounted for a third, despite the fact that the Japs had their backs to the sun.

E. H. EPPERSON. Flying on a photographic mission off the Atlantic coast of the United States, Lt. Epperson spotted an enemy submarine on the surface. He made four runs over the submarine, dropping a depth charge each time from only 100 feet altitude. The first two were direct hits on the conning tower, crippling the vessel and enabling Epperson to completely destroy it.

T. A. BURDA was pilot of a B-17 Flying Fortress which attacked Rabaul in an effort to cripple Japanese shipping being used in the Solomon Islands. He and his crew were forced to blast their way through a protective screen of Zeros to reach the target area, continually fought off more Zeros while they released their bombs and returned safely to their home base, being credited with shooting down four Zeros and sinking or damaging four surface ships. Lt. Burda was awarded the Silver Star Medal.

B. L. JOHNSON. Commanding a squadron of medium bombers, this officer is mentioned in dispatches as "carrying out devastating raids against Japanese bases" in the New Guinea theatre, the raids being described as "the heaviest type of assults with thousands of pounds of bombs finding their mark on airdromes and fuel dumps; in one instance, flames reaching hundreds of feet were left in the wake of the bombers and smoke billowed skyward for more than a thousand feet." Lt. Johnson's ship and crew are credited with a number of victories over Zeros who sought to drive them off, some of the Zeros having been destroyed.

W. G. BENNETT was awarded the Silver Star Medal by General MacArthur for action wherein he took up a fighter ship during a Jap raid; engaged four Zeros simultaneously, destroying one; then made a successful forced landing.

J. S. MOREHEAD was awarded the D.S.C. at an advanced operational base in Australia for action. In a subsequent action, Lt. Morehead led his flight into a Jap raiding party of nearly 50 bombers and fighters attacking Port Darwin. He got two of them personally, bringing his total victories to seven. His flight accounted for 13 of the invaders and won a complete victory which was characterized as "one of the worst defeats of one air squadron by another on record."

H. E. JOHNSON. Fighters under command of this officer accompanied B-17 Fortresses in an attack on the Tunis airfield; dispersed all German fighter airplanes they encountered; and left at least 12 enemy planes burning on the field. Award of the Air Medal subsequently was announced.

C. B. WALKER was a member of the crew of a flying fortress attacking and also photographing enemy-held Wake Island. Challenged by six Japanese fighter ships, the bomber shot down four of them and returned safely to base with three bullet holes in the airplane. Subsequently Lt. Walker was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for "A dangerous mission over enemy territory" involving "extraordinary heroism and valorous conduct" in connection with the Battle of Midway. He also saw action in the attack of December 7, 1941 on Hawaii.

V. W. LUSK, R. N. CARLTON, W. J. HOELLE, T. J. MORRIS. These officers, operating from a base in North Africa, were credited with proving the fighting ability of the P-38. Lusk was mentioned as having destroyed five enemy aircraft; Carlton, two; and Hoelle and Morris one each. Award of D.F.C. and Air Medal to Lt. Hoelle subsequently was announced.

W. A. SMITH was pilot of a lone American Flying Fortress which battled 6 Zeros for thirty minutes over Rabaul, destroyed two of them and returned to its base with 16 bullet holes in its stabilizer, none of the crew being injured.

AMERICA'S HOME TOWN BOYS MAKE GOOD!

JOIN THE AIR FORCES

This is a tribute to "the kid from home" and to the nation from which he springs.

It is a story of your boy and mine—of boys, and men, from the next house, the next street or the next town, whose skill, courage and devotion to duty in battle lines and on the home front are writing one of the greatest epics of our time.

In mortal combat high in the sky over distant shores, or right here in our midst, training and helping to train others for the grim tasks ahead—they are the countless heroes of a nation fighting for freedom and for its way of life.

In the air or on the ground, in classrooms or in the shops, these boys, their instructors and fellow-workers are the common denominator of democracy at war.

We're proud of the heroes whose names are listed above, proud of the system and teamwork that made them possible and of the organizations they represent and honor. Army-inspired, Army-approved, these civilian-operated schools are teaching America's youth to fight America's battles by training thousands of pilots for the Army Air Forces, pilots such as those "kids from home" whose names are engraved on our Honor Roll and in the hearts and imaginations of their countrymen.

Thousands of these courageous, highly-skilled pilots, and thousands of equally skilled mechanics needed to keep our combat planes fit and ready, have come and will continue to come from civilian-operated schools such as Cal-Aero, Mira Loma and Polaris Flight Academies and Curtiss Wright Technical Institute.

The revolutionary step of Army Air Force-training by civil schools was not taken arbitrarily nor arrogantly as a dictator would have done, but in a fine spirit of mutual trust and helpful cooperation. The procedure was as American as Main Street, symbolic of national unity.

Vision and understanding on the part of General H. H. Arnold, Chief of the U. S. Army Air Forces, and of his training staff headed by General Barton K. Yount, made possible this American system of teamwork when, in 1939, they contracted with carefully selected civilian pilot and mechanic schools to assist in the vital expansion program. By this expedient great numbers of pilots and mechanics were efficiently trained at a period when every available Army officer was urgently needed for purely military duties. Faith in the American way of solving problems thus proved a tremendous impetus for the training program at a time when it was most needed. It brought scores of new schools, flying fields and essential organizations into existence. It expanded the home training front without delaying activities in the theatres of war.

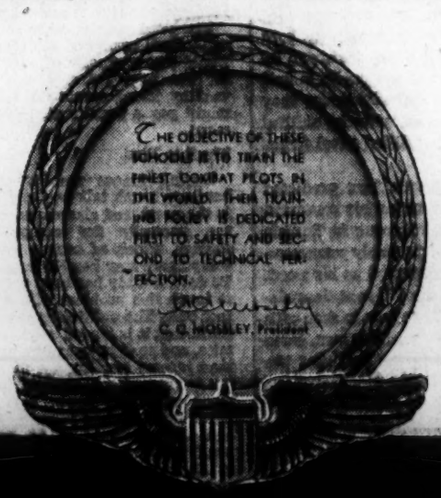
Our schools look upon the opportunity to train these boys as a sacred trust. We and the Air Force know and never forget that we are first of all dealing with precious human lives—the most priceless and irreplaceable single factors in war. We are poignantly aware of our responsibility to the mothers and fathers who send the "kids from home" to us. Working together—civil schools and Army Air Forces—we have been enabled materially to build-up and strengthen the all-important safety factor. For example, in World War I, the average hours flown in AEF training per fatality, was 1,146. By 1939, military training programs of this sort had to contemplate only one fatality in approximately 16,000 hours of flying. Now with improved technique and perfect team-work we have slashed that ratio to about one in every 176,000 hours of flying—and we're determined to bring it even lower. All of us—instructors, mechanics, maintenance personnel, truck drivers and kitchen help—have but one goal of safety, efficiency, and economy. To this ideal we shall remain true.

The splendid spirit of wanting to see a job well done; eagerness to help in making every day a stepping-stone toward ultimate victory; determination to avoid discord and to achieve harmony in our relations one with the other, these things characterize the common and accepted attitude at our schools. We are all happy and proud in the realization that work stoppages and absenteeism have not once impeded or interferred with our war effort.

In common with other of these schools, we have carried out our assignments at great saving to the Government. In 1940, high ranking Army officials testified before Congress that vast sums in training costs were being saved through utilization of the civil schools. Their highest expectations of safety, efficiency, and savings have been abundantly realized, since, by frequent voluntary reductions and re-negotiation of contracts, we have still further reduced costs until today we are training pilots at about 20 percent of the former Army cost. Let's put it this way—we are saving the taxpayers some $43.00 per flying hour, and we fly hundreds of thousands of hours each year.

President Roosevelt's timely vision of an unbeatable aerial armada for freedom's fighters everywhere, gradually is taking shape. From the very outset of the difficult and huge expansion program our output of well trained pilots has never once lagged. In paying tribute to the graduates whose names appear on the Honor Roll of our schools, and to the thousands of other graduates and students eager to carry on "above and beyond the call of duty", we rededicate ourselves to the job of seeing this thing through to a victorious end, and to do it with devotion and pride in the knowledge that we are part of a great American victory team.

We, of course, shall continue to play our part as an adjunct to the Army Air Force, looking upon our opportunity as a privilege. If further proof of the supreme excellence of this civil school-Army Air Force training combination were needed, we might modestly but proudly cite the fact that it already has been written in the skies over Hawaii, the Philippines, China, Coral Sea, Midway, New Guinea, Australia, France, Germany, Burma, Alaska and North Africa. One of "our own boys" shot down the first Jap plane over Pearl Harbor; another blasted four Jap planes on his first combat flight; eleven of our graduates flew with General Jimmy Doolittle when Tokyo was bombed.



THE OBJECTIVE OF THESE SCHOOLS IS TO TRAIN THE FINEST COMBAT PILOTS IN THE WORLD. THEIR TRAINING POLICY IS DEDICATED FIRST TO SAFETY AND SECOND TO TECHNICAL PERFECTION.
C. C. MOSELEY, President

TEAM-WORK

He's a product of highly specialized training—this Combat Pilot! The finished article is achieved through close cooperation between the schools and the Army Air Forces. We teach fundamentals—the Air Force builds the superstructure. We instruct in the art of flying and in the basic principles of handling an airplane safely, intelligently and competently. We school the cadet thoroughly in the handling of his ship, make flying under varying conditions second nature, in short, develop a skilled, confident, experienced flying man. Then the Army Air Force takes over. The cadet is groomed for War. He's taken from a training plane and put into a high-powered war plane. He's given advanced, intensive training in the understanding and actual use of combat-type aircraft, taught the practical advantages of instrument flying, perfected in aerial gunnery, learns from fellows who themselves have been through the mill—invaluable fighting technique. When one of these fine American youths eventually climbs into the cockpit of a war plane and goes out to meet German or Jap airmen, you can bet all the tea in China he's fit and ready as only Army Air Force training can make him.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

We are in position now to offer real opportunities to a limited number of conscientious men and women who sincerely want to help in the nation's war effort. If you are draft-exempt and want to have a part in the vital job assigned to these schools, your application will be given immediate consideration.

Weekends at Home

As a summer resort Washington has been exceeded in fame by a number of communities. Captious critics have been known to call its climate in July and August warm, or even sultry. Those who could do so have generally fled from the Potomac for their midsummer weekends.

But the Capital's popularity as a resort will undoubtedly show a sharp upswing this summer. Weekend jaunts for pleasure have been sternly frowned upon by the Office of Defense Transportation. "It is imperative," said ODT Director Eastman, "that civilians who can stay off trains and buses, do so." On a gallon and a half of gasoline a week, Washingtonians are unlikely to drive their cars very far afield; the beaches of the Eastern Shore and the cool heights of the Skyline Drive seem definitely taboo.

Since the transportation facilities are needed for war purposes, we shall simply have to make the best of it. We shall stay at home—and perhaps we'll even learn to like it. If we put a good face upon it, we may be able to turn Washington into a Mecca for summer vacationists of future years.

Phillips Mission

William Phillips, President Roosevelt's special envoy to India, would have been remiss in his duty had he failed to make an effort to see Gandhi and Nehru. And in a real sense it is unfortunate that permission to visit and talk to these imprisoned Nationalist leaders was not granted by the Indian government. Yet under existing circumstances the British can hardly be blamed for taking the stand they did. A visit by Mr. Phillips to Gandhi and Nehru would probably have been interpreted throughout the length and breadth of India as an indication that the United States was ready to intervene in the Indian situation. It might, therefore, have revived the bitter controversy that led the Indian government to jail the Nationalist leaders last year, and provoked a revival of disturbances harmful to the war effort.

Evidently the British are content to let sleeping dogs lie. Whether or not such a policy is wise in the long run, there can be little doubt that the Indian situation is less disturbed today than it was a year ago. At the same time statesmanship would dictate a continuous effort to prepare India for self-government. Several steps could be taken: More Indianization of the Viceroy's Council and other organs of Indian government and an encouragement of studies of constitution-making upon which one day the people of India must embark. It is encouraging to know that Mr. Leopold Amery, Secretary of State for India, is considering these and other interim measures.

Coal Deadlock

In meeting the coal crisis, the Government must achieve two goals: It must uphold, unequivocally, the President's hold-the-line order; and at the same time it must make the coal miners understand the justice, the wisdom and the absolute necessity of a settlement within the framework of this order. Failure in regard to the former would undermine the anti-inflation program. Failure in regard to the latter would result in a tragic wartime strike, injurious to production and likely to embitter labor relations for years to come.

The danger of a strike has been augmented by the intransigeance of the coal operators, on the one hand, and by the irresponsibility and the demagoguery of John L. Lewis on the other. Because the operators refused even to consider a practicable and flexible solution proposed by the Secretary of Labor, the case nas now gone to the War Labor Board. And Mr. Lewis, grotesquely burlesquing Achilles, has chosen to sulk in his New York hotel room rather than defend his claims before a responsible Federal agency which he once nonsensically denounced as "a packed court against labor."

The WLB must, therefore, compel a settlement. While it may be able, through Miss Perkins' formula or some other means, to effect some improvement in the mine workers' earnings without violating the hold-the-line order, it will clearly not be able to grant anything approaching the exorbitant demands which John Lewis has made and which he has led his miners to expect. Obviously, Lewis himself cannot be counted upon to help at all in persuading the miners to accept the imperatives of inflation control. The Government, consequently, must undertake this job.

The Government must make it absolutely plain to the miners that if they strike against a settlement reached by the WLB they will be striking, not against conditions imposed upon them by their employers, but against conditions imposed upon them by their Government and by the hard necessities of war. The Government must begin at once patiently to explain to the miners the A B C's of the inflation problem and the compelling reasons which make it impossible to grant their demands—or at least the demands which John Lewis has voiced for them. President Roosevelt himself should talk to them directly, not merely in his official capacity, but as a proven friend entitled to their confidence. He must induce the miners to follow his leadership instead of John Lewis'.

Preventing a coal strike is infinitely preferable to breaking it. For the quelling or coercing of strikers who are aggrieved and disaffected can never serve to enlist their full energy and devotion for the war effort. A strike is threatened because of the irresponsibility of the spokesmen on either side of the controversy. It can be averted through the prompt assumption of responsibility by the Federal Government.

War Of Nerves

Hitler is now getting a double dose of the war of nerves which he inflicted upon the countries now belonging to the United Nations both before and after he started military hostilities. We are keeping him guessing as to where the blow or blows will fall after the southern shore of the Mediterranean has been cleared of the Axis. Judging from his pressure upon Bulgaria, he fears a thrust through the Balkans, where the Allies have, in Yugoslavia, an army already fighting. Now the Allies have turned the spotlight of this war of nerves to Scandinavia. There seems no other purpose in our Government's threat to break off relations with Finland than to make Hitler worry about what is cooking in northern Europe.

The Nazi men on the spot in Scandinavia have been worrying about the shape of things to come for sometime past. In Norway a state of tension is reported in the army of occupation. At more than one port agitated guards have shot off their rifles at innocent Norwegians. In Swedish waters an incident has been created by Nazi firing on a Swedish submarine. It is hardly reasonable that the Nazis should be anxious to push the half million superbly equipped and well-trained Swedish army into war against them. The theory is much more tenable that guns have a habit of going off in an excitable situation. It would seem that the opening of our diplomatic offensive against Finland is an effort still further to perplex and befuddle the Nazis as to our intentions. The incident is a testimony to the diplomatic initiative which we must sustain alongside our military initiative.

There is, of course, a more defensive explanation of the threat against Finland. It is felt that the Finns are under great pressure from Berlin to launch an offensive against Russia. Perhaps the Russians themselves have expressed the fear that this pressure might be successful. In that event our threat could be interpreted as a counterbalancing maneuver intended to intimidate the Finns into keeping out of formal alliance with the Axis. Such a theory, however, seems to have little to commend it. If Hitler could not get the Finns into the Axis when he was riding high, how can he be expected to win them now that his fortunes are so low?

Yet the effect of the threat against Finland from both the Axis and the Allies is to put her into a tug-of-war. This she has striven hard to avoid. Diplomatically she has just purged her cabinet of the solitary Fascist element, and ousted a Foreign Minister who had leanings toward Germany. After this housecleaning she felt that she had removed a sore spot in Finnish-American relations. Toward Russia she felt she had come to the stage of a standstill war. Doubtless the Finns would welcome peace with Moscow on terms that would safeguard their independence and their territorial integrity inside the pre-1939 frontiers. But it takes two to make a peace, and Moscow doesn't seem anxious on these terms to close the books with Finland. In default the policy at Helsinki seems to have been to insulate the Finnish war with Russia against contact with the greater war.

It would be a miracle if any such policy were successful. To keep life anywhere on this planet, let alone a war, a thing apart from the cosmic clash with Japo-Hitlerism is to attempt the impossible. Sooner or later the fortress of Europe will reverberate with the collision of mighty forces. In other words, if a choice of sides is not now being directly put up to Finland, one of these days it seems bound to be. Thus the Finns would do well to follow the Cromwellian motto and "look to the end." A United Nations victory is now inescapable. What, then, for Finland, with Russia one of the victors? Let Finland bear in mind that the United Nations are intent not only upon crushing Hitler but also in insuring a lasting peace. And a lasting peace will depend upon the maintenance of solidarity among the United Nations. Our Government should strive with might and main to bring about some understanding between the Finns and Moscow. At the same time it must be made plain to Helsinki that nothing so quixotic can be expected of Washington as to remain the friend of an intransigent Finland in the days when the victors assemble around the conference table.

Black Markets

There is no single cure for inflation. Whenever the swollen current of purchasing power is dammed at one point, it tends to overflow its bounds at another. The President's recent order clamping a lid on prices gives assurance that the cost of living will remain stable—so far as the legitimate markets of the country are concerned. But in view of the excess funds now in the pockets of the American people, it adds to the danger that illegitimate markets will spring up and flourish.

According to Commerce Department estimates, the national income in 1943 will be some 40 billions of dollars greater than the value of consumer goods and services available to the public. This vast amount of money can be put to only two uses; It can be saved for the future, or it can be expended in black markets. The latter course would constitute a form of inflation even more dangerous to the national welfare than open and acknowledged increases in the cost of living.

This black-market danger has never been clearly dramatized for the American public. Because of this failure, reputable and well-meaning citizens may indulge in bootleg purchases without any real awareness of the implications which lie behind such transactions. One of the tragic inheritances of the Volstead era is a tolerance for this sort of under-the-counter violation of the law. By calling the new saboteurs "meat-leggers" the authorities are merely inviting a return to the old tolerance.

The law against black markets is one that can be enforced only if it has the militant support of an aroused and enlightened public opinion. It can be made effective only if people everywhere come to recognize black-market trading for what it really is—a sabotaging of the national economy. The merchant and the customer who engage in it are equally guilty of pilfering the limited resources to be apportioned equitably among all the people of the country.

Every means at the disposal of the Government's vast publicity machine should be devoted to making these facts known to the people and understood by them. This is an information job above the taunt of propaganda. It is one, moreover, in which non-governmental agencies and all the media of information can be counted upon to join wholeheartedly. It must be conducted not only in the press and over the air but at the community level, through trade unions, chambers of commerce, women's clubs and the whole network of American voluntary associations. It is not enough to make black-market dealing criminal; the important thing is to make it shameful.

Silent Service

The shooting down during recent days of large numbers of German transport planes engaged in ferrying essential supplies to and specialized personnel out of Tunisia is indicative of the increasing difficulty the Axis is having with its Mediterranean supply problem. It was to be expected that Hitler would employ transport planes as well as surface vessels to supply the Axis forces in Tunisia. The fact that he has had to depend so very largely on air transport shows what a heavy toll has been taken of Axis shipping by the Allied naval forces under the command of Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham.

Day after day Allied, principally British, submarines and surface craft have sunk Axis transports, supply ships and escort vessels engaged in moving and convoying men, food and munitions to Tunisia. The narrow Sicilian Strait has become a veritable death trap for Axis shipping. Indeed, according to Robert P. Patterson, Undersecretary of War, fully 50 per cent of Axis shipping, both air and sea, is at present being destroyed by our air attacks. But while the public is well aware of the work of Allied airmen they are not so well acquainted with the skillful and intrepid labors of the Allied naval forces in the Mediterranean.

Long ago Admiral Cunningham predicted that the men and ships under his command would make an Axis Dunkerque in Tunisia an extremely costly and probably unsuccessful affair. He has been as good as his word. At a time when, because of U-boat depredations in the Atlantic, we are face to face with a serious shipping problem of our own, some comfort is to be found in the fact that the Axis shipping problem in the Mediterranean is even more acute and is growing steadily worse. For this the "silent service" of which Admiral Cunningham is in charge under General Eisenhower's general direction is largely responsible.

BENEDICTION

Songs that a breath can hold
For a moment's space,
But then commits to the cold
And last embrace
Of air . . . of nothing heard,
Return
. . . not in the word,
Not the song's measured pace—
But where day wears an old
And gentle face,
From some invisible fold
Of silence and air,
The lonely loiterer, there,
Knows an anonymous grace
Descending upon that place.

Compulsory Savings

By H. van Zandt

Bar To Inflation

EVERYBODY SEEMS to be worried about the danger of inflation. Various inflationary prospects are discussed by experts in the newspapers and magazines every day. Congress seems to be at its wits' end about how to handle this bugaboo.

The danger seems to be obvious enough. National inocme is at an unprecedentedly high level, while the amount of available merchandise is drastically restricted. A way must be found to absorb surplus spending money—absorb it into harmless channels so that commodity prices will not be disturbed by competitive bidding.

One way to absorb this excess is to collect it through the levying of income tax. This method is being employed now to just about the limit that the traffic will bear. The profit motive must not be destroyed, because a man will not work to earn a dollar unless he is privileged to keep a reasonable portion of that dollar.

Bonds and Taxes

About the only other way to absorb excess money is to induce or enforce people to put their surplus into savings, and to hold those savings. The most satisfactory way to do this would be through the purchase of war savings bonds. A drastic increase in the volume of these bonds sold to and retained by the public would give the Government additional cash for war expenditures, relieve the commodity market of potential danger, and permit the Government to tie up bond sales with income tax payments in such a way as to make the two team together to build a tight though flexible barrier against inflation.

We have been trying, in a desultory sort of way, to induce everybody to put 10 per cent of income into war bonds. Perhaps this campaign hasn't been sufficiently successful, perhaps too many bonds have been redeemed, or perhaps 10 per cent should be 20 per cent or some other figure. At any rate, our bond selling campaign so far has not taken the dangerous money, or at least not enough of it, out of circulation.

The question of how to collect this money from the public through increased war bond purchases and making those purchases stick, can be answered in the following manner: Having determined what per cent of his income each income taxpayer should devote to the purchase of war bonds, merely add an appropriate differential for war bonds to each income tax bracket. Then if the taxpayer buys his quota of bonds, his bond charge is deducted from his income tax. If he doesn't buy his bond quota he pays the differential in addition to his regular income tax.

To see how this would work out, let us assume the case of John Smith, who has an annual income of $1500. Also let us assume that it has been determined that 20 per cent (not the current, nominal 10 per cent) of income should be applied to the purchase of war bonds in order to take the necessary amount of money out of circulation. Mr. Smith's quota for bond purchases, therefore, would be $300; or four $100 bonds costing $75 each. An arbitrary amount—perhaps $10 per $100 bond—would be added to his income tax bill. When he pays his income tax he declares his bond purchases, and if they fulfill his quota he pays only his regular amount of tax. If he doesn't buy any bonds, he pays a penalty of $40 for not doing so. If he buys only part of his quota he receives credit accordingly. If he wants to oversubscribe his quota, a modest rate of deduction from his regular income tax might be offered as encouragement. This plan would continue year after year until each issue matured, thus offering a very strong deterrent against redemption prior to maturity.

The same relative basis should apply to all incomes. John Smith would pay a penalty of only $40 for not buying bonds, but his wealthy friend across the tracks might pay a penalty of $4000 or more.

Flexible Plan

During recent months there has been much talk in Congress, in the press, and elsewhere about the necessity for compulsory savings, which of course means compulsory war bond purchases. To date, nobody has been willing to touch this problem with a 10-foot pole. The politicians seem to think that it is loaded with dynamite, and so it is, but no more so than income tax. Surely, income tax is compulsory enough, inasmuch as you are thrown into jail if you don't declare your income, and become subject to salty penalties if you don't pay your tax. Handled in the manner suggested, however, the American people will accept a bond purchase requirement and like it; just as they have accepted and liked the drastically increased income tax that they are going to pay on 1942 incomes (or is it 1943 income, Mr. Ruml?) Yes, John Smith will do his bit without quibbling, be it military service, income tax, or bond purchases. All he needs is assurance that the plan is equitable and that he will be treated just like everybody else.

This proposed plan is just as flexible as income tax itself. Like income tax, it can be adjusted from year to year, with bond purchase requirements and penalties set forth to conform with fiscal requirements and national income. This plan would provide an automatic control for wage increases, which, with the alternate boosts in commodity prices, now provide the spiral to inflation. Wage increases, after income tax requirements, automatically would be diverted largely to bond purchases, and thus would have little effect on commodity prices. The spiral would be checked.

Germany's Allies

By Barnet Nover

Rumblings From The Fortress

ON SEPTEMBER 29, 1918, Bulgaria threw in the sponge and stopped fighting, the first of Germany's World War allies to do so.

The consequences for Germany were serious, far more serious than Bulgaria's relative unimportance as a belligerent might have led one to believe. For Bulgaria's defection was the shadow cast by coming events. That is why it threw the German high command into a state of profound gloom.

"I get the impression," wrote one official after talking with Ludendorff and others at general headquarters, "they have all lost their nerve here."

It was, indeed, the beginning of the end.

NOW, as in 1918, Germany is again suffering from ally trouble. The line-up is different. The problem is the same.

This time Germany's European allies are Italy, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria and Finland plus an assorted lot of quislings of other nationalities.

The contributions these allies have made to the Reich have been considerable.

They have provided Hitler with workers for his factories and farms, cannon fodder for his military adventures and garrison troops for the conquered territories. But all of them are war weary and would like to get out of the war. Yet the defection of any one of these countries would be a heavy blow to Germany; it might even prove to be the stone setting the avalanche in motion. So Hitler has had to spend a great deal of time and a lot of energy keeping his unhappy satellites in line.

AS LONG as Germany is in a position to maintain an adequate number of troops in the satellite states, their war weariness and discontent constitute only a potential rather than an actual danger to the Reich.

However, German manpower is already being spread dangerously thin. Should it become necessary for Hitler to draw on his garrisons in Italy or Finland or the Balkans, what happened in the case of Bulgaria in 1918 may happen again.

It will be recalled in this connection that one of the things that led directly to Bulgaria's defection at that time was the withdrawal, in the spring of 1918, of the German "stiffening" from Bulgaria to reinforce Ludendorff's in the west.

There is no Western Front today. Not yet. But Hitler cannot ignore the possibility that such a front will be established sooner or later. That is why so much of Germany's feverish activity in connection with "Fortress Europe" has been in the direction of plugging the cracks in "the new order" as well as building a wall around it.

OF HITLER'S five European allies, three are directly on or close to the firing line. These are Italy, Bulgaria and Finland.

Italy's danger is greatest. In a matter of weeks the Axis will have been dislodged from its last remaining foothold on African soil and already Italy is beginning to feel the heavy weight of Allied air power.

To prevent an Italian collapse, as well as to prepare against a possible Allied invasion of the peninsula, Germany will have to increase its garrison in Italy. This is inevitable and unavoidable. So Germany faces another drain on her manpower.

BULGARIA'S POSITION is somewhat different. It is probable that Hitler has abandoned his attempt to get Bulgaria to supply troops for the Eastern Front, which she has so far refused to do, but he has redoubled his efforts to secure Bulgaria's promise of assistance in the event of an Allied invasion of the Balkans. The internal situation in Bulgaria is so unstable, however, that the promise he has exacted from King Boris may not be equaled by the Bulgarian performance.

THE FINNISH sector of the war has been static for some time. The Finnish people are war-weary. They realize that their leaders dragged them into a war on what is now clearly the losing side. There is little doubt that the overwhelming majority of them would like to clear out—if they could. Certainly it would be a real gain to the Allies if our pressure on Finland to make a separate peace succeeded.

By the same token it is of tremendous importance to Germany to keep Finland in the war. And the presence of seven German divisions is a reminder to the Finns that they are now the prisoners of their allies.

In the meantime certain provocative measures taken by Germany with respect to Sweden, among them the sinking of a Swedish submarine and the laying of mines in Swedish waters, actions which the Swedish government has strongly protested, suggest that far from being averse to having Sweden join the ranks of her enemies Hitler is actually courting that possibility.

Another Nazi campaign in Scandinavia might force Allied strength to concentrate in still another peripheral area and thus postpone for many months the opening of a second front in Western Europe. And in view of the large number of troops he already has in Norway and in Finland Hitler might not have to divert to such a Scandinavian front troops which he now has scattered over the continent and which enable him to keep his wavering allies in line.

Eugenic Legislation

Norway, before World War II broke, was noted for its progress in understanding the mechanics of eugenics. This little kingdom, years ago, appropriated government funds to maintain the Windern Laboratorium. Under the leadership of that brilliant eugenist, Dr. Jan Mjoen, said institution was organized to criticize, from a scientific standpoint, the biological effect upon Norway's population, of all proposed legislation.

At the International Eugenics Conference at The Hague, Dr. Mjoen explained the value of this. He used as an example one single proposed law; Norway's rural rehabilitation act. This was a "back-to-the farm" measure. The Windern Laboratorium reminded the people of democratic Norway that there, as in U. S. A., the cities were relatively sterile. The farm birth rate not only maintained the rural population, but largely compensated the race suicide of the urban areas.

Therefore to check the fall of intelligence to Norway, phenomena already also evident in Britain, in U. S. A., Dr. Mjoen advised that the rural rehabilitation act be amended. He proposed it should include intelligence tests of young couples proposing moving from cities back to the farm. Their parents also were to be tested, and, when possible, their other relatives. Thus could be set into motion among humans the same artificial selection as has been employed in improving the stock of race horses, cattle, sheep, poultry, wheat, corn, roses.

Few grasp how quickly such artificial selection works. The Burbank potato, within 10 years, displaced many inferior varieties. Among humans, great change can come within a few generations. There is probably today no greater opportunity among statesmen than for someone with vision to grasp the possibilities of eugenic legislation. EUGENE H. PITTS, M. D.

Draft Decisions

To judge from the comment one hears in the street, few elements have been so destructive of national morale as the vacillation and constant mind-changing of War Manpower Commissioner McNutt and Selective Service Director Hershey. No less than five times during the last week, contradictory decisions have been handed to the American people regarding the draft of fathers and men between the ages of 38 and 45. In a time when the American citizen is beset with anxieties concerning food, taxes and a hundred other things; when his sense of security has never been more precarious, it seems an evil thing that they should be tortured by what appears to be the needless and irresponsible utterances of the two politicians charged with the administration of Manpower and Selective Service.

Consider the young man with a wife and children, a small business or a salary or commission job. At one moment he is so near the point of being drafted that a date has been fixed for his induction. One day later, or perhaps even an hour, the date is canceled and he is told that he is to be deferred because of a new decision by Mr. McNutt or Mr. Hershey, or perhaps both. The next day again he is told that he may be called by July 1, and to get ready. A day later he is informed that no one knows when he is likely to be called.

Consider what this means to him—that he must give up his job or small business and try to make arrangements for the future of his family. He may have debts. He has life insurance to pay. He may have parents or a sister, as well as his own family, to think of. And there is the human mental torture which has to do with love and affection and anxiety and family ties. But he is tossed up and down, refused even the opportunity of the relief which comes of a definite decision that would permit him to put his house in order and accept honorably his duties as a soldier.

The Selective Service director has issued no figures upon the number of draft board members who have resigned throughout the United States and have been replaced by reluctant volunteers. In some cases, whole draft boards have resigned in disgust, finding that the contradicting and irresponsible utterances of McNutt and Hershey, always issued first to the press and, several days later, as directives to the boards themselves, make it impossible to function without drawing upon their heads derision for an ignorance and indecision which is not theirs, but comes from the very top of our Government.

It would appear that McNutt and Hershey and even the President, are unwilling to face any decision which they consider might be unpopular and cost them votes or, if they make a decision, they become suddenly terrified and nullify it the next day. LOUIS BROMFIELD.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Secret Parley

The profound secrecy with which the International Food Conference at Hot Springs is being surrounded is drawing more attention to it than if it were a wide-open party.

* * * *

A little more shush-shushing and it will get more newspaper space than any event since the last armistice.

* * * *

Just what all the secrecy is about nobody seems to know, but the newspapermen of America and the world are getting less consideration at Hot Springs than the traitorous Jap envoys got after Pearl Harbor.

* * * *

The Japs were put up at the best hotel. The press is not even permitted on the porch. It must meditate on the Four Freedoms, including the freedom of the press, in lesser hotels remote from the conference.

* * * *

But there is one bright hope. The public men of today are so accustomed to newspaper glorification that they may resent the secrecy as much as the press does. It is even possible that a lot of envoys, as soon as they notice the barriers to free publicity, may quit and go home.

* * * *

Maybe it is just an experiment to see how long life can be sustained in public men who are cut off from press and microphone.

* * * *

Of course, there may be some reason for all the star chamber stuff. Maybe Mr. Roosevelt fears the effects when John Jones, having trouble getting a quart of potatoes, runs across a headline, "America Agrees to Feed World." Or the reactions of Mrs. Jones when she is making tripe last two meals and reads the heading, "Asia Told Not to Worry About Food."

* * * *

There is a chance that Mr. Roosevelt knows there is bound to be trouble when dozens of nations meet to discuss food and he wants to keep the quarrels quiet. A report like the following, for instance, wouldn't be helpful:

Hot Springs, Va.—The Food Conference opened here today with a stormy protest by an Asiatic delegate to prevent the United States from introducing the hot dog there, no matter how serious the postwar food shortage might be.

This was followed by a spirited debate between Holland and Portugal over a reported prospect that the American recipe for drugstore clam chowder might be sent to those countries, together with such ingredient as drugstores used in it.

Trouble is looked for at the afternoon session when several South American delegates will again demand assurances that no matter how serious the situation may be, America will protect their peoples from the American dishes known as cheeseburgers.

Jap Portrait

The country that doesn't play the game——
The nation that knows no rules——
The State that smiles as it sets low styles
In fighting a war like ghouls.

The land that leers at a given pledge
And glories in methods black——
The grinning land that can shake your hand
While stabbing you in the back!

The country that scraps the laws of man
And revels in tactics low;
The little jerk that can bow and smirk
While killing a captive foe!

Japan—The rattler that walks like half a man.

New war slogan that may rally Americans as no slogan has so far: "Remember the Tokyo Executoins!"

High war bond purchases defeat low Japs.

Eligible and Eager

I have registered with the draft board in Hyattsville, Md., for nine months and have not as yet received my registration card. I have written them four times asking them to induct me as soon as possible. Having not heard from them since I registered, while attending the University of Maryland, I went to the draft board in Hagerstown and filled out voluntary induction papers, which were sent to my board in Hyattsville. I received a notice from them that I should appear before the draft board in Hagerstown for a blood test. I had the blood test taken four weeks ago and have had no report as to its results.

The draft boards in Hagerstown will not be able to meet their May quota. The men to be taken in the May quota are mostly married men. I do not think it right to take married men as long as there are eligible single men still to be taken. I have done everything I can do to make my draft board conscious that I am still around. I want to go very much and I do not see why I am being ignored.

Aleutians No Sideshow

Hard Fight Ahead

(The following story comparing the future conquest of Kiska and Attu with the American capture of the Solomons, was written by Eugene Burns, veteran correspondent of the Pacific war who, was with United States forces in the South Pacific before being transferred to the Aleutian Front.)

By Eugene Burns
Associated Press Staff Writer

An Advance Base in the Andreanof Islands, Alaska, April 14 (Delayed) (AP).—Don't kid yourself; the Aleutians are no sideshow. Kiska and Attu are tough nuts to crack.

When and if American forces expel the Japanese from this American soil, the price will be American blood.

At Guadalcanal the Japanese were taken by surprise and fled. The beach landings were made with little opposition. Marines were not shot in the water.

At Kiska and Attu the enemy is set. At present Attu is weaker than Kiska—much weaker. But Attu is becoming increasingly strong and its gunfire, pilots report, much heavier.

Reasons why the Japanese will be hard to move:

First, our national policy which apparently is that we must deal with Germany and then Japan. This had made the Pacific essentially a holding front.

Covered With Guns

Second, to dislodge the Japanese at Kiska and Attu means that beach landings must be made. Attu and Kiska beaches are few and they are heavily covered with light and heavy guns. The rest of the island's beaches are cruel, rocky, man-killers. And opposed beach landings always cost blood—lots of it.

Third, the Army has had little experience in opposed beach landings—which require a perfect coordination of land, sea and air forces.

Fourth, the weather, if it follows the Aleutian pattern, will not favor us. It may well prevent accurate surface and air softening. April to date is an example. We are set to dump at least 50 tons of bombs daily. So far this month we have had one such day.

Fifth, the Japanese are ready. It would be difficult to take them by surprise. It is doubtful if we can catch them away from their guns as they were at Guadalcanal August 7. (At Tulagi, Guvuto and Tanambogs, where the enemy had a little advance warning, the Marines suffered their heaviest landing losses.)

Many Tons of Bombs

So far our pilots have dropped millions of pounds of bombs—and drawn perhaps a nosebleed. Bomber pilots reported today that the air was black with ack ack as they flew over Kiska. It is not inconceivable that the cagey Japanese are holding back on their gunfire. It is not good strategy to show the enemy all of your gun emplacements. And surely the Japanese are not shooting with their heavy coastal batteries.

Delegate Anthony Diamond of Alaska asserted last August 31 that 25,000 Japanese were in the Aleutians. That may have been high. A Navy spokesman in reply said there were not more than 10,000. But that was eight and a half months ago.

Some men who know Attu and Kiska by photo and by AA fire are taking bets that if and when American forces make a beachhead on these islands there will be land fighting six months later—the same time it took on Guadalcanal.

N. H. Senate Favors Bar to Third Term

Concord, N. H., April 26 (AP).—The New Hampshire Senate today favored changing the Federal Constitution to prohibit a third term for the President of the United States—and legislative leaders said it was not "directed at anyone."

The senators voted, 14 to 8, to memorialize Congress against a third term and then refused to go on record against a third term for a New Hampshire Governor.

The resolution now goes to the House.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Mr. Hull's False Start

SECRETARY Hull has persuaded the Administration leaders in Congress to take the position that congressional action on the Trade Agreements Act should be made the test case of American foreign policy in the post-war world. There are excellent and compelling reasons for the extension of the act. But the effort to inflate its importance to a point where the fate of the world hangs upon whether Congress may pass on Mr. Hull's agreements is, surely, a grave error.

LIPPMANN

For it is not true that the vote on the amendment proposed by Senator McNary is or can be made the test of our general policy. To say that it is the test, to ask the rest of the world to regard it as the test, is to make much too much out of comparatively little and to have lost our sense of proportion. It is to make the question whether Congress shall have a chance to pass on tariff schedules the crucial question of our own future and of the world's peace. This is not the crucial question, and no good can come of pretending that it is.

THE IMPRUDENCE of posing the biggest issues on a test of this small issue is evident when we remember that if Congress extends this act unamended for two or three years, no Congressman is thereby committed to vote favorably on any treaty or any other measure which may come before him. But if Congress amends the act,—say by providing, as Senator McNary asks, that Congress may within 60 days by majority votes in both houses, disapprove an agreement—if Mr. Hull is "defeated" on this question, then Mr. Hull will spend the rest of the war explaining to this country and to foreign governments that Congress did not really repudiate him and that he still has the power to negotiate. Mr. Hull has, in fact, asked for a vote of confidence on a question where he cannot win, in the sense that he has made sure of the future support of Congress, and where he may suffer a disastrous defeat.

Moreover, by identifying the future of American foreign policy with the very subordinate question of the power of the Executive to alter tariff schedules, Mr. Hull is making it excessively difficult for himself to conduct our foreign relations. Why should the great question of American security be identified with the notion that Congress shall have no voice in making international trade agreements? Why should Congressmen be told that they must decide the issues of peace and war on whether they have a say or do not have a say about the price of cattle, wool and peanuts?

What sense is there in inaugurating the great decisions on the American future by saying to Congress: by your vote on whether the Executive alone may alter tariff schedules, you are committing yourselves on whether the United Nations are to remain united and are to organize the peace of the world; and we shall tell the world that if you insist on having something to say about tariff schedules, then America will not take part in safeguarding it own vital interests by organizing the peace.

THERE ARE, I believe, practical reasons why reciprocal trade agreements are best made by Executive action, though in principle the right of Congress to pass upon them can hardly be disputed, and ought not to be denied. But these reasons are peculiar to the tariff. In Congress the making of tariffs has almost always been a local issue affected by pressure groups, and therefore never planned and carried out in the general national interest. But this very special reason, which alone could justify Mr. Hull's position on the trade agreements, disappears when we come to the larger agreements for security and reconstruction. These will require continuing congressional majorities to sustain them year after year. Our foreign policy will require authorizations, appropriations and legislation to make it effective: it cannot possibly be settled by one grand debate and one dramatic vote.

It is a false start, therefore, to inaugurate our post-war foreign policy by a measure which, instead of including Congress in the complex operation, excludes it. It is probably desirable that Congress should not fuss too much with the trade agreements. But Congress will have to participate in the much more important agreements that are to come, and, therefore, the present procedure for trade agreements is not, and should not be treated as, the precedent for the future.

Senator McNary's proposal is in fact a much better precedent for the future. It gives the Executive the initiative unless majorities in both houses disapprove within a specified time. This is a liberal and flexible procedure, admirably suited to the real problems which lie ahead. For it enables and induces Congress to participate continually in the formation of foreign policy. And unless Congress does participate, unless there are developed dependable congressional majorities to support American foreign policy, we shall not be able to have a foreign policy.

ONCE WE take this view, we shall see, I think, that the basic issue is not whether Congress or the Executive shall decide foreign policy. Mr. Hull has made a serious mistake in posing this issue. The basic issue is whether foreign policy shall be formed and sustained by the President and a majority in both houses of Congress, as Senator McNary proposes, or whether one-third of the membership of one house shall have the veto over the will of the majority.

The veto power of one-third of the Senate is the real obstacle to the conduct of American foreign relations. Under this power a Senator who is against a treaty has two votes whereas a Senator who votes yes has only one vote. No Representative has any vote. Thirty-three Senators, therefore, count more than 63 Senators and 435 Representatives. Thus, as Alexander Hamilton put it, "a pertinacious minority can control the opinion of a majority . . . and . . . the sense of the smaller number will overrule that of the greater."

IT IS HERE, and not over the Executive's sole power to make trade agreements, that the issue will have to be joined. That is where it will be joined if the State Department is making proper preparations for the coming peace. The issue will be joined by following the well-established American precedent of negotiating agreements which come before Congress in a form where they require the approval of majorities in both houses, or come into effect unless disapproved by majorities in both houses. Few, if any of the agreements will, we may hope, come before Congress in the antiquated form of treaties which are subject to the veto of one-third of one house.

The method of majority rule rather than minority veto has an ample, ancient, constitutional foundation. It will no doubt be attacked by a few Senators as an infringement of their special, peculiar prerogatives. But the issue will not be seriously in doubt if the people and if Congress as a whole are asked to choose between the prerogatives of a minority and the rights of the majority to rule.

R.A.F. Pilot Saves Foch's Grandson

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, April 26 (AP).—A grandson of Marshal Foch, Allied commander in chief in the closing months of the first World War, was saved from death by an R. A. F. pilot, it was disclosed authoritatively today.

The grandson, Capt. Becourt Foch, who now is an R. A. F. pilot, was wounded seriously by a cannon shell exploding in his cockpit but he managed to crash land his plane. Weak, from loss of blood, he would have died had not a companion pilot landed beside him in enemy territory and taken him aboard his own plane, it was said.

Captain Foch was flown to his home field and then to Cairo, where his life was saved by several transfusions. He has recovered and is flying again with the British.

7 'Neighbors' Eager to Aid

Wallace Reports

Vice President Henry A. Wallace said yesterday in a report on his trip to seven Latin American countries that the difficulties of the United States in providing shipping were not realized in any country he visited. He returned Sunday after visiting Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Panama and Peru.

Representatives of government, business, labor and agriculture were generally worried about this phase of inter-American relations, "I told them that in a few months it might get worse," Wallace said.

Explaining that it took 10 tons of shipping a month to take care of each of our boys overseas, 15 or 20 in cases of the air boys, Wallace told them that American fathers and mothers thought first of their boys when it came to using shipping, and he said the Latin American leaders "caught the idea."

All Anxious to Help

Increasing food production to decrease import shipping burdens is now being pushed by the Department of Agriculture, BEW, and the State Department, Wallace said. Each country, he said, was anxious to do something to help win the war either in a production or military way.

On the West Coast, where rice and fish dominate diets, a number of countries have not been producing enough food to supply themselves. Lard, and some flour also, have been imported. He said that rice production in some countries had been doubled in the last year and better can be done. Furthermore, Ecuador, a rice-exporting country, has been sending its product to Peru, a rice-importing country, by way of sparing shipping.

If it were not for the shipping situation we probably could help supply food needs to some extent, Wallace said, even though demands next year will be exceptionally great on the part of our armed forces, England and Russia.

We are to get more rubber than we thought, Wallace said, stating that it would be a significant aid to our synthetic rubber program since it still is necessary to mix a certain percentage of pure rubber with the synthetic.

Excellent work is being done in Costa Rica, he said, where experiments with plantation rubber show that it can be produced most economically by the small proprietor.

Wallace flew over the Pan-American Highway and inspected its southernmost limit in Costa Rica.

He said he saw little evidence of Axis propaganda in Latin America, but said he understood Axis propagandists are "doing as much as they can."

Senate Passes Aid to Panama Measure

By the Associated Press

The Senate approved and sent to the White House yesterday legislation ceding to Panama extensive United States holdings in that country — an action President Roosevelt described as desirable to remove conditions "which do not make for confidence and friendship."

The measure, which Senator Nye (Democrat) of North Dakota protested should have been in treaty form, turns over to the republic water and sewerage systems and real estate holdings in the cities of Colon and Panama, and liquidates a $2,700,000 debt representing Panama's share in construction of the Chorrera-Rio Hato Highway.

An identical resolution was passed by the Senate at the last session of Congress but for lack of a quorum was not acted upon by the House until it approved the new measure April 13.

The Senate completed legislative action by a 37 to 19 vote after shouting down a motion by Nye to delay action for two weeks until absent Senators could be present.

Chairman Connally (Democrat) of Texas of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, warning against "haggling in these critical times," declared:

"We've got to recognize Panama's claims to these properties and her willingness to grant us valuable sites."

While Connally and others urged passage of the legislation as promptly and "graciously" as possible to permit ratification by the Panamanian Legislature before adjournment April 30, Nye expressed belief that such haste was desired only to permit the Panamanian lawmakers "to show the folks back home how they wriggled out a gift from Uncle Sam."

Wartime Washington

By Merlo Pusey

Aftermath To A Shotgun Wedding

PUBLIC WRATH over the threat of a coal strike is properly directed at John L. Lewis. In the midst of the greatest test to which this country has been subjected Mr. Lewis is defying public authority and threatening to cripple war industry as a means of strengthening his own power. But the fault is not entirely on the head of the United Mine Workers' little czar. A great deal of it falls upon public officials who opened and kept open the door through which this ruthless opportunist could ride rough-shod over the national interest.

PUSEY

The hope of changing the attitude of John L. Lewis seems to have been nil since the beginning of the emergency. Yet the Administration has followed a policy of placating and appeasing him. Mr. Lewis has been encouraged to believe that he could bull his way through any showdown with the Government, and no legislation has been enacted to make it plain to him that he could not. To be sure, the President has proclaimed policies which he has asked Mr. Lewis and all other leaders of labor and industry to respect. But the little dictator of U. M. W. has discovered that these policies often prove to be a flimsy reed which can be bent to the accomplishment of his aims.

Now Mr. Lewis is defying the War Labor Board as "a court packed against labor." That, of course, is a ridiculous charge. The fact is that the WLB was created with the aid of the union for which Mr. Lewis speaks. Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, was one of the original members of the WLB and he continued to serve until last month when Mr. Lewis began his campaign for an inflationary wage increase that would upset the entire stabilization program. Having helped to impose the policies of the WLB on many other unions and employers, the U. M. W. is certainly not now in a position to resist the application of WLB policy to itself.

But Mr. Lewis is not disturbed by the lack of any such trivial considerations as logic, consistency and fair play in his program. He sees only that the WLB is a flimsy anchor for a national labor policy in wartime. So he has apparently set out to destroy it as he destroyed its predecessor. The real tragedy of the situation is that the board is vulnerable in this sort of attack.

THE WLB was not erected on a solid foundation of law. It came into being shortly after Pearl Harbor as the result of an agreement between the President and labor leaders. There had been an attempt to secure an agreement between a picked group of industrial and labor leaders. But the conference ran into a stalemate on the closed-shop issue. The employers would not consent to compulsory arbitration of disputes on the closed shop, although they were willing to accept the final decision of a war labor board on all other questions. Labor insisted that all disputes between employers and employes be subject to the jurisdiction of the proposed board. When no agreement could be reached the President ordered the employers to accept the settlement which he favored. The employers did so with a clear statement of the fact that they were acting only at the President's direction.

In any event, this handful of employers had no power to negotiate for or to make any agreement in behalf of industry as a whole. So it is farcical to say that there was any agreement between industry and labor. At least it was a shotgun marriage. But even if there had been an agreement, the board would still be at the mercy of private interests able to wreck it by withdrawing their members. Moreover, it has no background of legislative policy that can be legitimately reported as the law of the land, except the general restrictions on wage increases contained in the Stabilization Act of last October.

SO THE Government bears a large share of the responsibility for the crisis which John L. Lewis has precipitated. Remember, too, that in the last showdown between the White House and Mr. Lewis he was given precisely what he wanted. President Roosevelt had declared that the Government would never force men to join a union against their will. But instead of enforcing that sound principle, he permitted Mr. Lewis to break up the National Defense Mediation Board. Then a representative of the Labor Department awarded Lewis a closed shop in the so-called captive mines through arbitration. It is extremely unpatriotic but it is not illogical in these circumstances for Mr. Lewis to assume that he can once more twist the Administration around his finger.

The disconcerting fact is that, after a year and a half of war, the Government does not yet have an adequate means of meeting crisis of this sort. If Mr. Lewis continues to defy the WLB, how will any decision reached in the absence of the mine workers be enforced? Of course, the President can send troops to the mines to break up any general strike. That would be a drastic remedy—a heavy price to pay for failure to set up a labor board on a sound footing of legislation. And even that last resort might fail to produce the desired results. For the objective to be sought is not the negative one of preventing violence at the mines. Rather it is the continuous mining of coal. Troops could break picket lines but they couldn't send the miners back to work if they refused to go.

Weakness in wartime on either the home front or the fighting front is a dangerous policy. It is dangerous precisely because it permits disputes fraught with deep emotions to reach a crisis before they are effectively dealt with. A sound labor and wage policy with a legislative foundation would doubtless have prevented the present emergency from arising. But in any event, the perils of trying to deal with men like John L. Lewis through a mere shotgun wedding at the White House should now be clearly apparent.

Grew Warns Of Jap Peril

Leaders Plan Invasion

Schnectady, N. Y., April 26 (AP).—Japan's militarists nurse an "overwhelming ambition" to invade and conquer the United States, Joseph C. Grew, former Ambassador to Tokyo, declared today.

They must be crushed, he said in a prepared address at Union College's commencement, not only to save the United States, but to free the Japanese people from bondage.

Grew, a special assistant to Secretary of State Hull, praised "the contribution of loyal Americans of Japanese origin."

Union College conferred honorary degrees on 12 persons, including Grew, Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York; Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, chief of the Army's Service Forces; Senator Walter F. George (Democrat), Georgia; Cecil Brown, radio news commentator, and Edward Johnson, director of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Grew said "without hesitation or reserve," and "our country, our cities, our homes, are in dire peril from the overweening ambition . . . of that Japanese military machine—a power that renders Japan potentially the strongest nation in the world . . ." He said the record showed a determination eventually to invade and conquer the United States.

"The Japanese people themselves," Grew observed, "have become the slaves of their own army, gendarmerie and police."

Judd Utters Warning

Dr. Walter H. Judd, Republican Representative from Minnesota and former resident of the Far East, said yesterday "the Japanese warlords murdered the American fliers who participated in the Tokyo raid in an effort to break the American will to resist."

"By these executions," he said, "they were aiming at the American home, our mothers and our wives."

"Japan," said Dr. Judd, a former medical missionary, "feels she has but two avenues through which she hopes to defeat America.

"One, is through destroying our ability to resist an attack by air. The other is by destroying our will to resist. These comprise the double-barreled shotgun Japan possesses to fight us.

"Japan's military masters know they cannot successfully oppose our air might, once our ever-expanding production is turned against them. The execution of our fliers was a charge from their other gunbarrel—a stab at our will to resist."

Declaring "our high command has not been revealing the whole truth to us," he added:

"Instead it is withholding news revealing the full extent of the gravity of the situations we face. The command is acting as if we couldn't take it, with the result public confidence in our high command is not what it should be."

Roosevelt Nominates 3 Rear Admirals

Two Washington naval officers—both veterans of the war at sea—were designated rear admirals yesterday by President Roosevelt, who sent their names to the Senate.

They are:

CHANDLER

Capt. Theodore E. Chandler of 2811 Albemarle Street Northwest and Capt. Walter P. Kilpatrick of 1818 Twenty-fourth Street Northwest.

A third Navy captain, Glenn B. Davis of Norwalk, Ohio, was also nominated a rear admiral by the President.

Captain Chandler commanded the cruiser Omaha when on November 6 she captured the disguised German freighter Odenwald in Atlantic equatorial waters. The Nazi merchantman was flying an American flag in attempting to run a blockade. The Nazis attempted to scuttle their ship but this was prevented. Capt. Chandler and his men seized the crew and saved the vessel's two-million-dollar cargo.

DAVIS

Captain Chandler, son of Rear Admiral Lloyd H. Chandler, retired, graduated in 1915 from the Naval Academy, where he starred at basketball and lacrosse. He was born in Annapolis in 1895.

During the first World War, Chandler served on the destroyer Conner, operating out of Brest, France. He is an expert in explosives and holds a master's degree from the University of Michigan. He married Beatrice B. Fairfax, a Washington girl. They have one daughter, Mrs. Theodora Green of Washington.

Capt. Kilpatrick, 55, was chief of staff and aide to the commandant of the Twelfth Naval District, with headquarters at San Francisco, when the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor. Six days later he was appointed chief of staff to the commander of the western sea frontier, Vice Admiral J. W. Greenslade.

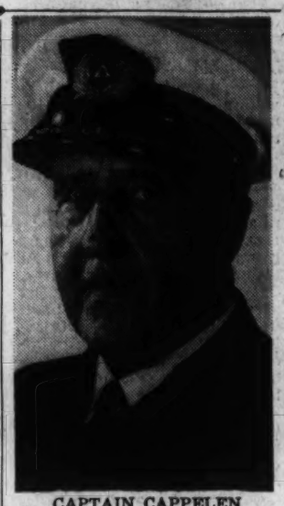
KILPATRICK

A native of New York, Capt. Kilpatrick graduated from the Naval Academy in 1908. He served several tours of duty in Washington, the most recent in the Office of Naval Intelligence, October, 1931, to June, 1934.

Captain Davis is a former assistant chief of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance and served here until July of last year, when he assumed command at sea. He graduated from Annapolis in 1913 and during World War I served with the armed guard naval overseas transportation service. He was born in Norwalk in 1892.

Captain Cappelen Aids Cuban Shipmate After Long Voyage

An effort to repatriate a 25-year-old Cuban seaman brought Capt. Jens Munthe Cappelen of the United States Merchant Marine and resident of the Kennedy Warren back to Washington yesterday after a "peaceful" 36,000-mile cruise as commander of his new Liberty ship.



CAPTAIN CAPPELEN

The Cuban sailor, Jose Milian, boarded the American ship in India with the assurance he would be taken to his native Cuba which he had not seen for seven years.

Upon their arrival at the island republic it developed that Milian had lost his citizenship papers and officials would not permit him to land. There was not sufficient time to straighten the tangle out in Cuba so he was brought on to the United States were he was permitted to enter under a temporary passport, but with Capt. Cappelen responsible for him.

Consequently the captain is now holding $700 pay due Milian until the difficulty is cleared. In the meantime, Milian is a guest of the Cuban Embassy until 10 a. m. today when it is expected the difficulties of citizenship will be solved.

Cappelen Visits Friends

The captain, who is a member of the Explorers Club and a former civilian employe of the Navy Bureau of Ships, is visiting acquaintances whom he has not seen since he put to sea to help relieve the bottleneck in skilled officers last September.

"The most peaceful time I have had in years," is the manner in which the captain described his long voyage in all of the submarine-infested waters of the world.

But, then the officer knows about shipwreck, having twice lost his ship in the piping times of peace. The most trying experience was in July of 1919, when the whaling ship of which he was the second officer sank in Arctic waters and he and his shipmates lived on flour and water for days.

At Calcutta the ship arrived just after the Japs had begun to bomb the city. At Madras, where they were forced to go to unload their ship after dockhands at Calcutta field in terror, they found a cholera epidemic.

Dodged Subs Zigzagging

Off the coast of South Africa he encountered submarines, but used the speed of his ship to the best advantage and zigzagged out of danger. Two other ships in the convoy were lost.

The ship which Captain Cappelen took to sea in September had just been completed at New Orleans and this was her maiden voyage. With a speed sufficient to permit her to outrun a submerged submarine, he said he thought his ship, like the other Liberty ships, were splendid and handled extremely well.

He expects to put to sea again within a few days.

Refugee Parley Considers Haven In North Africa

Hamilton, Bermuda, April 26 (AP).—American and British representatives seeking a solution of the problem of refugees from Nazi-conquered Europe, were understood today to have reached a tentative compromise on a plan to relocate European refugees temporarily in French North Africa, the Cirenaica portion of Libya and the Diredawa region of Ethiopia.

The plan, by which the refugees would be settled outside the active war zone, was believed to be under consideration by the governments.

Premature Twins Fail to Survive

Cincinnati, April 26 (AP).—Twin sons weighing 30 ounces each, born two and one-half months prematurely to Mr. and Mrs. Ira Morris, died today. They were born last Thursday.

Sergt. Cecchini, D. C. Airman, Gets 2d Medal

Staff Sergt. Maurice G. Cecchini, who recently received the Air Medal, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for 200 hours of combat flying with the Ninth Army Air Force in the Middle East, the War Department announced yesterday.

CECCHINI

The son of Nicola Cecchini of 52 H Street Northeast, Cecchini, 23, is a graduate of Eastern High School. He enlisted in the Air Corps in September, 1941, and went overseas last summer. Formerly he was an employe of the National Service & Trust Co.

Decorations also were received by the following Virginia men:

Distinguished Flying Cross, Second Lieut. Joseph H. Lindsay of Hillsville and Technical Sergt. John M. Robertson of Craigsville; Silver Star, Second Lieut. Keith S. Callahan of Roanoke.

First Lieut. Alexander E. Monsell of Reisterstown has been awarded the Air Medal.

Honor for Kimmel

The Silver Star for gallantry in combat will be presented today to Lieut. Manning M. Kimmel, son of Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, retired, of Washington, now serving under the commanding officer of submarine maintenance activity at the yards of the Manitowoc Shipbuilding Co. in Wisconsin.

Kimmel and Lieutenant Stephen H. Gimber of Bala-Cynwyd, Pa., will be honored for their service in action against the Japanese aboard submarines. Kimmel had attended a submarine school and is qualified to command such vessels.

Born in Washington in 1913, Kimmel attended Western High School and Columbia Preparatory School. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1935 and while there was a member of the tennis team and the Leech Cup team, and also played basketball. He has received the China Service Medal and Campaign Badge.

In 1937 he married Gay Johnson and has a daughter, Agatha Gay. A brother, Thomas, is an ensign in the Navy.

Wis. Governor Refuses Papers to Extradite Man

Madison, Wis., April 26 (AP).—Gov. Walter S. Goodland, who refused to sign papers extraditing Lively Lewis, escaped Negro prisoner, to Alabama last week, reiterated today his belief that Lewis did not receive a fair trial when convicted in 1941 of burglary.

In a telegram answering Alabama's Gov. Chauncey M. Sparks' assertion accusing Goodland of "slander against the State of Alabama," Goodland said:

"Replying to your telegram of April 23 relating to the extradition of Lively Lewis, I wish to state that I am not familiar with the administration of justice in Alabama, but I do have the facts in this particular case.

"The mere fact that a citizen of Alabama, whether white or colored, was sentenced to 99 years for breaking and entering and stealing a few dollars' worth of jewelry proves that there has been a miscarriage of justice. . . ."

Battle Call on the Home Front

A battle call has been sounding out across the land since April 12.

It is a home front battle call . . . our call to action in the Second War Loan.

Millions of us have responded already. But, until every one has invested in one of the seven forms of government securities, the job is not yet finished. We still have until April 30—next Friday—to do that job.

When April 30 comes, let us greet it with the proud realization that not one in this community has failed to respond to his country's battle call.

"CHALK US UP WITH Another Assist"

HIS graying hair indicated years of service, but as he climbed down from the engine cab he moved as quickly as a youngster. "Jim," he said to his fireman, "we've hauled many a load of valuable freight but none more important than this war material." Then with a twinkle in his eye he added, "Back in our baseball days we were credited with many an 'assist.' Now they can chalk us up with a lot more . . . for Uncle Sam."

And "Uncle" does so gladly. Most everyone in America is aware of the job the railroads are doing in transporting vital materials. As in baseball's brilliant infield play, transportation "assists" call for exact timing, unusual precision and close cooperation.

The nation's network of railroads, extending from coast to coast and from Canada to Mexico, functions today as a single unit. Iron ore from Duluth, cotton from the South, lumber from the Pacific Northwest—the railroads flow them into the great industrial plants where they undergo the Miracle of Change—to become guns and tanks, planes and ships.

"North Western's" divisions of the Transportation Army consist of some 32,000 men and women, all doing their best to speed the day of victory. To that end every war-hauling job is being handled quickly and efficiently, and will continue to be handled that way provided we get an adequate supply of materials to keep our equipment in perfect condition.

SERVING AMERICA IN WAR AND PEACE FOR ALMOST A CENTURY

3 Washington Men Among 496 Wounded

Three former Washington residents are among 496 U. S. soldiers wounded in action in North Africa, the War Department announced yesterday. Reported to next of kin in the District were Pvt. Elwood T. Day, son of John C. Day of 718 Eleventh Street Southeast; Pvt. Alfred J. Millard, son of Juanita K. Millard of 1823 Belmont Road Northwest, and Pvt. Edward M. Risley, husband of Mrs. Phyllis Risley of 121 Riggs Road Northeast.

Day, 21, was born in Camp Springs, Md., and lived both there and in the District. An employe at a garage in Capitol Heights, Md., he enlisted September, 1942. His family was informed yesterday by the War Department that he had been dismissed from the hospital. A brother, John Emery Day, is also with the Army.

Millard enlisted April 29, 1942, but no further information could be obtained.

Risley, 23, came here as a small child from Atlantic City, N. J., and attended Paul Junior High School. Before enlistment last June 5, he worked for the Quality Valet Service and Dr. Pepper Modeling Company. After training at Fort George G. Meade, Md., and Camp Pickett, Va., Risley went overseas October 23. His last letter dated April 4, while he was hospitalized, said that he was all right and had been decorated with the Purple Heart.

Newspaper Guild To Hear Talk by James B. Carey

James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the C. I. O., will explain labor's position on the President's hold-the-line order freezing wages and prices before a meeting of the Washington Newspaper Guild at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Board Room of the District Building.

Carey, who was secretary of the C. I. O. during the presidency of John L. Lewis, also is expected to comment on Lewis' current refusal to appear before the War Labor Board. His address is expected to be one of the first detailed pronouncements of C. I. O. policy on the President's anti-inflation program since the order was issued April 8.

Marshall Dies

PETE MARSHALL

Elzey (Pete) Marshall, 73-year-old retired telegraph operator, died Sunday night at a rest home in Waynesboro, Va., and three generations of Washington Post newsmen who came in contact with him in the wire room of this newspaper were saddened. His funeral will be held in Waynesboro this afternoon.

Pete, as he was affectionately known around The Post, was a telegrapher of the old school. He scorned the use of a "bug" for sending and continued to use a key up to the last. He had been in failing health for some time before his death and went to Gallinger Hospital two weeks ago. He was discharged after two days and went to Waynesboro to see his two nieces, his only living relatives.

Pete was a legend at The Post not only because of his length of service for Postal Telegraph and Western Union in the wire room, but because he was an authority on baseball and racing of times past.

Pete was born in Waynesboro, then called Basic City. His first jobs as telegrapher were on the Chesapeake & Ohio and Norfolk & Western Railroads as a lad of 18. Then he began working for newspapers, railroads and telegraph companies for as short or as long a time as his fancy struck him. Pete never mentioned it himself, but all other operators said he used to be a "star"—able to send faster than some operators could receive. This was borne out by the fact that Pete used to be assigned to all of the great sports events, tapping out the stories as the reporters wrote them on direct wires back to the papers.

Pete came to The Post's wire room more than 30 years ago, and except for short lapses had been there ever since.

London, April 26 (AP).—Methodist Bishop Adna W. Leonard visited three bases of the Eighth United States Air Force today and inspected a Flying Fortress under guidance of Master Sergt. Onon K. Leathers of Newport, Me., chief of the ground crew for the big bomber.

The Bishop will see United States Ambassador John Winant tomorrow and go to Northern Ireland Thursday to visit naval chaplains.

Judge Ritchie of Fairfax Court, Native of District, Dies at 65

Judge Abner Cloud Ritchie of the Fairfax County Trial Justice and Juvenile and Domestic Relations Courts died at Alexandria Hospital yesterday after a short illness. He was 65.

A native of Washington, Judge Ritchie moved to Fairfax County several years ago, where he operated a large dairy farm near Burke in addition to his law practice. He was appointed judge in 1935 to succeed Paul E. Brown, who resigned following his election as Commonwealth's attorney for the county.

Judge Ritchie is survived by his wife, Mrs. Virginia R. Ritchie; four daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Sherwood and Mrs. Jean Alexander, both of Arlington; Mrs. Virginia Copeland and Miss Barbara Ritchie, both of Falls Church; two sons, Lewis Ritchie of Arlington and F. Carberry Ritchie of the Army, and a stepson, James Henderson of Fairfax.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed yesterday.

George Murray, 87, Noted Lawyer, Dies

Montclair, N. J., April 26 (AP).—George Welwood Murray, 87, New York lawyer who was identified with many large-scale legal contests of the last 50 years, died yesterday at his home here.

Murray was a member of the law firm of Millbank, Tweed & Hope. He was counsel for John D. Rockefeller, sr., in the Government's antitrust suit against the U. S. Steel Corporation.

He was senior counsel in the suit by which the Equitable Trust Co. recovered a 38-million-dollar judgment from the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad.

Edgar Luckenbach Dies at Age of 75

Port Washington, N. Y., April 26 (AP).—Edgar F. Luckenbach, 75, president of the Luckenbach Steamship Co., Inc., died today of a heart ailment at Elm Court, his Long Island estate.

Luckenbach, whose hobby and business life were concerned with ships and sailing, was also head of the Luckenbach Terminal Co. and the Empire Repair & Electric Welding Co. He owned the champion sloops Sue, Bobtail and Suelew.

Executed Slayer Willed Shoes to Pal

Bellefonte, Pa., April 26 (AP).—Herbert Green, 41, Philadelphia Negro, died in the electric chair at Rockview Penitentiary at 12:33 a. m. today for the murders of two Philadelphia women.

Green ate and slept before going to the death chamber, and left a note that his shoes should be given to a pal in Holmesburg Prison at Philadelphia.

John Wigmore Rites Tomorrow At Arlington

Funeral services for John H. Wigmore, dean emeritus of Northwestern University's School of Law, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at Arlington Funeral Chapel. He died Tuesday, and will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

A colonel on the staff of the Judge Advocate General in the last war, Mr. Wigmore was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. He took his law degree at Harvard University in 1887, and was a professor of Anglo-American law at Keio University, Tokyo, from 1889 to 1892. He discontinued ... compilation and translation of Japanese law, on which he had been working for many years, after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

In 1893 he became professor of law at Northwestern University. He held the position of dean of the law school between 1901 and 1929, when he was made dean emeritus. Mr. Wigmore was the author of many books and treatises, and was considered an authority on international law.

His treatises on the law of evidence are considered classic.

Countess von Bernstorff Dies; Private Funeral Services Today

Countess Jeanne von Bernstorff, wife of the last imperial German Ambassador to Washington, who "came home to die" in 1941 from Switzerland, succumbed at her beloved Washington early yesterday.

Countess von Bernstorff, who was born Jeanne Luckemeyer 75 years ago in New York, died in her apartment at 2400 Sixteenth Street Northwest after an intermittent illness. Private funeral services will be held today at 11 a. m. in Gawler's chapel, 1756 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest.

The beautiful young American girl married Cunt Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff in 1887, 12 years before he began his diplomatic career as attache at Constantinople.

Assigned to United States in 1908

The young couple, after service in Berlin, Belgrade, Dresden, St. Petersburg, Munich and Egypt, came to America in 1908, when the count presented his credentials to President Theodore Roosevelt. Yellowed newspaper clippings of the era describe the countess as "tall and dark, rather German in features, but with the vivacity of the American woman." She dressed with the taste of a true Parisian and was a charming hostess, the article added, and was "highly esteemed by Emperor William."

In the Capital, too, she was an outstanding hostess at the drab old German Embassy on Massachusetts Avenue, which during her stay here from 1908 to 1917 was the height of fashion. The elegance of prewar Washington was epitomized in the gay soirees at which Countess von Bernstorff presided in the Embassy's grandoise drawing rooms.

Departure Social Loss

Although the count and countess were among the most popular members of the diplomatic set, they naturally were recalled to Germany with America's entry in the war in 1917, and their departure came as a great loss to social Washington.

It was the count's duty in 1917 to advise our Government of the German submarines' "sink on sight" campaign against merchant ships. Three days later, President Wilson announced that diplomatic relations with Germany had been severed, and the Von Bernstorffs returned to Berlin. The count was given a new assignment as ambassador to Turkey, but quit the diplomatic service when the German revolution broke out. In 1921 he returned to public life as a member of the Reichstag, but retired in 1924 to his estate on Lake Starnberg in Upper Bavaria.

COUNTESS VON BERNSTORFF

Violently Anti-Nazi

The Von Bernstorffs left Germany in 1929 as refugees during the rise of the Hitler regime, and moved to Geneva, Switzerland, where the count died several months later.

The countess came to America in October, 1941, saying: "I have come home to die. I never want to see Germany again and I never want to go to Europe again." She was violently anti-Nazi.

In the intervening years she lived quietly in her Washington apartment. No relatives were present at the time of her death.

Nats Buy Carpenter, Pitcher, From Memphis

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

To Whom It May Concern:

The Army has an idea of what its soldiers like to read . . . it has bought 30,000 copies of the 1943 Baseball Guide, published by Taylor Spink, for distribution in the United States and overseas . . . When a batter flies out because of the dead ball now in use in the majors, he can blame it on mimusops globosa, and it won't be double talk . . . that's the dictionary's name for balata rubber, the ersatz stuff that has replaced natural rubber in the core of the ball . . . John Hertz, owner of the Derby favorite, Count Fleet, was among the least panicky when his colt suffered his hoof wound in the Wood Memorial two weeks before the Derby . . . Hertz relates that Reigh Count, Count Fleet's daddy, suffered an almost similar injury during Derby week and went on to win the race for the roses . . . one of the reasons infection did not set into Count Fleet's wound was because his trainer, Don Cameron, had a handful of the wondrous sulfa drug on his person and applied it immediately after the Count was brought back to the winner's circle.

POVICH

Dutch Bergman, the Redskins' coach, has temporarily taken over the duties of the club's general manager, and it would not be surprising if he is a director of the firm, as well . . . Donald (Red) Barbary, rookie catcher of the Nats, is distrustful of New York after his first visit to the city . . . somebody walked into his hotel room while he was asleep and lifted the 41 bucks that he had in his wallet . . . seems that Barbary left his door open all night, just like they do in Simpsonville, S. C. . . . Earl Hilligan, American League publicity man, reports that Cleveland has under contract the only grandfather in the big leagues . . . he is 38-year-old Joe Heving, right-handed relief pitcher . . . Jack Espey, general manager of Uline's Arena, has been in New York conferring with Ned Irish, boss of Madison Square Garden, in an attempt to line up some of the Garden's attractions for Uline's . . . Espey is intent also on staging a big "name" fight, pointing out that Uline's can be scaled to draw a $32,000 house.

Branch Rickey has departed from another MacPhail policy since taking over the job of general managing the Brooklyn Dodgers . . . he has changed the brands of liquor served in the Brooklyn press room, giving the heave-ho to MacPhail's Old Overholt bourbon and Cutty Sark scotch and replacing them with Park & Tilford rye and George IV scotch . . . Here's an incredible but true story of the race track: A fan at Jamaica lost $500 worth of winning tickets and recovered them at the lost and found department where they had been turned in by an honest usher . . . page Diogenese . . . Former Middleweight Champion Fred Apostoli saw action in the sea battle in which the cruiser Chicago was sunk . . . a shipmate of Apostoli's is El Brookman, the Washington boxer he once knocked out at Uline's . . . Al Schacht, now the proprietor of a thriving New York restaurant, admits he knows nothing about the restaurant business, and is in no hurry to learn after counting his profits . . . "Ignorance is paying off pretty good, so why should I learn," says Schacht . . . The glove used by Walter Johnson when he beat the Giants in the last game of the 1924 World Series decorates Schacht's wall-of-fame.

Tests made with the baseball now in use reveal its deadness . . . they were made at the Cooper Union Institute of Technology, with the bounce measured after the new ball was dropped from a height of 26 feet . . . the average rebound of the new ball was 5.12 feet, in contrast to the rebound of the old ball which averaged 6.91 . . . Dutch Leonard not only had to give up ration coupon No. 17 in buying himself a pair of baseball shoes, but they cost him $22.50, a new high . . . Bill Cox, president of the Phillies, takes exception to a published statement that none of his ball players are paid as much as $9000 for the season, declaring, "two players on our roster get more than that amount."

Bill Reinhart, the former George Washington U. coach, is doing all right as a lieutenant commander in the Navy . . . he is involved in the destroyer escort program at the Norfolk Naval Station and was in Washington a few days ago conferring with no less than Secretary of the Navy Knox . . . Aside from the major leagues' ball and bat fund for service teams, the Army has bought more than four million dollars worth of baseball equipment since Pearl Harbor . . . The Boston Red Sox will see very little left-handed pitching this season, with everybody in the line-up except two outfielders hitting right-handed . . . George Stirnweiss, the Yankee rookie who stole 75 bases at Newark last year, is no great threat to George Case's base-stealing titles for a couple of reasons: (1), he isn't as fast as Case, and (2), he won't be on base as much as Case, who was a .321 hitter last season.

Three National League Clubs Order Supply of 'Live' Balls

By the Associated Press

New York, April 26.—The Brooklyn Dodgers got the jump on the other National League clubs in returning to the 1942 baseball when the 1943 model was found to be defective, but the other clubs aren't squawking. Just a little envious, that's all.

President Ford Frick sent wires late last week to all National League clubs authorizing them to use last year's ball until the corrected 1943 model is available, probably in about two weeks.

The Dodgers apparently were the only club wit hthe 1942 baseballs on hand, and they promptly put them into play in the games Saturday and Sunday.

Most of the other clubs, queried as to their reactions on the use of the livelier ball by the Dodgers while they themselves continued to play with the dead 1943 edition, indicated they would have used the old baseball had it been available immediately.

Warren Giles, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, said his club would have used the old balls had any been on hand, and Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Chicago Cubs said "anything the Dodgers want to do is okay with us, they can use golf balls if they want to."

The Pittsburgh Pirates used up their 1942 baseballs in training and the St. Louis Cardinals returned the old balls to the manufacturer last winter but today the Reds, Pirates and Cardinals all revealed that they had placed orders for another supply of last year's balls.

President William E. Benswanger of the Pirates at first said he thought the '42 ball would be as dead now as the new one, but late today announced he had changed his mind and ordered 40 dozen of last year's supply. "We want to get any possible advantage out of the old balls before the remakes are available," he explained.

Frick said the manufacturers had an ample supply of the 1942 balls on hand to take care of all clubs during the emergency.

Frick scoffed at the idea he was breaking an interleague agreement in authorizing the use of the old ball.

"There is nothing in the book that requires the two major leagues to use the same ball," he explained.

Two Jockeys Hurt in Falls At Pimlico

Scott Fractures Collarbone; Lord Breaks Leg When His Saddle Slips

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Pimlico, Md., April 26.—Two jockeys suffered broken bones in accidents that marred today's program. Steeplechase Jockey Angus Scott shattered his right collar bone when Mrs. Ogden Phipps' Middle West went down heavily at the tenth brush. Flat Jockey Edward Lord, a New England boy riding for the first time hereabouts, broke his left leg at the thigh when the saddle slipped on Mrs. I. Paoli's Miss I Q in the third race and threw the rider into the fence.

Another mishap was narrowly averted in the fifth event. Apprentice Jockey F. Early was too intent on driving Royal Flush and crowded Gallant Witch, ridden by Danny Scocca, into Opera Singer at the eighth pole. Scocca saved the situation, however, by pulling up sharply.

Vincentive Wins Purse

The stewards fined Early $50 "for failure to keep his mount straight," but the boy probably got that back and some more by putting up a strong ride in the eighth race to win with E. P. Minor's Big Jack, a $21.70 shot that hung a neck defeat on the favorite, H. G. Bedwell's Ranger II.

The best distance effort of the meeting was turned in by W. L. Brann's Vincentive in the Dauber Purse, featuring the Monday program. Vincentive, destined to miss the Kentucky Derby, probably earned a starting position in the Preakness by his brilliant performance. The son of Challenger II and Phenomenon was an easy winner under a good ride by Jockey George Woolf, finishing four lengths ahead of the closest opposition. H. L. Straus' New Moon was second and the Bomar Stable's Little Wizard was third in the field on nine.

Installed an odds-on favorite, Vincentive was never extended and turned in time of 1:43 1-5, one second over the track record for the course shared by Shuffle Along and Tred Avon. He paid $3.90.

Bow Wave Romps Home

With the exception of a brief interval when Jockey Woolf allowed Dimout, a longshot, to set the pace, Vincentive was in front and the fractional time was excellent. The quarter was run in 0:23, the half 0:46 3-5, the three-quarters in 1:11 4-5 and the mile in 1:38 3-5.

Bow Wave, owned by S. W. Labrot, jr., scampered home in front of six Maryland-foaled juveniles in

Gene McCann, Yankee Scout, Dies at 67

By the Associated Press

New York, April 26.—Henry Eugene (Gene) McCann, 67, New York Yankees' scout and president of their Binghamton farm club in the Eastern League and Norfolk in the Piedmont circuit, died today at the Jamaica Hospital after a year's illness.

McCann, famous in baseball circles for his white ties, had been connected with the Yankee organization since 1927. He entered baseball in 1895 and was an ace pitcher for the Jersey City club in the old Eastern League, being instrumental in the Jerseys winning their first pennant in 1902. The Jerseys won 16 straight at the start of the season and later accounted for 24 in a row with McCann winning three of them and losing the twenty-fifth—a 2-0 decision to Baltimore.

The Yankee scout also played with Minneapolis in 1900 and was with Brooklyn in 1901 and 1902. He was credited with "discovering" Capt. Eddie Grant, New York Giants' third baseman who was killed in the first World War.

Cross Barred By Ring Doctor Before Fight

By Al Costello
Post Staff Writer

Wally Cross, Newark, N. J., heavyweight, was unable to go through with his scheduled 10-round bout with Willie Thomas of Philadelphia last night at Turner's Arena, when Dr. William F. Greaney, District Boxing Commission physician, twice refused to pass him as physically fit because of high blood pressure.

A crowd of 1242 which paid $1401 was offered the choice of a refund or watching the other bouts. Everybody stayed. Promoter Joe Turner announced the fighters' purses would be turned over to the Service Men's Equipment Fund.

Cross, it was found at the District Boxing Commission weigh-ins yesterday, was running a blood pressure of 168. Dr. Greaney advised the Newark boy to return to his hotel, rest and promised Cross another examination later. Meanwhile, Turner was burning wires and long-distancing all afternoon, hoping to find a suitable substitute but failed. At 7:30 last night, Dr. Greaney reexamined the fighter, but his pressure had risen to 180. Dr. Greaney then refused sanction of the bout.

Chaney Fails to Show

To make matters worse, at ring time another fighter, Charley Chaney, Baltimore middleweight and a nephew of the old "K. O." Chaney, did not appear for his bout with John Garner, District of Columbia boy. It was reported he was fighting in Baltimore. The boxing bosses rubbed heads together and announced they would investigate and if true, Chaney would face a long suspension. Kid Norfolk of Baltimore was substi-

Hugh Casey Hurls No-Hit, No-Run Game for Sailors

Norfolk, Va., April 26 (AP).—Hugh Casey, formerly of the Brooklyn Dodgers, pitched a no-hit, no-run game today as the Norfolk Naval Air Station snapped the 15-game winning streak of the Norfolk Naval Training Station, 4 to 0.

A crowd of 5000 fans, who purchased nearly $100,000 in war bonds, saw the game. Phil Rizzuto, former New York Yankee, spearhead of the Training Station team, went hitless for the first time this spring.

2 Maryland Tracks Plan Full Fall Meets

Small Predicts 30 Days Racing For Pimlico and 50 at Laurel

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, April 26.—Maryland, which found its major racing season drastically cut to 20 days this spring, is reasonably certain to have a full season in the fall, Chairman Frank Small, jr. of the State Racing Commission predicted today.

"We will have as much racing in the State as the law and conditions allow," Small told newspapermen.

"Certainly that means 30 days at Pimlico. And, unless conditions change greatly for the worse as far as transportation is concerned, I think we will have a full meeting at Laurel."

The racing head's prediction was predicated upon the belief that Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor would sign one of two bills passed by the General Assembly to permit the commission to assign as much as 50 days of racing to any one track.

The law at present allows no more than 30 days at any one track, but two similar bills passed by the recent Legislature would permit consolidation of the sport for the duration of the war emergency. The Governor is expected to approve one of the bills, since he included such legislation in a list of "desirable" bills which he urged the Assembly to pass.

Small said dates for the fall season had not been fixed, but he added:

"We will have a meeting shortly and will set the dates for the fall meetings. We have waited long enough for the track associations to get together and make plans. This time we will tell them when they can run. The exact dates are unimportant at the moment, so long as we assure horsemen that they can look forward to a full season here beginning around Labor Day."

The only Maryland racing this spring is the current 20-day meeting at Pimlico, Laurel, however, plans to operate for 30 to 50 days in the fall, pending approval of the plan to assign as much as 50 days to one track. Laurel does not customarily hold a spring meeting.

The other two major tracks, Havre de Grace and Bowie, do not plan to conduct meetings at their tracks because of transportation difficulties.

Hutchinson Gets Decision Over Ruffin

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, April 26.—Johnny Hutchinson, Philadelphia Nagro, earned a shot at lightweight Sammy Angott by outpointing Bobby Ruffin of New York in a 10-round bout at the Arena tonight before a crowd of 8000. Hutchinson weighted 134½ pounds to 132 for Ruffiin.

Hutchinson kept Ruffin continually off balance with left jabs and on several occasions zipped over a right cross that jarred the New Yorker.

The decision was unanimous with both judges, Lou Tress and Eddie Loughran, giving Hutchinson eight and seven rounds, respectively. referee Irving Kutcher gave Hutchinson six rounds, Ruffin three and called one even.

The paid attendance was announced as 7656 and the gross gate $16,188.25.

Skeptical of their pitching, the Nats made an effort to bolster their staff yesterday with the purchase of Lewis Carpenter, husky righthander, from the Memphis Club of the Southern Association.

The deal was made after Manager Ossie Bluege, reporting to Owner Clark Griffith on the recent Northern trip of the club, expressed satisfaction with the Nats' outlook with the exception of the pitching.

Bluege has confidence in his four starting pitchers, Dutch Leonard, Early Wynn, Alex Carrasquel and Rookie Ewald Pyle, but he complained of a lack of depth of good pitching on his staff.

Was Holdout

Carpenter was bought outright from Memphis by the Nats. Griffith refused to disclose the purchase price, but said "it was a lot of money." The pitcher did not report to the Memphis club this season, because of a salary squabble. Memphis sold Carpenter to the Phillies several weeks ago, but he refused to join that club and the deal was canceled.

He had a tryout with Brooklyn three years ago. Last season Carpenter won 10 games and lost 10 with Memphis. He is 6 feet 2 inches tall, weights 190 pounds, throws a fast ball and knuckle ball, and holds a 3-A card in selective service.

Carpenter has been working out despite his failure to join the Memphis team, and will report to the Nats immediately. His duties with the Nats may take the form

Bennings Picks 5 More Winners, Average Now .500

Bill Bennings continued his sensational streak at Pimlico yesterday by picking five winners on the eight-race program to bring his selecting average to .500 for the nine days of the meet, 36 winners in 72 races.

The Post handicapper had only one choice out of the money as his other two picks ran second. Mae Case, in the third race, paid $11.50, best price of the Bennings winners.

Six Leading Sports Events of 20th Century Picked for Poll

By Bob Considine

New York, April 26.—Esquire, taking another sports poll, asks us "What would be your selection as the six greatest sporting events of the the twentieth century?"

CONSIDINE

That's a tough one, open to considerable guess-work. It is something like asking the names of the six greatest songs ever written or the six best novels. The "hundred greatest" might be fairer, but even then you'd have to leave out many notable events.

However, here's my pick, not necessarily in the order of their importance:

1. The Dempsey - Firpo fight, because it remains the yardstick by which all other spectacular fights are measured.

2. The Seabiscut-War Admiral match race, because it had as much of a build-up as any race in the history of the sport, and then developed into a record-breaking duel.

3. The 1924 World Series between the Senators and Giants, in which old Walter Johnson, beaten twice and the object of Nation-wide sympathy, came back to win the seventh and final game in the 12th inning.

4. Bobby Jones' victories in the British Open and Amateur and the United States Open and Amateur during the 1930 season.

5. Gertrude Ederle's conquest of the English Channel, which touched off a civic celebration approached only by the reception given to Lindberg when he returned.

6. The 73-0 victory of the Chicago Bears over the Washington Redskins, in which an unparalleled football team reached its full flower.

Can you top these six? Send me your own selections and I'll print them. My conscience is already hurting me about leaving out Jim Thorpe's performance in the 1912 Olympics.

Nearly every ball player in captivity has said that the Balata potato is punk. Somebody should now ask the ball what it thinks of the ball players.

Ford Frick's sudden decision to let teams use the livelier 1942 ball serves only to confuse the ball situation further. The lively pill went into the game after the third inning of Saturday's epic between Brooklyn and Philadelphia. But up at Boston, where the Giants were playing the Braves, there was no supply of old balls, so they had to play with the current bag of mush. It must be that way all over the league—with some clubs playing with bouncy apples and others unable to get them. The Reds and Cards gave all their 1942 baseballs to the Army last winter. Until there is enough to go around the league, clubs will play with one kind of pellet in one series, then go to another town and be confronted with an entirely new kind of ball. There hasn't been a situation like this since the manufacture of baseballs became

13 Derby Entries Will Test Speed Today in Trial Stakes

Count Fleet To Work Out By Himself

Ocean Wave Seems Likely Favorite in This Afternoon's Race at Downs

By Sid Feder
Associated Press Sports Writer

Louisville, Ky., April 26.—They're running a preview of the Kentucky Derby here tomorrow in two sections—just like the main event figures to finish on Saturday.

First, Count Fleet, the shortest-priced favorite in Derby history and all but unanimous choice to run off and hide from whatever oat-burners want to waltz with him Saturday, will work out the full mile-and-a-quarter route between a couple of the early races on the Churchill Downs card. He'll be all by himself, just as he expects to be in the big heat.

Then, a little later in the afternoon, 13 of the other eligibles for the $75,000 merry-go-round will go to the post in the Derby Trial Stakes. The chief reason for this, outside of picking up the big end of a $2500 purse, appears to be to decide just which horses should be left home Saturday instead of going to the post and, getting in the way of some fellows who want to run.

All But Three In

The field for the trial mile includes all but three of the "name" horses who figure to scramble for the $8000 second money the Count will leave over after picking up the big bankroll that'll be hanging on the finish line like grandpa's red flannels on wash day.

The three who'll be taking things easy are Blue Swords, Amber Light and Gold Shower, and the Shower showed today he really can pour when he wants to. Out for his first serious job of stepping since coming to the Downs, Mrs. Vera Bragg's husky Gee-Gee rattled off a mile over deep footing in 1:42 1-5, the fastest it's been done by any Derby dandy so far, and then went on out the full Derby route in 2:09 1-5. The only other dash of the day that had the railbirds chirping was a 1:47 1-5 half-mile blowout by the Count.

Ocean Wave Liked

Warren Wright's Ocean Wave, impressive winner of the Bluegrass Stakes last week and trained as "fit" as a made-to-order suit, naturally is the head man of the big trial field. But he's going to need his running shoes to roll home over Seven Hearts, who knocked him off by four lengths in the Arkansas Derby; Slide Rule and Twoses, the W. E. Boeing "bombers;" No Wrinkles, the hope of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars for her second Derby winner, and Burnt Cork, the pride and joy of Mr. Benny's Rochester of the radio.

From the looks of things, the others might just as well take the day off and go out in the woods on a picnic if they can scout up some country ham. Giving them the once-over lightly, they are Modest Lad, owned by Mrs. Henry L. Finch of New York, Hal Price Headley's Crest and All Hoss, Townsend Martin's Bankrupt, Mrs. F. J. Navin's Sea Marriage, S. E. Kellogg's Take Away, and Devereaux and Farrell's Big Boss. Of these, the only ones even expected to see the Derby Saturday are Modest Lad, Crest and Bankrupt. The rest apparently need the air.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LECHLADE, $8.30, $3.80, $3.00; RAYLYWN, $6.80, $6.20; NEVER SURPRISED, $5.60.
LECHLADE was steadied while closest to pace of AIR MARSHAL, saved ground, responded when asked to take command, but had to be kept to punishment on final flat to hold RAYLYWN safe. The latter was poorly handled, lost ground in final stages and closed willingly. NEVER SURPRISED was far back early, improved position to fourteenth fence and then weakened.

SECOND RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse $1000. For 3-year-old maidens. Start good. Won driving; place easily. Went to post at 12:31½. Off at 12:32. Winner, S. W. Labrot, jr.'s b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOW WAVE, $7.00, $2.90, $2.90; GRAMPS IMAGE, $2.40, $2.50; GOLD RIVER, $5.20.
BOW WAVE, sent to front at once, set good pace under strong handling and was kept to hand ride to end. GRAMPS IMAGE, first away, was allowed to drop back while racing on inside, came to outside entering stretch and was eased up after closing some ground. GOLD RIVER went to contention boldly leaving backstretch, but weakened in final eighth.

Daily Double, LECHLADE and BOW WAVE, Paid $27.60

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1000. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 1:01½. Off at 1:02. Winner, T. Rodrock's b. f. (3) by Case Ace—Miss Skilling. Trained by T. Rodrock. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:13⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAE CASE, $11.50, $5.60, $4.80; HERE GOES, $9.10, $6.70; GOLD TINT, $9.20.
MAE CASE was in first flight from start while racing on outside, responded when shaken up and wore down HERE GOES in final strides under strong handling. HERE GOES raced GOLD TINT into defeat to take good lead but could not resist winner while under pressure. GOLD TINT was off alertly, forced pace of HERE GOES and was tiring through stretch.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1000. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 1:32. Off at 1:33. Winner, White Hall Plantation's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FARSIGHT, $4.10, $3.70, $3.10; ATTACHE, $18.90, $9.30; TRACELETTE, $3.80.
FARSIGHT, much the best, was sent to contention boldly in opening quarter, was shut off while moving up on rail at half pole, came out for racing room to take command and drew out to win with speed in reserve. ATTACHE was within striking distance from start, came wide while making move and closed with good energy. TRACELETTE was in first flight from start and came willingly at close.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1500. For 3-year-old fillies. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:00½. Off at 2:02½. Winner, James McHenry's ch. f. (3) by Milkman—Hurry More. Trained by F. A. Bonsal. Value to winner, $1000; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CREAM, $8.00, $4.40, $3.40; ROYAL PLUSH, $7.60, $4.50; OPERA SINGER, $4.80.
CREAM went to front at once, set steady pace and held away to end under good handling. ROYAL PLUSH, forward factor from start, crowded GALLANT WITCH repeatedly entering stretch, came over on GALLANT WITCH at eighth pole and closed willingly. OPERA SINGER saved ground from start, was in close quarters along rail at eighth pole and closed gamely.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1300. For 3-year-olds; allowance. Start good. Won handily; place easily. Went to post at 2:32. Off at 2:32½. Winner, W. L. Brann's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VINCENTIVE, $3.90, $3.00, $2.80; NEW MOON, $3.40, $2.90; LITTLE WIZARD, $3.90.
VINCENTIVE, off alertly and steadied while closest to DIMOUT'S pace, went through on rail to take command at half pole, drew out gradually and won well within himself. NEW MOON was in first flight from start, made repeated efforts to get to VINCENTIVE and held on gamely in final drive. LITTLE WIZARD was within striking distance from start but hung in final drive.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:01. Off at 3:01½. Winner, J. H. Stotler's b. g. BIG JACK was allowed to race on own courage for half, improved position steadily when placed to drive and closed with bold rush on outside to defeat RANGER II in final test. RANGER II was rated while close up for half, rallied to take command when placed to pressure, withstood long stretch drive but could not resist winner. BASTINADO was steadied within striking distance for half, moved up boldly and then hung in final drive.

Jockey Lloyd Knapp put up a strong ride on Bow Wave in contrast to a poor performance by Jockey Porter Roberts who had the favorite all over the race track, Gramps Image broke on top, but soon gave way to Bow Wave. Gold River moved up swinging for the stretch, and Roberts, who had been on the inside with the public choice, then sent his mount wide into the stretch. When he saw he could not win, Roberts eased up. Bow Wave paid $7, put the finishing touches on a $27.60 daily double and stepped the 4½ furlongs in 0:55.

of relief roles, until some of Bluege's starting pitchers falter.

The Nats, with three victories in their first five games to their credit, open up a home stand against the Athletics this afternoon. Today's contest will be the first of a three-game series. The A's the Nats owe all of their three victories thus far.

Wynn Goes Today

Early Wynn, who held the Yankees to five hits during an eight-inning job last week and was the losing pitcher, is Bluege's choice for today's game. The Athletics are expected to send right-handed Roger Wolff to the mound.

Outfielder George Case will be an absentee from the Nats' lineup. He is still suffering from a severe head cold and is under care of the club physician. Gene Moore, who capably replaced Case in the double-header at Shibe Park on Sunday, will play rightfield.

3 National Clubs Order 'Live' Balls

"They simply got together and agreed to use a ball that met certain specifications. The new ball did not meet the specifications. It was admittedly defective.

"I have received no protest from any source, and expect none. I took the action on my own initiative, as it was the logical thing to do. The Dodgers had nothing to do with it. Branch Rickey (Dodger president), did not even contact me concerning the ball.

"I am thinking of the fans. Baseball faces a tough enough year as it is without continuing play with a ball and thus alienating the spectators. You can imagine the fans' reaction in going to a game and watching well-hit balls plop feebly into fielders' hands."

War Bonds, Stamps Prizes as Women Open Golf Play Today

Keefer Cup Tourney at Chevy Chase

Field of 39 Players In 36-Hole Event; Big Names Missing In Low Gross Play

With war stamps and bonds to be used almost exclusively for prizes, the 12-event schedule of the District Women's Golf Association gets under way today with a field of 39 Class A contestants opening a two-day battle for the Keefer Cup.

Mrs. Walter L. Weible, starting her third term as president of the association, and Mrs. Frank Mirth, chairman of the prize committee, announced virtually all prizes would be in stamps and bonds.

Last year the association, in one of its biggest years, purchased $1155 in war bonds for prizes; spent nearly $100 with the AWVS and contributed $100 to the Red Cross and varied relief agencies.

A majority of the prizes in the past have been in golf balls, shoes and silver, but no balls are available for prizes now, shoes are rationed and silver is scarce, making stamps and bonds the logical prizes.

Play Starts at 9 A. M.

Play starts at Chevy Chase at 9 a. m. and players will leave the first tee in twosomes through 10:55. The field of 39 is the smallest in years, and everybody who turns in a card is virtually sure of playing Wednesday when the field is pared to the low 32 net scores and ties for the final 18 holes.

The thirteenth annual event, for the cup donated by Mrs. Frank R. Keefer of the host club, is limited to Class A players, those with handicaps of scratch through 18. Mrs. H. W. Bashore of Kenwood, the defending champion, is in the field.

While the play for the Keefer Cup, which goes to the low net scorer of the two days is wide open, the low gross honors will probably be between Mrs. Betty Meckley, who won last year; a Kenwood clubmate, Mrs. W. H. Wise, the long-hitter; and Mrs. L. G. Pray, a former Keefer Cup winner from Columbia C. C.

Mrs. Stokes Out of City

Mrs. Walter R. Stokes, the District and Maryland State champion of last year, is out of the city, and Mrs. Myron Davy, who with Mrs. Stokes and Mrs. Meckley formed the "big three," is currently in Mexcio, where she won an invitation tournament on Sunday with a 6-and-5 triumph over Betty Jameson, the two-time national champion. Mrs. Davy's victory was one of the most impressive ever scored by a District golfer in outside competition. Mrs. T. O. Brandon, Columbia, and Mrs. Leo Walper, Indian Spring, consistent low scorers, also are missing from the starting field.

The second tournament on the women's schedule is the Class A competition for The Washington Post Tropy on Friday, May 14, at Kenwood Country Club. The Class B section of The Post Cup will be played May 24, also at Kenwood.

Two-Man Mat Card Pairings Completed

The list of entrants for the two-man team wrestling tournament championship tomorrow night at Turner's Arena, which "Two-Ton" Tony Galento will referee, was completed yesterday.

Latest to join up was an Italian-American duo composed of Mario di Caprio and Dr. John Bonica, both newcomers to Washington. They have worked together in Eastern rings and have been prominent in other tournaments.

The American team of Ace Freeman and John Melas and the Greek combination of George Macricostas and Jim Stefano will be paired off in the opening round, while in the other first-round battle the villain team of Masked Red Czar and Charley Mannogian will oppose the Irish duo of Dick Lever and Eddie Pope.

Di Caprio and Dr. John Bonica have drawn a first-round bye.

This is Galento's first appearance locally as a referee. The last time "Two-Ton" Tony showed here was at Uline, when he drew better than a $20,000 gate in a match against Buddy Baer.

"The Hammer" Sharpens His Working Tools

Henry Armstrong, who meets Saverio Turiello Friday night at Uline Arena in a 10-rounder, arrived yesterday and wasted little time in going through a workout, punching the heavy bag and shadow boxing. Today, "The Hammer" will demonstrate his perpetual motion style when he boxes with his sparring partner and protege, Terry Gibson, who is also on the card. The bout will be the first for Henry since his disputed defeat by Beau Jack tuted and the bout was put on as the eight-round feature.

But the Kid was no match for the cocky Garner. Outweighted, 169 to 160, Norfolk looked good in taking the first round from the local Negro. But from there on it was all Garner, who was pumping punches into Norfolk's face for the rest of the way.

Referee Marty Gallagher finally stopped it in 1:20 of the seventh round, with Norfolk virtually out on his feet, still gamely taking punishment and refusing to go down.

It was Garner's sixth straight local victory.

Frankie Maxwell, 136, Baltimore redhead, who made his professional debut at Turner's last week, scored his second straight triumph, beating Joe Terry, 139, Baltimore Negro, in four rounds. Maxwell, a promising looking boy, again exhibited a flashing left with which he held off the heavier hitting Terry with consummate ease.

Mike Enrick, 192, Baltimore, was given a close six-round decision over Dan Biggers, 185, Baltimore Negro, in a slow bout that had the crowd clapping and stomping for action. Little action resulted. Biggers' bloody nose at the finish evidently impressed the judges.

In the opening four, Jim McGriff, 129½, Baltimore, kayoed Billy Lewis, 133, local Negro, in 1:22 of the second round. A right hand thrown so enthusiastically that McGriff fell on top of the prone Lewis, finished the melee.

The ball trouble has only one silver lining, so far as the hitters are concerned. They now have a new alibi for failure at the plate. The history of baseball has produced some of the dangdest alibis known to mankind, but the records are all owned by hitters. When they don't hit they search immediately for a reason, and most of the answers are bizarre.

We remember one day in Washington when Heinie Manush, then in the race for batting honors, went hitless through an afternoon. He was in a rage after the game.

"D—— sportswriters," he muttered.

"What have they got to do with it?" his friend Joe Cronin asked him.

"Aw, those blasted guys, they left a door open in their press box on the roof and the sun shining through it hurt my eyes when I was out in the field. How do you expect a fellow to make a hit when his eyes hurt."

The streetcar Derby is going to be somewhat beyond streetcar capacity, proving either that Matt Winn has built the better mousetrap or that the guys who came here to talk for Joe (Eastman) didn't talk loud enough.

There isn't a hotel room to be had in Louisville and its environs. It wouldn't be surprising if the biggest crowd of the 1943 racing year shows up next Saturday, something in the neighborhood of 50,000.

In the meantime thousands of bettors who have bet on Count Fleet in the winter books await his public workout tomorrow. He'll go the full Derby distance of a mile and a quarter, according to present plans, as a special side attraction between races. He has been working easily at shorter distances since his arrival at Churchill Downs last Tuesday, and to the intense relief of John Hertz, his owner, and Don Cameron, his trainer, has shown no ill effects from the coronet and hoof wounds he suffered in the Wood Memorial. But the mile and a quarter test will tell the tale.

A. A. Clubs Have Fast Ball, Trautman Says

By the Associated Press

Columbus, Ohio, April 26.—A ball with "plenty of zip" will be used this year in the American Association, which starts its campaign Thursday, President George M. Trautman said today.

Trautman, upset a trifle by the furor surrounding the Balata ball about which all the big-league batters (but none of the pitchers) are moaning, checked up today with the manufacturer to determine what was in store for the Double-A clubs.

"They told me," Trautman said, "that they had experienced some difficulty with the cement in the new ball, but that it was being remedied. The new cement deadened the ball. But I was assured that all balls delivered to Association clubs would have plenty of zip—at least as much as last year's balls."

Trautman said each club, during the regular season, would use about 150 dozen balls, or about two dozen per game. That, he said, did not include the balls used in spring training or in exhibition contests.

The red-haired prexy said he expected the association to play out its schedule, even if clubs are riddled of talent by the draft.

"We are not starting this season with the idea of going half way," he said. "We are starting it with the idea of finishing. Of course, something unforeseen may pop up, but insofar as we are able to control matters we'll go right through on schedule. And it looks like a good, tight race, too!"

Willie Pep Beats Jackie Wilson

Pittsburgh, April 26 (AP).—Willie Pep, the featherweight kingpin, tossed his mitts as if he were a concentrated vitamin B pep pill tonight in easily pounding out a decision in 12 rounds over "Pittsburgh Jackie" Wilson, former N. B. A. champion.

The bout was an overweight affair, Pep coming in at 128 pounds and Wilson at 127.

It was the sixty-sixth triumph in 67 pro bouts for the Hartford, Conn., boy, who several times seemed to have Wilson on the verge of a knockout, although there were no knockdowns.

Majors Open On Second Front Today

Road Teams Play At Home in Both Leagues for First Time This Season

By the Associated Press

New York, April 26.—The major leagues come up to their "second openers" tomorrow with the clubs which have been on the road since the start of the season making their bows to their home fans.

The schedule calls for:

AMERICAN LEAGUE—Cleveland at Chicago, St. Louis at Detroit, New York at Boston, Philadelphia at Washington.

NATIONAL LEAGUE—Chicago at St. Louis, Boston at New York, Brooklyn at Philadelphia and Cincinnati at Pittsburgh.

The delay in starting this year's schedule, due to northern training, and the fact that Good Friday and Easter came on the first weekend of the season, account for the "second openers" being later than ever before.

The spotlight again will be trained on the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals as they return to Sportsmans Park for a three-game series with the Chicago Cubs. Mort Cooper and Paul Derringer, each of whom was unsuccessful in the inaugural games last Wednesday, will be the rival pitchers.

At present the National League has a six-way tie for second place and the series starting tomorrow should sort the standings into some explainable order. One of the pairings that will contribute toward this is Cincinnati at Pittsburgh, where Ray Starr and Bob Klinger will oppose each other on the mound in the first tussle.

In the American League the unbeaten New York Yankees will be risking their record against the tail-end Boston Red Sox, but baseball people will be more interested in the way Lefty Marius Russo, the champions' only experienced southpaw, had a sore arm all last season and as a result pitched only two complete games. The Yanks are counting on his recovery this year.

Robert Emslie, Noted Umpire, Dies in Canada

By the Associated Press

St. Thomas, Ontario, April 26.—Robert D. Emslie, for 34 years a National League umpire, died at his home early today after a long illness. Emslie was 84.

Born at Guelph, Ontario, Emslie started his baseball career as a pitcher for the Harriston, Ontario, Browns in 1878. He drifted into umpiring by chance in 1887 when he was called on to umpire an International League game. Three years later he joined the National League staff and became one of baseball's most famous umpires before retiring in 1924. The last two years he acted in an advisory capacity to President Heydler.

During his pitching career, which was cut short because of a "bad" arm, he was considered the greatest curve ball pitcher of his time. In 1884 he pitched 51 games for Baltimore, winning 33.

Emslie was the base umpire the day Fred Merkle failed to touch second and threw the 1908 pennant race into a deadlock between the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs. The final decision, however, that resulted in Merkle being declared out was made by Chief Umpire Hank O'Day.

Heavy Train Traffic Sticks Giants in Boston

Boston, April 26 (AP).—The New York Giants were unable to get railroad accommodations out of Boston last night because of the heavy holiday traffic and spent the night here. They arrived in New York late today and open their home season against the Boston Braves Tuesday.

Eddie Phillips, Former Nat, Takes Over at Hagerstown

Hagersotwn, Md., April 26.—Eddie Phillips, new manager of the Hagerstown club of the Interstate League, took over the reins of the Owls today.

A native of Worcester, Mass., he managed the Richmond (Va.) club in 1940 and won the pennant in the Piedmont League and was with the same club in 1941. Last season he managed the Greenville (S. C.) team.

A graduate of Boston College, where he was a football star, Phillips joined the Boston Braves soon after leaving college, playing there from 1923 until the end of 1925. He joined the New York Yankese in 1926. The following year he was the leading batter in the Southern Association with Nashville, hitting .393.

He played with the Detroit Tigers from 1928 to 1930 and went to the Pirates the next season. In 1932 he played with Kansas City and was recalled to the Yankees that season. He played with Detroit and Washington, joining the Nationals in 1934. In 1935 he went to Buffalo and remained there until 1938. Phillips played for Wilkes-Barre in the Eastern Circuit in 1939, joining Richmond the following season.

Phillips also will do part-time catching.

Georgia Tech Swim Coach Perfects Dryland Diving

Involved Rope System Makes Instruction Simple, Says Fred Lanque; Prevents Injury

By Romney Wheeler
Associated Press Sports Writer

Atlanta, April 26.—The trouble with teaching aquatic acrobats to do their stuff, says Fred Lanoue, is that either their feet wear out or their resolve wears thin before they master the art.

So the Georgia Tech swimming coach has evolved a system of dryland diving which is virtually plainless, as well as practical. With an old set of football hip pads, a couple of ropes, and pulleys, and an outdoor spring board he is teaching his boys to float through the air without mashing themselves all over the landscape—or seascape—at the end of their flight.

At one end of the ropes is the diver, at the other the coach. If the diver makes a mistake, his coach saves him with a deft snatch of the line.

"By checking on the large single rope," says Lanoue, "it is easy to let the diver down as gently as desired. With a competent man on the rope it is possible for a trained diver to do swans, back-dives, half-gainers, one-and-a-halfs, doubles, etc.

"It stands to reason that if the rope manipulator can ease people down from a swan dive to a belly landing in the pit, it makes no difference how the embryonic acrobats twist or turn in the air. He has them under control and cannot fail to prevent any injury. Even that big bugaboo of beginners, hitting the board, is practically impossible.

"We have taught old men, unathletic women and a host of big, awkward boys, none of whom would ever think of diving from the board in the pool, to do front and back somersaults. The carryover into water diving is practically perfect. Out of 23 folks who learned to do somersaults on the dry board, every one of them was able to do the same dive painlessly in the pool."

A big asset, says Lanoue, in writing for coaches in the Southern Coach and Athlete, is that the dry board permits use of tennis shoes. That helps, he explains, because precision is acquired only by taking thousands and thousands of bounces.

Bethesda-Generals In Feature Clash; Track Meet, Tennis Match on Schedule

Four baseball games, a track meet and a tennis match feature this afternoon's local prep school sports card, with the Washington-Lee-Bethesda-Chevy Chase diamond clash drawing the most attention. The game will take place on the latter's field.

The Barons, who have probably the greenest team in this vicinity, have shown a lot of promise in racking up victories over Georgetown Prep and Western, the former game being a no-hit-no-run effort on the part of a trio of Bethesda hurlers. They have also been getting timely hitting and might possibly turn out to be the surprise team of the year. The Generals, on the other hand, also have a formidable aggregation and boast a victory over Roosevelt, one of the better public high nines.

Other games listed for this afternoon are Gonzaga vs. Devitt, National Training School at Eastern and Landon Prep at Georgetown Prep.

Washington and Lee's undefeated cinder squad will journey to Alexandria to engage the Presidents of George Washington High in a dual meet. The Generals are heavy favorites to keep their record intact, but the heated rivalry between the two schools should kep the score down.

The day's card:
BASEBALL—Gonzaga vs. Devitt Prep, 4 o'clock; Washington and Lee at Bethesda-Chevy Chase, 4 o'clock; National Training School at Eastern, 4 o'clock; Landon Prep at Georgetown Prep, 4 o'clock.
TRACK—Washington and Lee at George Washington High, 4 o'clock.
TENNIS—St. Johns at St. Albans, 4 o'clock.

Early Survey of Majors Reveals Dead Ball Aided Daffy Doings

By Whitney Martin
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, April 26.—Now that the major league baseball season is under way, some of the teams having played as many as five or six games, a few foggy impressions are beginning to take form, to wit:

That the do-do baseball would have been a great equalizer, with the hitting teams not being able to do much more with it than the teams who couldn't get a two-base hit with a ration ticket. That the Brooklyn Dodgers also seem to be a jump ahead of the other teams, a trait again demonstarted when National League Prexy Ford Frick wired permission to the clubs to use the available 1942 balls, and the Dodgers were the only team with any on hand.

That the Cincinnati Reds, whom we picked to win on pitching and defense, seem to have half of those two traits. The pitching in the first three games was superb, but when the club makes four errors in one game it looks like sabotage, just a bunch of ancient mariners who stoppeth one of three.

That the Yankees seem to have everything but Di Maggio, Henrich, Rolfe and a couple of other guys who could punch home runs. If the margin of victory in their first couple of games was any narrower it would have to be a fraction. And we can imagine the reaction of the late Jake Ruppert, who liked to have his boys win about 19 to 2, if he were watching such goings on. If these 1¼ to 1 scores keep up the other clubs are going to quit spotting Joe McCarthy's team the five runs or so they often gave it through the locker-room jitters before a game.

That Lou Novikoff, the Mad Russian who seems to be really mad at the Cubs, is hurting nobody but himself with his holdout, and if the team sets a winning pace without him he'll be lucky if he's allowed to sign a 50-cent-an-hour contract. Maybe he has a legitimate case. We wouldn't know about that, as we don't know the salary figures involved except by hearsay. But at a time when baseball needs all the harmony it can muster, he's the one guy off key. He'd better trade his harmonica for a tuning fork.

That, despite the meager crowds rattling around in the parks, the general interest in baseball is as great, if not greater, than ever before, and that the light attendance is due purely to the fact so many fans who normally would see the games aren't around.

That if they consider the inability of the Yankees to hoist their league championship pennant opening day a bad omen, maybe there is something ominous in the fact Leo Durocher's picture rested on its side on the floor in a corner of Boss Branch Rickey's office when the scribes visited Rickey the other day.

That Danny Litwhiler had better stop getting three for four, including a home run, as he did against the Dodgers last Saturday or he'll find himself a former Phil. At least, he would if the Phils still were bossed by Gerry Nugent. We have an idea that Bill Cox will get some fancy offers for the outfielder. If he sells him we'll know it is the same old Phils.

That when the White Sox can score the winning runs against the Browns without a hit, it would seem that too much fuss is being made about whether the ball is fast or slow.

A hard-to-handle highball wouldn't be any fun!

That's why Imperial is "velveted"

This "Velveting" works wonders in smoothness—gives IMPERIAL that distinctive, easy-to-take goodness which is making millions say "wonderful!" And—a goodness that has made IMPERIAL one of America's most-wanted whiskies.

But like sugar and coffee, IMPERIAL is on quota—because our stills are now making war alcohol instead of whiskey.

And sometimes delivery is held up a day or so, because shipments of war materials and food naturally come first. So if your store or tavern sometimes cannot supply you with IMPERIAL, please be patient and remember there is a mighty good reason for it.

Hollywood Invites Advice Of British War Expert

Author of Best-Selling War Books Plans Visit; A Friendly Tip to Hollywood Talent Scouts; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

WHETHER IT ESPECIALLY NEEDS IT or not, if Hollywood's invitation is accepted, the film colony soon will be getting some expert advice on the utilization of the motion picture as a medium of public information in the war and postwar periods.

WALTER HUSTON

Through its president, Walter Wanger, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has cabled an invitation to Hilary A. St. George Saunders, author of the now-famous official British war publications, to include Hollywood on the itinerary of his forthcoming visit to America.

Saunders, as the writer who has told Britons the story of their war, has compiled an enviable and almost unprecedented record. His "Battle of Britain," "Bomber Command" and "Front Line" have all reached the ranks of the best-sellers. "Combined Operations," the story of the Commandos and his most recent book, has been chosen as the June selection of the Book-of-the-Month Club, which virtually assures it the same status.

All told, the Saunders books have sold more than 12 million copies—approximately double the last official German total for Mr. Schickelgruber's "Mein Kampf." The books he writes are based on the official, inside operational records of the British armed services.

We have done fairly well with some of the same sort of material on this side—"Wake Island" and "Air Force," for example.

Unfortunate that no one knew it until it was too late, because they were proving themselves gifted and unusually adaptable young players, but Kim Spalding and Barbara Joyce, the Lov Bensey and Ellie May, respectively, of last week's "Tobacco Road," at the National, were comparatively "green" in their parts when they opened here. Spalding, perhaps the best Lov Washington has seen, had assumed the role less than two weeks before appearing here, and Miss Joyce had joined the company in Baltimore only three or four days before it came along to E Street. When they paid the drama department a friendly visit last week, we had difficulty recognizing either one of them. Kim is a cleancut and conscientious young player with a fine talent for acting and Miss Joyce a strikingly beautiful young brunette, who finds herself in the role of Ellie May, the hopelessly disfigured waif of the Georgia scrub country, after three years of valuable experience with the recently disbanded Chekhov Players. If the Hollywood talent scouts are on the prowl, as reputedly they are, for new screen abilities, here are two extremely likely prospects. Spalding could be another Fonda and Miss Joyce a "glamour gal" with the unique additional endowment of capability as an actress.

Reunion in Sienna

Pull one boner each day is what we always say. So, hoping to strike up a contact with an old friend, during that three-hour comestible-confab with Oscar Homolka last Saturday we wondered aloud how well he might know Walter Huston, to whose Ambassador Davies he plays Maxim Litvinoff in the Warner Brothers' forthcoming "Mission to Moscow." Were we not indifferent to such things from long familiarity, Mr. Homolka's look would have been as biting an indictment of our sanity as we'd ever encountered. Wally Huston, of course, was the Cecil Rhodes in the made-in-England "Empire Builder" film, in which Homolka first was seen on the American screen as Oom Paul Kruger. They have been close friends ever since and spend their spare time in Hollywood snacking at each other's homes. "Only our roles are different this time," Mr. Homolka observes. "In 'Cecil Rhodes' we were bitter enemies, fighting like a couple of strange bulldogs. In 'Mission' we are both on 'our side' and get along all right." A couple of pretty good actors, incidentally.

As the last week of rehearsals swings into high at the Jewish Community Center, its sponsors feel increasingly confident that their production of Emlyn Williams "Night Must Fall" will prove the most successful in the history of the J. C. C. drama group. In the role played by Author Williams in the original stage production and by Robert Montgomery on the screen, will be seen Louis Mintz, experienced young player and a former instructor at Columbia. Marc Mindell, formerly of King-Smith, and Iris Truehart, an actress of wide metropolitan experience, will add a further professional touch to the performance. Bernard Nachlas, late of the Motley Players, Baltimore, is directing. The play is scheduled for Sunday night, May 2, in Cafritz Auditorium at the Center.

The Greek Ambassador has cards out for an invitational preview of "Greek Testament," a film showing the Greek effort in the war, in the Department of Interior Auditorium, Thursday night at 9. That's the peak of the day on this department's time clock, worse luck!

Signs-of-the-Times Note

The height of something or other seems to be reached by the advice lettered on the back of that delivery truck that cruises up and down upper Fourteenth Street every now and again: "Don't take a chance—Gamble for meats!"

HEDDA HOPPER

Lots of Luck—All Bad!

Hollywood, Calif., April 26.—"Hi Diddle Diddle" is moving along the wrong way, but in the theater we always says a bad dress rehearsal makes for a good opening. Frist Lupe Velez signed for it. Two songs were specially written. She bowed out, Constance Bennett bowed in. Two new songs were done for her and the part changed from a strip teaser to a night club entertainer. Now she's given over to Virginia Bruce. I haven't heard Virginia sing since she did "I've Got You Under My Skin." That was mighty nice. Her coach was Roger Eden of Metro. Hope she'll be lucky enough to get him again. . . . How come Linda Darnell got a six weeks' honeymoon when Ginger Rogers had three days and Dorothy Lamour two weeks? Linda's wedding reception went off per schedule—after her mother threatened to come and bust it up. . . . 'Tis said that Barbara Pepper and Captain Reynolds will marry over the weekend.

LUPE VELEZ

Welcome

Margarett Bourke-White arrives today to make a speech at the Philharmonic tonight, goes to work on "The North Star" tomorrow. Her latest assignment in Europe was photographing the Krupp munition plants, which our boys and the R. A. F. have been shooting the daylights out of . . . Louis Bromfield won't pull his punches when he subs for Fulton Lewis jr. He's irate about this whole farm business and nobody knows more about farming than Louis. He's made his place pay—but what a struggle! . . . Bettye Avery, whose boy friend used to be Pat di Cicco, was the first of those 16 Goldwyn girls signed up for the Danny Kaye musical.

South American Way

Carmen Miranda has gone all-out for victory. She's wearing a wooden chopping bowl filled with vegetables on her head. Has enough shoes for five years—350 wedgies, which gives her a big buildup. Soles are anywhere from 2 to 4 inches thick. . . . Former cigarette girl Mary Scott of Ciro's is still a cigarette girl in "The Girls He Left Behind." . . . Now that everyone knows Shangri-La was the Hornet, I wonder if the Government will give the go sign to Capt. Ted Lawson's marvelous story, "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo." Metro's already paid $50,000 for it. All that's holding up the picture is the green light. . . . Those two Bills, Pine and Thomas, are launching into "The Duchess Flies High," a musical, and they're signing up 20 vaudeville acts for it. Smart picture making, boys. Vaudeville's back—and how!

When Gypsy Rose Lee was here before she had to change her name, and wore so many clothes she looked like an overstuffed sofa. Now they've not only bought her but "The Star and the Garter" as well . . . Joe E. Brown's next will be "Gone With the Draft," in which he'll use material gathered on his trip through the South Pacific. Joe won't team up with Judy Canova for this one. Her next is "Sleepy Lagoon." . . . You'll be amazed at the new owner of Pantages theater, which is set to change hands within the next few days.

Tiny Garments Can Be Big Problems!

ROBERT BURTON AND RUTH WESTON

as they appear in two of the leading roles in John Golden's production of "The Home Front," a new comedy by Phoebe and Henry Ephron, which last night was given its premiere to launch a week's engagement at the National Theater. The play concerns a "training camp widow," who takes her new baby to live with her cliff-dwelling and nonplussed parents

'The Home Front,' at National, Heavily Fortified With Laughs

By Nelson B. Bell

"THE HOME FRONT." John Golden presents the new comedy in three acts and five scenes by Phoebe and Henry Ephron. Directed by Mr. Ephron; setting by Stewart Chaney. At the National Theater.

Sam Whitaker ..... Robert Burton
Irma Dalrymple ..... Ethel Owen
Adelaide ..... Doro Merande
Kitty Mitchell ..... Katharine Bard
Taxi-driver ..... Joe Verdi
Archie Whitaker ..... Edwin Philips
Hazel ..... Dorothy Gilchrist
Frances Whitaker ..... Ruth Weston
Delivery Man ..... Edmund Dorsay
Eugene Mitchell ..... Francis De Sales
Two Moving Men, Carl Judd, Earl McDonald
Another Maid ..... Gee Gee James
A Girl ..... Jean Bellows
Dr. Bartell ..... William Wadsworth
Joe Franklin ..... Richard Midgley
Marion Franklin ..... Virginia Vass

Out of the perplexities of young parenthood, real, prospective and sometimes premature, Phoebe and Henry Ephron have fashioned a comedy that gives birth to more uproarious laughter than you would think could be contained in such simple situations.

They have placed "The Home Front" in the living room of a small New York apartment, already overcrowded by Sam Whitaker, his wife, his sister-in-law and a maid, and then converted it by progressive steps of mounting hilarity into a maternity ward and then something approximating a companionable, neighborhood lying-in hospital. John Golden has garrisoned the place with a conspicuously competent battalion of farceurs to touch off barrages of mirth that sustain themselves almost continuously through three acts and five scenes.

In two respects this first produced play of two new authors recalls, with no suggestion of imitation, the spontaneous fun of "The Doughgirls." It employs wartime emergencies as a vague sort of background for its "plot" and compresses the immediate concerns of a wide diversity of characters into the surprisingly small compass of a single living compartment. The only other similarity is in the volume of the audience's audible and enthusiastic enjoyment.

Played with remarkable smoothness for a "first time on any metropolitan stage," last night's premiere at the National literally was a howling success. Part of the howling, to be sure, was done by the new babies that arrived in such disquieting succession, but for most of it the audience was responsible—and in ever-increasing crescendo, as befits a play that pursues that sort of rising course.

Sprouts from Modest Beginning

The genesis of the whole thing, as we have said, is simple enough. The Whitakers and the spinster Irma Dalrymple are getting along all right, with Mrs. Whitaker earning the family income and Sam assuming the domestic responsibilities as a penalty for his business obtuseness, until their quick-tempered daughter leaves her quick-tempered husband and comes home to live with her baby daughter.

This is problem enough for one act and one wonders where we go from there until brother Archie Whitaker, who disturbingly resembles his old man, and his wife, Hazel, add their prolific anxieties to the household's disruption. The asperities of Kitty Mitchell's feud with her helpmate, Gene, hasten the advent of another grandchild, whose birth the father barely survives, and their tilt with their young lawyer friend causes his wife to contribute still further to West 110th Street's rising birthrate.

Upon this farcical framework the authors have hung less of dramatic action than of sparkling and spicy dialogue. The characters of their fable are sufficiently contrasted to be amusing in themselves and they have been deployed with maximum humorous effect.

Over and above the Whitaker's purely personal harassments are the sharply pointed problems of servants, medical aid and hospitalization in times of dire need. The comedy's wholly defensible contention is that with the war going on these essential services are nonexistent. If they were, "The Home Front" would be no more than half so funny as it is, for the Whitaker maids and their ancient family physician are among the most fruitful sources of its mirth.

Fun Off the Production Line

Another timely touch of satirical humor is derived from the introduction of the production line as a solution of the Whitakers' economic difficulties. Flippant as most of it is, there are more than a few times when the piece takes time out to prove itself sufficiently in touch with present-day conditions to give it a bit of body.

"The Home Front," furthermore, is the sort of comedy that could not have a "star" without being thrown seriously out of balance. There is not a role in it that is conspicuously subordinate to any of the others. As the elders of the play, Robert Burton, Ruth Weston and Ethel Owen fairly share the spotlight—if there were one—with Katharine Bard and Francis de Sales, as the daughter and son-in-law, who joins the Army to get away from his wife and child. Edwin Philips and Dorothy Gilchrist come to the fore as the second brace of surprised, expectant parents and Richard Midgley and Virginia Vass come in for a last-act blaze of glory under identical circumstances.

The octogenarian Dr. Bartell is raised to the peak of comic effectiveness by William Wadsworth and the two servant problems are given exasperating life by Doro Merande and Gee Gee James. Even Joe Verdi's taxi driver and Jean Bellows' Western Union messenger girl have their moments, brief as they are.

Broadway Gazette

New York, April 26.

WAR DEPARTMENT: When George Corey, the playwright, was in England recently, a man seated next to him on a train invited Corey to share his lunch, and then asked: "Are you from New York?" Corey nodded, and the Britisher asked: "Do you know where the Hotel Sulgrave is?" Corey said he lived one block away from the Sulgrave . . . The man gave him the name of a girl, and said: "She lives at the Sulgrave. My son met her at the Stage Door Canteen. He was killed in Africa" . . . Corey wrote the girl's name in a memo-book. "Just tell her," was the Britisher's message, "my wife and I are sorry that she is not going to be our daughter-in-law."

CARY GRANT

BOOK DEPARTMENT: A new humorous book called "The Sex Refresher" soon will be released for publication by Howell, Soskin. The author's name is listed as "Cleo et Anthony." That's a pseudonym for Ed Anthony, the humorist and light verse writer . . . Anthony decided to use this pseudonym because after he had signed a contract to do this sex book and was half finished with this job, he was appointed publisher of the Woman's Home Companion.

SOCIAL NOTE: A young man, whose face became familiar at the ringside tables of Broadway's night clubs, had a short reign as an imposter. He wore an elegant officer's uniform, bedecked with the decorations for bravery befitting a young man holding a high Army commission. Then he was exposed . . . He still is determined not to wear a private's uniform. He's now in a camp for conscientious objectors.

MOVIES: Cary Grant is telling of the party he attended where the hostess brought her 10-year-old daughter to meet him. The film star shook her hand, and the girl beckoned to him to bend so that she could whisper something into his ear . . . "Cary Grant," the child whispered, "I've been in love with you all my life."

MUSIC: Mishel Piastro, the Philharmonic's concert master, whose dismissal started the musicians' fight with Rodzinski, is giving a concert at Carnegie for the benefit of the Red Cross on April 29. Piastro has performed all over the world. And the concert about which he gave in Sumatra, when the Sultan of Medan sat directly in front of him in the first row . . . The conductor was diverted by the glittering flashes from a large diamond which the Sultan was wearing in lieu of a collar button. The Sultan wore a full-dress suit, but no tie. Piastro asked him about it. "We wear no ties in Sumatra," the Sultan explained, "for a tie about the neck is the sign of a man condemned to be hanged."

TRAVEL DEPARTMENT: Andre Maurois, the French novelist, is about to leave for North Africa. "How did Maurois ever get the State Department to give him a visa?" a noted Frenchman was asked . . . "Oh, that wasn't hard," was the answer. "He probably showed them that article he once wrote for Life in defense of Petain."

DRAMA DEPARTMENT: George Mitchell is an actor who appears in a few scenes of "The Patriots." On February 3 the case saw him seated on a chair outside of the dressing rooms. He began to read Tolstoy's "War and Peace." When he heard his cue, Mitchell would leave the opened book on that chair, walk on stage, and then return to his reading . . . For the past 11 weeks Mitchell never varied from this routine, until Thursday night—when the other actors noticed that the chair was gone and so was the book. On the bulletin board they found this note: "I Wish to Announce That I Have Finished 'War and Peace'—George Mitchell."

PHOTO DEPARTMENT: All the newspapers recently published a press association photo showing Mme. Chiang Kai-shek shaking hands with Orson Welles, with whom she seemed to be engaged in earnest conversation. As a matter of record, the entire conversation consisted of exactly 13 words. Welles, who was brought to the platform because he once had visited China, said: "I met your Minister in Washington," and Mme. Chiang replied: "Really? Nice of you to come here."

D. C. Utilities Parent Reports Dip in Income

Consolidated net income of the North Company, utilities system which controls a substantial interest in two Washington companies, was $4,736,863 in the first quarter equal to 44 cents a common share. This compares with a revised net in the comparable 1942 quarter equal to 45 cents a share.

President E. L. Shea said net income of the parent company alone —that part of the earnings of subsidiaries paid to North American as dividends and income from other investments—for the 12 months ended March 31—equaled $1.24 a common share against $1.60 in the preceding 12 months.

Shea said combined electric output for the first quarter of this year was 20 per cent above that of the like 1942 quarter.

North American expects to continue making dividend payments, as warranted by earnings, in shares of companies in which it has investments, Shea said.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

B. & O. Gross Up 20 Million

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company reported yesterday that its operating revenues for March totaled $30,027,425, a gain of $6,008,597 over those of the same month last year.

Operating revenues for the first three months of this year exceeded those of the first quarter of 1942 by $20,081,810, the company reported.

The net income for the first three months of 1943, after all charges, was reported as $9,693,-150, which exceeded that of the correspnoding period last year by $5,682,323.

Porter Wins Regional Title

Stephen O. Porter of the Riggs National Bank will represent this region in the national public speaking contest to be held in Chicago on June 9. Mr. Porter won the regional title at a contest in Pittsburgh Saturday. The speaking contests are sponsored by the American Institute of Banking.

Pepco Dividends Voted

Directors of Potomac Electric Power Company have declared regular quarterly dividends as follows: $1.50 on the 6 per cent preferred stock; $1.37½ on the 5½ per cent preferred stock. Both dividends are payable June 1 to stockholders of record May 15.

2 Named to Committees

Two Washingtonians have been appointed to committees of the United States Savings and Loan League, it was announced yesterday.

F. Willson Camp, secretary-treasurer of the District Building & Loan Association, was named to the league's Committee on Economic Policies. William E. Poulton, treasurer of the Columbia & Federal Savings & Loan Association, was made a member of the Oratory Contest Committee.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, April 26 (AP).—Wheat prices were depressed throughout most of the session today, although a mild rally toward the close erased a major part of early losses. Rye weakened with the broad cereal, while oats generally displayed comparative firmness.

At the finish wheat was ⅛ to ¼ lower, May 1.43⅜, July 1.43; corn was unchanged at ceilings, May 1.05; oats were ½ lower to ⅝ higher, and rye was down ¼ cent. Trading in all pits was quiet and uneventful.

WE'VE GOT TO BE TOUGHER WITH OURSELVES . . .

If We Expect to Win This War!

Copyright—U. S. Coast Guard Photos

YES—we've got to be a lot tougher . . .

Too many of us have been fighting this war from an easy chair.

Many of us have been content to buy War Bonds out of money we didn't miss too much. That has been the easy way . . . but things are different now.

This is WAR . . . bloody, death-dealing, uncompromising war! There is no turning back.

WE'VE GOT TO BUY MORE BONDS!

We've got to buy Bonds or submit to bondage. We've got to SACRIFICE . . . do without our accustomed "extras" for the duration. The dimes, quarters, the dollars we save will help to win the war SOONER!

American boys are fighting . . . yes . . . and dying! And they will keep on dying until we crush the enemy in an overwhelming torrent of bombs, bullets, guns, tanks, ships and planes.

That's why we must, in this one month of April alone, lend Uncle Sam 13 Billion Dollars. 13 Billions of sacrifice dollars—over and above any casual bond buying we have done to date.

Yes, we've got to be a lot tougher!

Army Reports Young D. C. Officer Missing

ANDERSON

Decorated by Gen. Doolittle in England last year and holder of the oak leaf cluster, Captain Anderson has participated in numerous sorties over the continent. Last October 6 he and three companions reportedly bagged four of the dreaded German Focke-Wolf 190's, when they were engaged in the "mightiest punch of the war by United States bombers" up to that time.

Captain Anderson was born in New Haven, Conn., went to Indiana University and made his home in Indianapolis from where his family came last June to make their home here. His mother has a number of flying hours herself and his younger brother is a civilian pilot. Captain Anderson was transferred to the U. S. A. A. F. last September.

Besides his mother, his two brothers, Vachel Worthington Anderson, 2d, and William Pope Anderson, 4th, live also in Washington.

War Services Group Decries Action by D. C.

Charging the District Commissioners with "having abandoned the program that enlisted and directed the efforts of thousands of volunteers . . . in a concerted war effort," the War Service Planning Committee yesterday discussed the future status of war services activities in Washington.

The charge was contained in a resolution adopted by the members, urging that the Commissioners "reconsider" their refusal last week to support an amendment to the "blackout bill" which would provide $60,000 in funds for supervision of civilian defense activities.

The action followed a demand Sunday by Sidney Katz, executive secretary, that Congress investigate the proposed discontinuance of the war services office.

Resolution Adopted

"If we are paralyzed into virtual inaction through loss of the civilian war services," the resolution stated, "it will not require enemy bombs to reduce the war effort of the District. Only through organized group action, such as civilian war services, can the community give Washington a real chance to contribute its full strength to the national job—winning the war."

Should the Commissoiners go through with their decision, the war services office will close next Friday. Paid employes already have been notified that no funds will be available after that date.

Officials' Decision

Action to discontinue operation of the office reversed a proposal on March 16, by the Commissioners to seek legislation which would bring the civilian war services directly into the District Civilian Department. At that time, it proposed that the service would be responsible to the Commissioners through the Department of Civilian Defense, and would deal with such local problems as housing, transportation, health, child care needs, and clarification of OPA regulations.

In explaining their recent decision, the Commissioners pointed out that the suggested legislation would be a "substantial encroachment upon existing agencies" and that the activities would "best be carried on by volunteers and not with public funds."

Ickes Ordered To Pay $64,000 In Oil Royalties

Secretary of Interior Ickes yesterday was ordered to pay $64,000 in oil royalties, allegedly wrongfully withheld from the rightful owners.

The decision was made by the United States Court of Appeals as a culmination of 15 years litigation in State and Federal tribunals. The Appellate Court upheld a judgment against Ickes obtained by Attorneys Neil Burkinshaw and Daniel V. Maher in District Court. It was successfully contended that Ickes wrongfully refused to pay the royalties to a group of Oklahomans represented by H. E. Ledbetter of Ardmore, Okla., as trustee.

A group of Choctaw Indians originally held the oil rights on lands constituting tribal properties in Carter County, Oklahoma. These Indians later assigned their rights to a group of Oklahomans represented by Ledbetter as trustee, whom Ickes had refused to pay.

Pilot Shows Eyes Sound; Bags 3 Japs

Somewhere in the South Pacific, April 5 (Delayed).—First Lieut. Arthur E. Nehf, jr., 24, a Marine pilot of Phoenix, Ariz., is a happy man—he has overcome an eye injury which threatened to end his flying days. He downed three Japanese bombers over Guadalcanal to prove there is nothing wrong with his eyesight.

Nehf, whose father is Art Nehf, the southpaw pitcher who worked for 18 seasons in the National League, was injured in a forced landing. Doctors expressed doubt he would ever fly again.

A flying buddy said Nehf "made up his mind he was going to fly again, raise the dickens with the enemy—and bag a few planes for himself. I never saw a happier fellow than Lieutenant Nehf the day he was riding in after the air battle. He kept repeating: "Who said my eye isn't all right?"

And, the buddy related, the record gives Nehf credit for three bombers downed when a fighter squadron led by Capt. Joe Foss of Sioux Falls, S. D., accounted for 16 enemy planes.

5 Jap Planes Destroyed

With the American Air Force in China, April 25 (Delayed) (AP).—Five Japanese planes were definitely destroyed and four others were probably shot down Saturday when American fighters intercepted a flight of 25 enemy aircraft near an advance airbase in Hunnan Province.

Pilots of American P-40s emerged without loss of a single American plane, despite the fact they were outnumbered two to one. One of the American craft was slightly damaged by machinegun bullets.

Capt. John Hampshire, of Grant's Pass, Oreg., got two confirmed victories over Japanese pilots for a total of eight enemy planes destroyed in the air and one on the ground to become the leading ace of Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's new Fourteenth Air Force.

One Zero reached the airdrome and dropped propaganda leaflets before it was shot down.

Gas Defense Practice

Somewhere in Europe, April 26 (AP).—Germany has begun an intensive educational campaign on defense against poison gas, it was learned today.

Defense practices have been underway for the last six weeks throughout the Reich, these reports said, and every suitable factory is turning out large quantities of new gas masks and other protective apparatus.

The British government last week charged that the Germans were preparing to use gas against the Russians, and warned that Britain was ready to counter with the same weapon.

Southern States Now Observing Confederate Memorial Days

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, April 26.—Members of the "Confederate States of America" paused today in memory of those who fought three wars ago—and the pause brought realization that the rebel yell is a faint echo of the past.

Today, in another war, a global war, Americans are united, but to Southerners the pride of those gaunt, gray lines of '65 is a generation-to-generation heritage. And once a year, on varying dates, they observe a Confederate Memorial Day.

For Alabama, Georgia, Florida and Mississippi that is today, observed with simple rites. Texas held its observance Easter Sunday. The Carolinas pause for memorials on May 10, Arkansas May 2, Virginia May 30, while Louisiand Tennessee wait until June 3, birthday of Jefferson Davis, the Confederate president.

Today there is a bare handful left from among the gallant million who fought for the seceding South. In the 11 "Confederate States" scarcely 300 of those gray-clad men remain, and perhaps 10,000 of their widows. Most of the veterans now occupy Confederate soldiers' homes, all-but-forgotten in a day when a new war focuses attention on the far corners of the earth.

But to them is left the sound of ghostly bugles, the tramp of a million phantom boots, the scent of dead campfires along the march whence Robert E. Lee led them to storm the heights of Pennsylvania.

They see a flag a-shimmering in the setting sun, dust clouds puffing under shuffling feet of thousands. Again the saddle chains are clinking, the canteens clinking and the caissons rumble forward.

Out in front, at the head of them all, rides Lee—a grave, gray man on a gray horse. Yonder rides Longstreet, Lee's right arm now that Jackson is gone. There on a roan horse is old Dick Ewell, strapped to his saddle because of a wooden leg brought from second Manassas. And there, too, is A. P. Hill, bearded like a prophet. Old Jube Early, and Gordon the Magnificent, whose black ostrich plume marked where fighting was heaviest.

Behind them are the gaunt, bewhiskered legions of the Confederacy.

They have memories—that handful that still lives on. And Confederate Memorial Day is observed, lest another generation forget the trials that fused a nation.

Governor Edison's Mother Leaves Republican Party

West Orange, N. J., April 26 (AP). Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, widow of the inventor and mother of New Jersey's Democratic Governor Charles Edison, announced today she had withdrawn from the Republican Party and would hereafter be an Independent.

Her son has been engaged in a lengthy feud with both the Republican majority in the State Senate and with Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, powerful Democratic leader.

May Queen Named

Sweet Briar, Va., April 26 (AP).—Miss Muriel Grymes of East Orange, N. J., will reign as the thirty-sixth queen of Sweet Briar College's May Day celebratoin here Saturday—an annual event since Sweet Briar was founded in 1907.

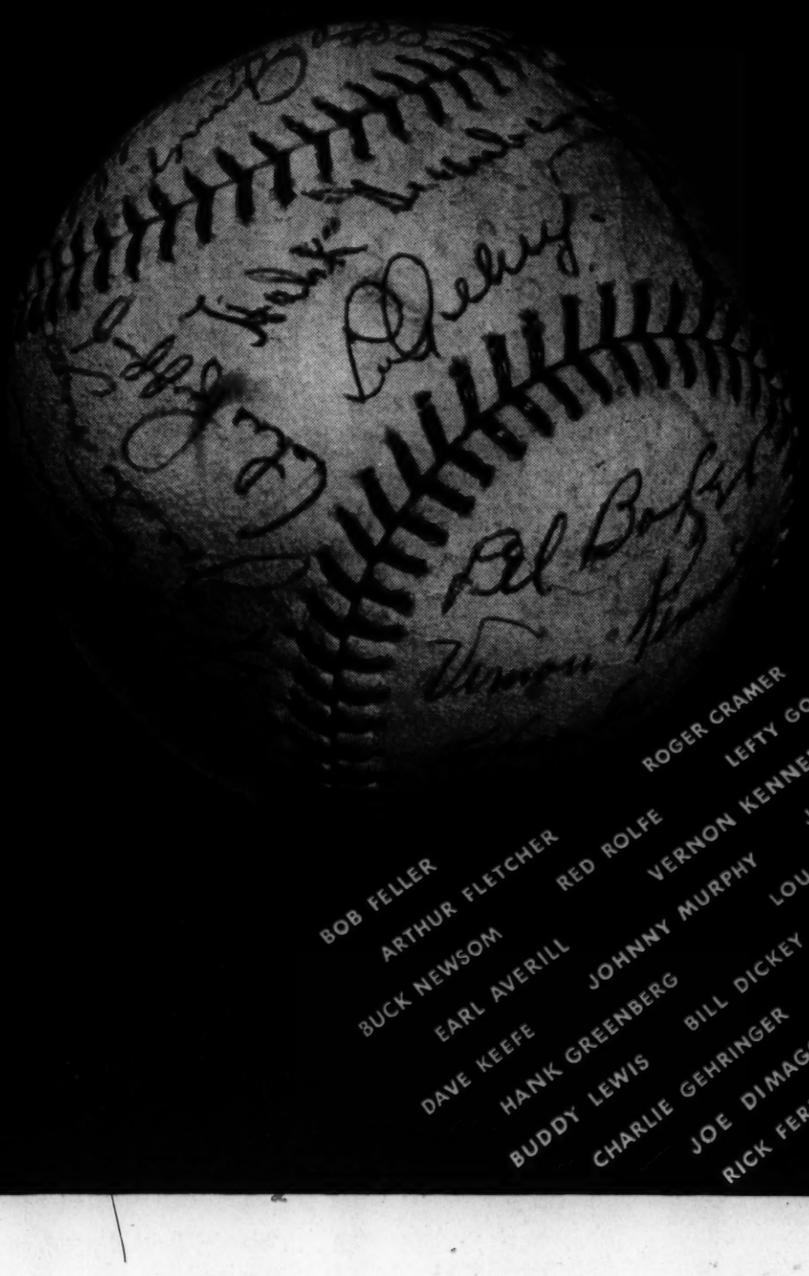
HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO OWN THIS ALL STAR BALL?



BALL CONTRIBUTED BY GENE BUDCHS

It's an autographed ball . . . a big league ball . . . used in the 1938 All Star game . . . a grand part of the America we're all fighting for! Each star and coach of the American League team put his name on the cover. Just read over those names printed up there in the picture. It was Lou Gehrig's last All Star game.

It's a prize no real ball fan will want to miss. And here's how you can win it.

BUY A BOND

Here are the three easy steps: (1) Buy a United States War Bond this week. (2) Write or telephone your name and amount of the Bond to the Gunther Sports Special . . . Lexington 8813—Radio Station WITH. (3) The individual who buys the highest amount of Bonds from Monday, April 26, to Saturday, May 1, inclusive, will receive this treasured ball, signed by these baseball greats. Every buyer of a Bond in this baseball drive will be mentioned over the radio.

EVERYONE WINS SOMETHING

You can't lose . . . because you'll have done a job to help win the war. But, in addition, every person who reports buying a Bond in this drive . . . regardless of the amount, will get honorable mention over the air . . . and will be mailed a picture of the All Stars who played in this 1938 game.

If you're a ball fan . . . if you love your country . . . here's a chance to show it.

OPA Planning Price Ceilings On Vegetables

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

As soon as the Office of Price Administration can work out permanent through-the-year prices for seven fresh vegetables already under ceilings, action can be expected to curb skyrocketing costs of the important "miscellaneous" group, OPA officials said yesterday.

Included on this uncurbed list are such standbys as asparagus, kale, beets, rhubarb, cauliflower and cucumbers. Both OPA and the consumer are worried by what is happening to their prices, but indications are they will not be put under ceilings until the seven basics are pegged down permanently.

OPA Order Ends Ceiling Prices On Household and Other Items

By Edwin D. Gritz
Post Staff Writer

OPA's avowed policy of removing price restrictions wherever possible and as soon as possible moved cautiously along yesterday with the announcement that a number of household accessories and repair services are freed from price ceilings.

At the same time, OPA officials warned that the action did not necessarily mean that restrictions would be lifted soon, if at all, on other more generally used articles like fur coats or jewelry.

In lifting price control from the items, OPA stressed that the commodities had no direct bearing on the cost of living, while their control involves administrative and enforcement difficulties out of all proportion to their intrinsic significance.

Exempted from price control by today's order were the following notions and household accessories: tie and shoe racks, pin cushions, shoe horns, wigs and toupees, comforter grippers, comb cleaners, bookends, portable door stops and paper weights, mirror table plateaus, beverage coasters, dinner bells and chimes, figurines and ornamental statuary, wood-carved figures and animals, novelty table centerpieces and decorations, including artificial flower centerpieces, glass flowers, artificial fruit and place-card holders; novelties made of butterfly wings, sea shells and gourds, novelty wall plaques, masks and decorations, music boxes and bird houses.

Also exempted were:

Floor - sweeping compounds, sphagnum moss, florists' foliage, decorative and trimming products, cathedral glass, wrought - iron fences, wrought-iron balustrades, lightning rods, weather vanes, cast-iron cornices, steel or iron marquees, ornamental iron brackets, sesame meal, whole crab and shrimp meal, ground peanut hay.

The following services were exempted:

Lubrication, maintenance, painting, rental, repair, storage, washing or other servicing or aircraft, air-raid precautionary services dealing with buildings or parts thereof, carpentry repairs (shop work only), rental of costumes and dress suits, maintenance, rental or repair of public-address systems, maintenance, painting or repair of signs, remodeling, rental or repair of guns and other sporting goods.

Admiral McMorris Awarded Navy Cross

Philadelphia, April 26 (AP).—Award of the Navy Cross to Rear Admiral Charles H. McMorris, who commanded the cruiser San Francisco during the battle of Cape Esperance, October 11-12, was announced yesterday by the Navy Department.

After the battle McMorris was advanced from captain and given another command at sea, the Navy said. His successor as commander of the San Francisco, Capt. Cassin Young of Philadelphia, was killed in the battle of Guadalcanal, November 13-15.

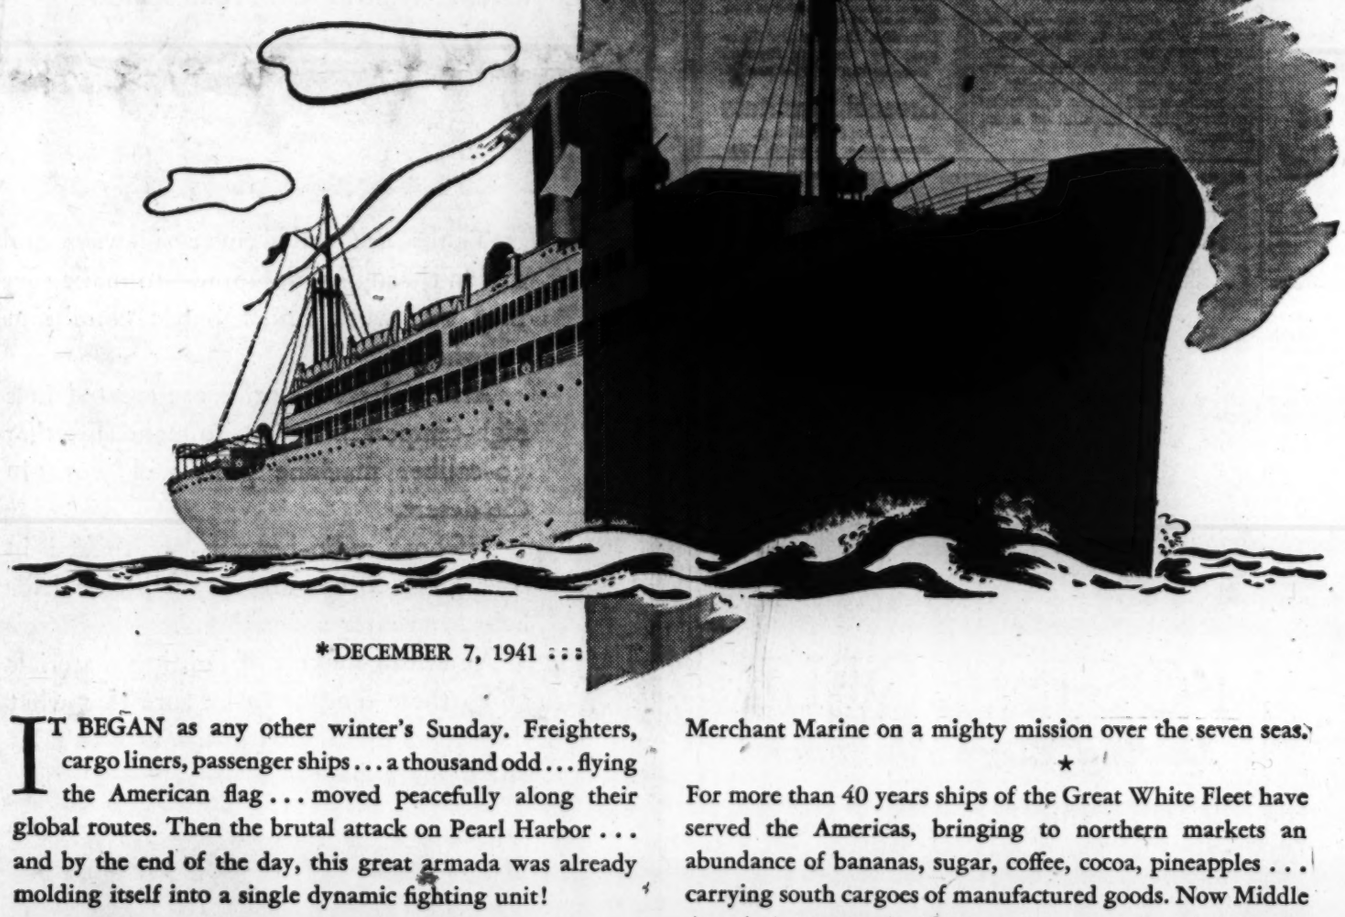
The day* that changed a thousand ships...



*DECEMBER 7, 1941

IT BEGAN as any other winter's Sunday. Freighters, cargo liners, passenger ships... a thousand odd... flying the American flag... moved peacefully along their global routes. Then the brutal attack on Pearl Harbor... and by the end of the day, this great armada was already molding itself into a single dynamic fighting unit!

From peace to war—overnight! New routes. New destinations. New cargoes. New passengers. A stunning transition... made swiftly and efficiently by the sea and shore staffs of America's Merchant Marine.

You probably wouldn't recognize a ship of the Great White Fleet if you saw one today—so complete is the change from peacetime white to fighting grey. But guns and grey are for the business of war—and the Great White Fleet is proud to be an integral part of the fighting American Merchant Marine on a mighty mission over the seven seas.

For more than 40 years ships of the Great White Fleet have served the Americas, bringing to northern markets an abundance of bananas, sugar, coffee, cocoa, pineapples... carrying south cargoes of manufactured goods. Now Middle America's progressive farmers are converting their fertile land to the production of such urgently needed war commodities as rubber, hemp, and rotenone (insecticide), while banana cultivations are still maintained—ready to help feed a war-ravaged world.

After the war—or perhaps before—the Great White Fleet will return to its familiar Middle American routes... eager to contribute to the greater opportunities for the exchange of America's goods and services that will be so inevitable a part of the world of tomorrow.

Army Reports Young D. C. Officer Missing

ANDERSON

Decorated by Gen. Doolittle in England last year and holder of the oak leaf cluster, Captain Anderson has participated in numerous sorties over the continent. Last October 6 he and three companions reportedly bagged four of the dreaded German Focke-Wolf 190's, when they were engaged in the "mightiest punch of the war by United States bombers" up to that time.

Captain Anderson was born in New Haven, Conn., went to Indiana University and made his home in Indianapolis from where his family came last June to make their home here. His mother has a number of flying hours herself and his younger brother is a civilian pilot. Captain Anderson was transferred to the U. S. A. A. F. last September.

War Services Group Decries Action by D. C.

Charging the District Commissioners with "having abandoned the program that enlisted and directed the efforts of thousands of volunteers . . . in a concerted war effort," the War Service Planning Committee yesterday discussed the future status of war services activities in Washington.

The charge was contained in a resolution adopted by the members, urging that the Commissioners "reconsider" their refusal last week to support an amendment to the "blackout bill" which would provide $60,000 in funds for supervision of civilian defense activities.

The action followed a demand Sunday by Sidney Katz, executive secretary, that Congress investigate the proposed discontinuance of the war services office.

Resolution Adopted

"If we are paralyzed into virtual inaction through loss of the civilian war services," the resolution stated, "it will not require enemy bombs to reduce the war effort of the District. Only through organized group action, such as civilian war services, can the community give Washington a real chance to contribute its full strength to the national job—winning the war."

Should the Commissoiners go through with their decision, the war services office will close next Friday. Paid employes already have been notified that no funds will be available after that date.

Officials' Decision

Action to discontinue operation of the office reversed a proposal on March 16, by the Commissioners to seek legislation which would bring the civilian war services directly into the District Civilian Department. At that time, it proposed that the service would be responsible to the Commissioners through the Department of Civilian Defense, and would deal with such local problems as housing, transportation, health, child care needs, and clarification of OPA regulations.

In explaining their recent decision, the Commissioners pointed out that the suggested legislation would be a "substantial encroachment upon existing agencies" and that the activities would "best be carried on by volunteers and not with public funds."

Ickes Ordered To Pay $64,000 In Oil Royalties

Secretary of Interior Ickes yesterday was ordered to pay $64,000 in oil royalties, allegedly wrongfully withheld from the rightful owners.

The decision was made by the United States Court of Appeals as a culmination of 15 years litigation in State and Federal tribunals. The Appellate Court upheld a judgment against Ickes obtained by Attorneys Nell Burkinshaw and Daniel V. Maher in District Court. It was successfully contended that Ickes wrongfully refused to pay the royalties to a group of Oklahomans represented by H. E. Ledbetter of Ardmore, Okla., as trustee.

A group of Choctaw Indians originally held the oil rights on lands constituting tribal properties in Carter County, Oklahoma. These Indians later assigned their rights to a group of Oklahomans represented by Ledbetter as trustee, whom Ickes had refused to pay.

War Sidelights

Pilot Shows Eyes Sound; Bags 3 Japs

(The following story written by Sergt. Jack Walsh, Philadelphia, Marine Corps combat correspondent; was distributed by the Associated Press.)

Somewhere in the South Pacific, April 5 (Delayed).—First Lieut. Arthur E. Nehf, jr., 24, a Marine pilot of Phoenix, Ariz., is a happy man—he has overcome an eye injury which threatened to end his flying days. He downed three Japanese bombers over Guadalcanal to prove there is nothing wrong with his eyesight.

Nehf, whose father is Art Nehf, the southpaw pitcher who worked for 18 seasons in the National League, was injured in a forced landing. Doctors expressed doubt he would ever fly again.

A flying buddy said Nehf "made up his mind he was going to fly again, raise the dickens with the enemy—and bag a few planes for himself. I never saw a happier fellow than Lieutenant Nehf the day he was riding in after the air battle. He kept repeating: "Who said my eye isn't all right?"

And, the buddy related, the record gives Nehf credit for three bombers downed when a fighter squadron led by Capt. Joe Foss of Sioux Falls, S. D., accounted for 16 enemy planes.

5 Jap Planes Destroyed

With the American Air Force in China, April 25 (Delayed) (AP).—Five Japanese planes were definitely destroyed and four others were probably shot down Saturday when American fighters intercepted a flight of 25 enemy aircraft near an advance airbase in Hunnan Province.

Pilots of American P-40s emerged without loss of a single American plane, despite the fact they were outnumbered two to one. One of the American craft was slightly damaged by machinegun bullets.

Capt. John Hampshire, of Grant's Pass, Oreg., got two confirmed victories over Japanese pilots for a total of eight enemy planes destroyed in the air and one on the ground to become the leading ace of Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's new Fourteenth Air Force.

One Zero reached the airdrome and dropped propaganda leaflets before it was shot down.

Gas Defense Practice

Somewhere in Europe, April 26 (AP).—Germany has begun an intensive educational campaign on defense against poison gas, it was learned today.

Defense practices have been underway for the last six weeks throughout the Reich, these reports said, and every suitable factory is turning out large quantities of new gas masks and other protective apparatus.

The British government last week charged that the Germans were preparing to use gas against the Russians, and warned that Britain was ready to counter with the same weapon.

Southern States Now Observing Confederate Memorial Days

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, April 26.—Members of the "Confederate States of America" paused today in memory of those who fought three wars ago—and the pause brought realization that the rebel yell is a faint echo of the past.

Today, in another war, a global war, Americans are united, but to Southerners the pride of those gaunt, gray lines of '65 is a generation-to-generation heritage. And once a year, on varying dates, they observe a Confederate Memorial Day.

For Alabama, Georgia, Florida and Mississippi that is today, observed with simple rites. Texas held its observance Easter Sunday. The Carolinas pause for memorials on May 10, Arkansas May 2, Virginia May 30, while Louisiand Tennessee wait until June 3, birthday of Jefferson Davis, the Confederate president.

Today there is a bare handful left from among the gallant million who fought for the seceding South. In the 11 "Confederate States" scarcely 300 of those gray-clad men remain, and perhaps 10,000 of their widows. Most of the veterans now occupy Confederate soldiers' homes, all-but-forgotten in a day when a new war focuses attention on the far corners of the earth.

But to them is left the sound of ghostly bugles, the tramp of a million phantom boots, the scent of dead campfires along the march whence Robert E. Lee led them to storm the heights of Pennsylvania.

They see a flag a-shimmering in the setting sun, dust clouds puffing under shuffling feet of thousands. Again the saddle chains are clinking, the canteens clinking and the caissons rumble forward.

Out in front, at the head of them all, rides Lee—a grave, gray man on a gray horse. Yonder rides Longstreet, Lee's right arm now that Jackson is gone. There on a roan horse is old Dick Ewell, strapped to his saddle because of a wooden leg brought from second Manassas. And there, too, is A. P. Hill, bearded like a prophet. Old Jube Early, and Gordon the Magnificent, whose black ostrich plume marked where fighting was heaviest.

Behind them are the gaunt, bewhiskered legions of the Confederacy.

They have memories—that handful that still lives on. And Confederate Memorial Day is observed, lest another generation forget the trials that fused a nation.

OPA Planning Price Ceilings On Vegetables

By Christine Sadler

As soon as the Office of Price Administration can work out permanent through-the-year prices for seven fresh vegetables already under ceilings, action can be expected to curb skyrocketing costs of the important "miscellaneous" group, OPA officials said yesterday.

OPA Order Ends Ceiling Prices On Household and Other Items

By Edwin D. Gritz
Post Staff Writer

OPA's avowed policy of removing price restrictions wherever possible and as soon as possible moved cautiously along yesterday with the announcement that a number of household accessories and repair services are freed from price ceilings.

At the same time, OPA officials warned that the action did not necessarily mean that restrictions would be lifted soon, if at all, on other more generally used articles like fur coats or jewelry.

In lifting price control from the items, OPA stressed that the commodities had no direct bearing on the cost of living, while their control involves administrative and enforcement difficulties out of all proportion to their intrinsic significance.

Exempted from price control by today's order were the following notions and household accessories: tie and shoe racks, pin cushions, shoe horns, wigs and toupees, comforter grippers, comb cleaners, bookends, portable door stops and paper weights, mirror table plateaus, beverage coasters, dinner bells and chimes, figurines and ornamental statuary, wood-carved figures and animals, novelty table centerpieces and decorations, including artificial flower centerpieces, glass flowers, artificial fruit and place-card holders; novelties made of butterfly wings, sea shells and gourds, novelty wall plaques, masks and decorations, music boxes and bird houses.

Also exempted were:

Floor-sweeping compounds, sphagnum moss, florists' foliage, decorative and trimming products, cathedral glass, wrought-iron fences, wrought-iron balustrades, lightning rods, weather vanes, cast-iron cornices, steel or iron marquees, ornamental iron brackets, sesame meal, whole crab and shrimp meal, ground peanut hay.

The following services were exempted:

Lubrication, maintenance, painting, rental, repair, storage, washing or other servicing or aircraft, air-raid precautionary services dealing with buildings or parts thereof, carpentry repairs (shop work only), rental of costumes and dress suits, maintenance, painting or repair of signs, remodeling, rental or repair of guns and other sporting goods.

Admiral McMorris Awarded Navy Cross

Philadelphia, April 26 (AP).—Award of the Navy Cross to Rear Admiral Charles H. McMorris, who commanded the cruiser San Francisco during the battle of Cape Esperance, October 11-12, was announced yesterday by the Navy Department.

After the battle McMorris was advanced from captain and given another command at sea, the Navy said. His successor as commander of the San Francisco, Capt. Cassin Young of Philadelphia, was killed in the battle of Guadalcanal, November 13-15.

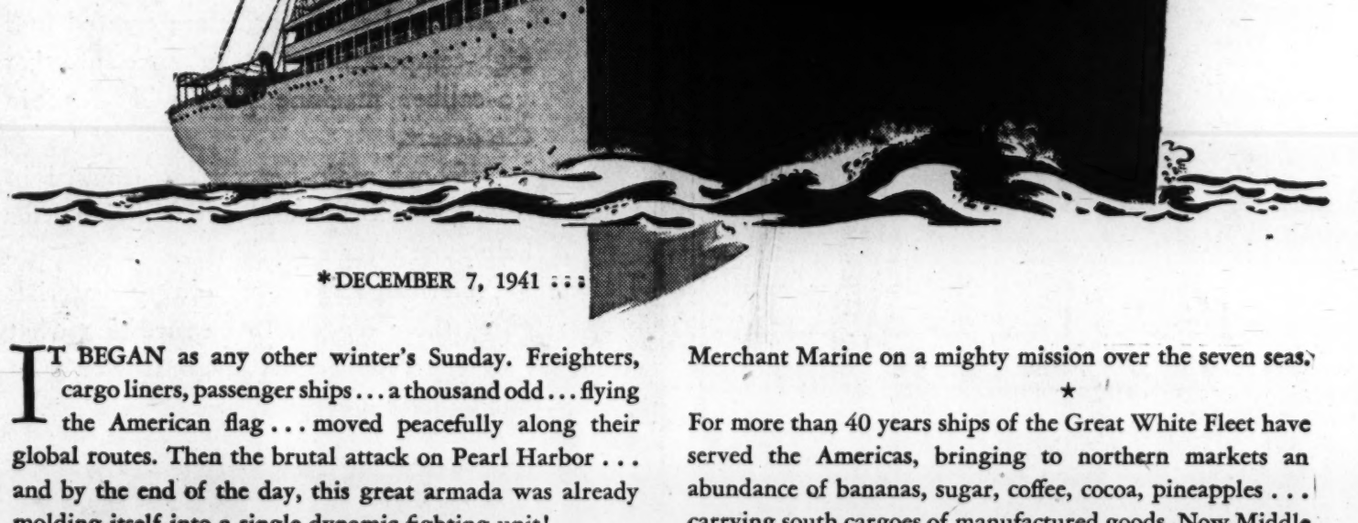
The day* that changed a thousand ships...



*DECEMBER 7, 1941 . . .

IT BEGAN as any other winter's Sunday. Freighters, cargo liners, passenger ships . . . a thousand odd . . . flying the American flag . . . moved peacefully along their global routes. Then the brutal attack on Pearl Harbor . . . and by the end of the day, this great armada was already molding itself into a single dynamic fighting unit!

From peace to war—overnight! New routes. New destinations. New cargoes. New passengers. A stunning transition . . . made swiftly and efficiently by the sea and shore staffs of America's Merchant Marine.

You probably wouldn't recognize a ship of the Great White Fleet if you saw one today—so complete is the change from peacetime white to fighting grey. But guns and grey are for the business of war—and the Great White Fleet is proud to be an integral part of the fighting American Merchant Marine on a mighty mission over the seven seas.

For more than 40 years ships of the Great White Fleet have served the Americas, bringing to northern markets an abundance of bananas, sugar, coffee, cocoa, pineapples . . . carrying south cargoes of manufactured goods. Now Middle America's progressive farmers are converting their fertile land to the production of such urgently needed war commodities as rubber, hemp, and rotenone (insecticide), while banana cultivations are still maintained—ready to help feed a war-ravaged world.

After the war—or perhaps before—the Great White Fleet will return to its familiar Middle American routes . . . eager to contribute to the greater opportunities for the exchange of America's goods and services that will be so inevitable a part of the world of tomorrow.

Symphony's Drive Ends With $90,052

With $90,052 of its $115,000 goal achieved, the National Symphony Orchestra yestreday came to the official end of its sustaining fund drive, but laid plans to continue informally until the quota is reached.

At a report meeting in Hotel Statler, Elsa Maxwell nad Lieut. Burgess Meredith, stage and screen star now on duty with the Army Air Forces, told volunteer workers of two different aspects of America's need for classical music.

"Don't feel that you are unpatriotic in asking for funds now for your symphony orchestra," Miss Maxwell said. "Work like yours is the first battle line on the home front—a battle for the preservation of civilization. Why must you go out and beg like mendicants to preserve this great American institution? I have seen tiny villages in Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Rumania, Switzerland all able to support their own orchestras without difficulty. Perhaps there is no James Petrillo and no Local 802 in those little towns."

She added that it was "a horrible commentary" on our country that preservation of orchestras cannot be accomplished without the interjection of politics.

"Last night, however, I attended a small party where I met one politician who knows music," Miss Maxwell said. "He is Senator Happy Chandler, who has one of the finest tenor voices I have ever heard. I told him that I was to attend your luncheon today to congratulate or stimulate or animate workers and suggested that he propose legislation to foster symphony orchestras. Perhaps you people should put pressure upon Senator Chandler to sing a group of old Irish folk songs at one of your concerts."

Lieutenant Meredith pointed out that votes have been taken from enlisted men in every Army camp on what kind of music they prefer.

"Naturally, there are many who always will want Benny Goodman and Tommy Dorsey, but there also is a great and important group of men who want good music and want it to be kept going behind their backs so that it will be here waiting for them when they return," he said. "If you can keep it going you're doing a damned good job."

Reports from various committees of the campaign showed that the following percentages of individual quotas have been reached: Army, 107 per cent; associations, 72.8 per cent; business, 67.6 per cent; education, 99 per cent; Government, 37.1 per cent; metropolitan, 84.9 per cent; national artists, 161.6 per cent; Navy-Marine, 107.5 per cent; Orchestra Guild, 7.44 per cent, and suburban, 64.8 per cent.

Celebration To Be Held at War Memorial

Servicemen and women will be honor guests at the District World War Memorial at a special May Day celebration Sunday at 4 p. m., sponsored by the American Legion and its affiliated groups.

Feature of the program is a song tribute in memory of Mrs. Frank B. Noyes, late wife of the founder and chairman of the 1931 Memorial Commission and president of the Evening Star Co. Mrs. Noyes was responsible for the picturesque landscaping of the ground surrounding the World War Memorial.

Miss Hilda Nelson, soloist, will sing Joyce Kilmer's "Trees," accompanied by the Marine Band, which also will give a concert to open the ceremonies at 4 p. m. Massing of the colors by patriotic organizations of World War I will be held at 4:30, and the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, chaplain of the Senate, will give the invocation.

The Marine Band will accompany community singing and Mrs. Edna Wright will direct a "poppy processional" by young daughters of war veterans each bearing part of a chain of poppies for the 435 men and women whose names are inscribed around the memorial.

Speakers will be Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Administrator of Veterans' Affairs for the past 20 years; Patrick J. Fitzgibbons, department comander of the American Legion, and Mrs. Edith S. Sadler, department president of the Legion Auxiliary.

The memorial is in West Potomac Park, near the Tidal Basin.

D. C. Man Among 156 Held by Germans

Technical Sergt. Randle E. Nettles, son of Mrs. Ellen J. Ulmer of 1228 Eleventh Street Northwest, is one of 156 United States soldiers held prisoners of war by Germany, the War Department announced yesterday. The list also included the name of Lieut. John K. Waters, son-in-law of Lieut. Geroge S. Patton, jr., commander of the Second United States Army Air Corps, as interned at Oflag VII B.

Netles was born in Georgia 20 years ago and attended Atlanta High School. He enlisted in the Army Air Corps a year and a half ago, shortly after he came to Washington. Last word from him was a letter written February 7, and the War Department first reported him missing on March 1.

A brother, R. L. Nettles, is with the Merchant Marine, while two stepbrothers are also in the service, Technical Sergt. R. G. Ulmer, jr., and A. C. Joseph E. Ulmer.

Also reported prisoners, camp unstated, were Staff Sergt. Charles D. Hill of Baltimore, Md., and First Lieut. Robert A. Lucy of Scottsburg, Va.

Martha Ellyn Slayback

When Martha tells you she's a Hoosier she isn't fooling—in fact she still owns a farm back in Indiana somewhere. And her favorites are all Hoosiers—Wendell Willkie, Paul McNutt, Claude Wickard. Nor is Martha's interest in cooking and homemaking a new one. She made her first quilt at the age of 5 and her childish mud pies were carefully bedecked with wild berries and decorated with flour and water icing. After graduating in home economics at Purdue, Martha stayed on at the University to work in the department of publications, a part of the agricultural extension service. From there she went to the World Book Encyclopaedia to do analytical work on sciences, and then to Compton's Pictured Encyclopaedia as staff specialist in home economics. Washington beckoned with a job in the food utilization section of the U. S. Bureau of Home Economics. From that Martha Ellyn switched to newspaper work, doing food copy, radio broadcasts, and teaching cooking at a girls' school, finally coming to The Washington Post as food editor just four years ago. Her food pages have been lively and interesting as well as helpful and authoritative. Interviews with celebrities (emphasizing those from Indiana, of course) have helped to introduce new menu ideas and new recipes in an interesting way, yet Martha never loses sight of the essential, practical nature of food pages. Her pet phobia is food articles by people who don't know what they're writing about; her chief aim is the daily education of Washington housewives to an awareness of what's new, timely, and important in housekeeping and in cookery.

Never Asked to Cut Slum Rents D. C. Administrator Declares

Charges by the Citizens' Progressive League of the District of Columbia that excessive slum rentals in Washington are being ignored by the District Rent Control office brought a disclosure by Administrator Robert F. Cogswell yesterday that his office never had "to my knowledge" been petitioned for a ceiling rent reduction in any local slum area."

Cogswell pointed out that so long as a slum landlord adhered to the rent ceiling clause in the Emergency Rent Act, setting ceilings at rentals charged on January 1, 1941, his office had no authority to reduce the rent of a slum dwelling, unless action was specifically requested by a tenant.

Ignorance by the public of enabling clause in the act is apparently responsible for the fact that slum landlords have been permitted to charge exorbitant prices for substandard dwellings, while staying legally within the provisions of the act, it was said.

This clause, says: "Any tenant may petition the Administrator to adjust the maximum rent ceiling applicable to his housing accommodations on the ground that such maximum rent ceiling permits the receipt of an unduly high rent."

The purposes of the act are to put an end to profiteering and to prevent cost of living increases which would "impede the national defense program."

And, said Cogswell, "this office will assist tenants to file their petitions." The tenant may or may not get action, depending on the "judgment" of the administrator, said Cogswell, but he can try.

New Pentagon Drug Store to Operate Soon

Five hundred-odd feet of space originally planned to provide meals for many of the War Department's 30,000 employes in the Pentagon Building yesterday underwent a face lifting as lunchroom equipment was ripped out to make way for a new drug store.

The big luncheon bar, installed early last winter near the big concourse that serves as a "main drag" for thousands of bus-riding Pentagonians, will be replaced by a drug store to be operated by the Walgreen Co. of Chicago, a War Department spokesman said. It will open around May 15.

The store, completely modern, will be supervised by the Pentagon Post Restaurant Council, consisting of a group of Army and civilian members appointed by the commanding officer of the military district of Washington to handle such Pentagon projects. It already operates cafeterias, lunch bars, a shoe shine parlor and check rooms in the War Department's five-sided architectural oddity.

The drug store will not serve either food or drink, the spokesman declared. All profits will be turned back to the Restaurant Council, he added. Pharmaceuticals will be among the items available for purchase.

The dismantling of the would-be luncheon bar began several days ago, it was learned. Until then the big, glass-enclosed area had been standing idle while Pentagon folk peered in wistfully and wondered when it would be open for business. Many had visions of using it as a breakfast spot because of the difficulties of getting morning coffee in the more immediate environs of Washington.

Official announcement also came yesterday of the installation of a shopping service for feminine War Department workers, often unable to catch a glimpse of downtown department stores for weeks on end because of the press of business in the far reaches of the Pentagon. They will be able to do their shopping by proxy within a few days.

How will it work when it gets to a fighting front?

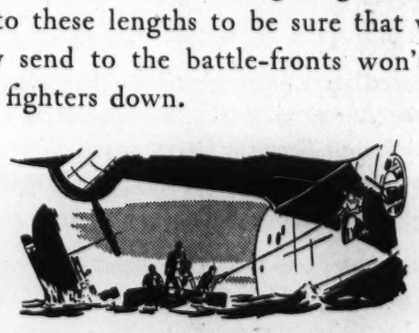
It's PRETTY cold up there eight miles above the earth where high-altitude airplane engines must run at 62 degrees below zero. To make sure how much the oil must be heated so that it will flow, tests are run in "cold rooms" down here.

Tanks are rolled over sideways and driven through soupy mud—to make sure they will work under battle conditions anywhere.

Artificial sand-storms are created in a high-temperature room to make sure that 50-caliber machine guns will work in the desert.

Lifeboat radio-beacons are soaked in sea water—to be sure they will signal for help even after a ducking.

American makers of fighting materials go to these lengths to be sure that what they send to the battle-fronts won't let our fighters down.



IN PEACETIME, a manufacturer guards his reputation with a staff of inspectors stationed at assembly lines, at machines, and in laboratories.

Today, at Crosley, there are more than 1,100 inspectors—one to every seven employees.

Over 5,000 separate testing devices are used in Crosley war plants to assure microscopic tolerances, the detection of flaws in materials, to guard against faulty craftsmanship, to make sure that our fighting materials will do what is expected of them.

On test equipment for just one product, we spent $80,000. For another, we built $55,000 worth of testing devices.

Crosley inspection goes beyond the walls of our own war plants to the factories of nearly 3,000 other manufacturers who supply many of the parts we use. Travelling inspectors protect Crosley quality wherever these parts are made.

In radio and electronic applications, and in larger complex mechanical apparatus, precision with tolerances as small as 1/10,000th of an inch is all part of the day's work at Crosley.

All of which means that Crosley war materials work when they get into action in the field. That means that we are keeping faith with the men who are winning the war, that in a tight place they can depend on our materials, that we are saving American lives. Today, inspection and testing are matters of life or death.

Forty Million Contract for Cargo Craft

A $40,000,000 contract for construction of 100 new-type steel cargo ships has been awarded to Higgins Industries, Inc., by the war department, it was revealed today in Washington.

It was reported that the vessels—all contracted for delivery by Higgins Industries by the end of the year—are to be 168 feet long and 32 feet wide. Type and capacity of the ships were not divulged.

UJWE

AN URGENT APPEAL

TO THE JEWS OF WASHINGTON

To Strike a Blow for Freedom That Will Never Be Forgotten

EVERY Jew knows that his future, and his children's future, depends upon the victory of the Allied Nations. As patriotic Americans, it is our duty to contribute in every way possible to winning the war. As Jews, who have sorrowed over the fate of our own Jewish people in Occupied Europe, we have added cause to make this "our fight" in a very special and urgent sense.

The United Jewish War Effort is an opportunity for you, for all of us, to make a greater contribution, as Jews, to the Allied cause. The purpose of this drive is to raise several millions of dollars, contributed entirely and exclusively by the Jews of America, to aid all victims of Axis aggression. The proceeds of this drive will be distributed on a purely nonsectarian basis in Britain, in Russia, in China. The administration of the funds will be placed in the hands of authorized relief agencies in the countries involved.

Caring for the Suffering is a matter of tradition with the Jews of America. Throughout our history, in every national emergency, whenever our fellowman needed help, we Jews have given unstintingly of our labor and money. Now in the greatest of all emergencies, we must surpass all our previous contributions. The need is great! The goal is high! We must not fall short.

Heed This Clarion Call

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Chairman of the United Jewish War Effort, and Dr. Joseph Tenenbaum, Chairman of the Executive Committee, send you this message:

> "We must succeed. Our success must be so complete and unmistakable, that it shall carry its own incontestable message of Jewish Service, Devotion, Energy, Achievement. Now, at this moment, your duty is clear. Strike this blow with all the force at your command."

The children of Britain and China, the wounded on Russian battlefields, need your help. Give . . . give generously! Give today. Your contribution, no matter how small, is of tremendous importance. While thousands of our fellow Jews are giving their lives in battle, for freedom and justice, you on the home front can also strike a mighty blow against the barbarous Axis. Strike that blow now! Don't put off this appeal until tomorrow. Respond today! For convenience, you may use the coupon on this page in making out your pledge.

HERE'S WHERE YOUR DOLLARS GO AND WHAT THEY WILL DO

Her Children Need Us

In the days and nights when England alone held back the Nazi hordes, thousands of her children were bomb-shocked. In nursing homes now maintained by the United Jewish War Effort, hundreds of these war-torn, bomb-shocked youngsters, many of them orphans, are learning to laugh again, to forget the hideous nightmare they lived through. This is a responsibility American Jews must maintain!

RUSSIA

Her Fight Seals Hitler's Doom

Medical needs for the gallant Russian Army are so vast that all available help has so far been insufficient to provide adequate treatment for the wounded. The United Jewish War Effort has pledged itself to furnish one thousand fully equipped, motorized Medical Field Units to serve in the front lines of Russia's far-flung battle front. This is a responsibility American Jews must carry through!

CHINA

She Has Suffered Longest

Thousands of homeless, destitute, orphaned children are one of China's most pressing, most tragic, problems. The United Jewish War Effort is undertaking to maintain 100 day nurseries in China, a project for which no funds have heretofore been available. We cannot ignore the suffering of these helpless Chinese children. This is a responsibility American Jews must assume!

They Went Hungry

Spokane, Wash.—The inspector and assistant foreman got married on their lunch hours and for a honeymoon went right back to work in a bomber parts factory. The altar was a huge power punch.

Faint Disruption

New York.—While Arturo Toscanini was conducting the N. B. C. Symphony Orchestra before 3000 persons in Carnegie Hall, Oswaldo Mazzucchi, his second cellist, suddenly fainted. Two aides threaded their way through the ranks of musicians and carried the stricken man out. Few in the audience were aware of the incident. Toscanini and the players didn't miss a beat.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Saturday Afternoon Work Is Ordered

Federal employes will be ordered to work Saturday afternoon despite the fact they won't have to legally. A Budget Bureau circular to this effect was sent to all agencies yesterday. It's obvious that the Administration fully expects the House to approve the pay bill and make it retroactive to May 1 when it returns here next week. And chances are excellent that the bill will be approved without the $5000 ceiling and in exactly the same form in which it was rejected by a close vote last week. But if the House does the unexpected and kicks out the pay bill it'll be taken to conference where the ceiling will be placed around the $7500 level.

The budget circular points out that if the House fails to act on the pay bill that employes must, under the law, be given compensatory time off for Saturday afternoon work. The Saturday half-holiday law doesn't apply to Army and Navy employes, however. If the agencies observed the letter of the law and let their employes off Saturday afternoon it would cost hundreds of thousands of dollars to readjust the payroll machinery throughout the service and paychecks would be delayed for days, even weeks. War Production Board is on the spot. It's payday is May 2 and technically it can't pay its employes next Monday. However, the employes will get their full paychecks on time. The disbursing officer is arranging to certify that each of the employes paid have sufficient funds in the retirement fund to cover any overpayment.

Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming, filed a minority report to the McKellar Bill yesterday in which he argued for Senate confirmation of "real policymakers" in the Federal government. He opposses the McKellar plan which would require confirmation of employes paid $4,600 and above irrespective of their duties . . . Yesterday, the day it was ready to die, the President signed a bill which extends the life of the Bituminous Coal Division until May 26 . . . United Federal Workers of America claims to have signed up 10,000 new members in the past six months. It's starting membership drives among Federal workers here, Baltimore, New York, and Philadelphia.

Commerce Department has reluctantly turned down as illegal a plan that would lengthen the work day of Patent Office employes at Richmond so the office could be closed Saturday afternoon . . . This is hard to believe but members of three congressional committees recently have asked Labor Secretary Frances Perkins why she didn't publicize some of the accomplishments of her department. On one occasion she was told her department needed a good press agent . . . The Office of the Petroleum Coordinator for War would get a slight increase in personnel here under its proposed 1944 budget, from 996 to 1045. However, a reduction in the field staff, from 662 to 520, would more than offset the expansion here.

Office of Education this week will close its Aviation Division, which is headed by Dr. Robert W. Hambrook. The office, apparently, doubts that aviation is here to stay. Valuable files will be stored away to soak up dust . . . Employe suggestions have resulted in a saving of 437,500 man hours and $341,200 annually in the operation of the Picatinny Arsenal at Dover, N. J. The War Department is planning a more effective suggestion system for its employes here . . . The Post, incidentally, will give another $100 war bond for the most constructive suggestion for the improvement of the Federal service for this month. Your suggestion must be made before Saturday to be considered for this month's award.

GOVERNMENT GIRL: Anna M. Kelly has been selected for the guard of honor from Navy's Yards and Docks which went 94 per cent for the drive to buy Army and Navy warplanes. In all, Navy employes have contributed more than $21,000 at a dollar per employe, an enviable record . . . Ann Ingersoll, a war bride of a month, will represent Agriculture Department in the guard of honor at the christening ceremony to be held May 9 on the Ellipse. She works for Forest Service and she was selected for the coveted honor when her name was drawn out of a hat.

Civil Aeronautics has nominated Frankiete Edwards, 21-year-old stenographer for the guard of honor. She was chosen at luncheon given yesterday by Administrator Charles Stanton. Runners-up were Yolanda Kiraly, Jewell George, Isabelle Given, Mary Hayden, Helenmae Roddy, and Irma Brunner . . . Adjutant General's Office in the Munitions Building has nominated Bette Meredith, brunet and pretty, for the guard of honor. The office has raised $2500 . . . Here's something to shoot at: Agriculture's Commodity Credit has turned in $1306. Its office here of 283 employes and offices in New York, Minneapolis, and Portland went 100 per cent or more for the drive and offices in New Orleans, Kansas City, and Chicago contributed generously. Alice Downie headed up the successful campaign . . .

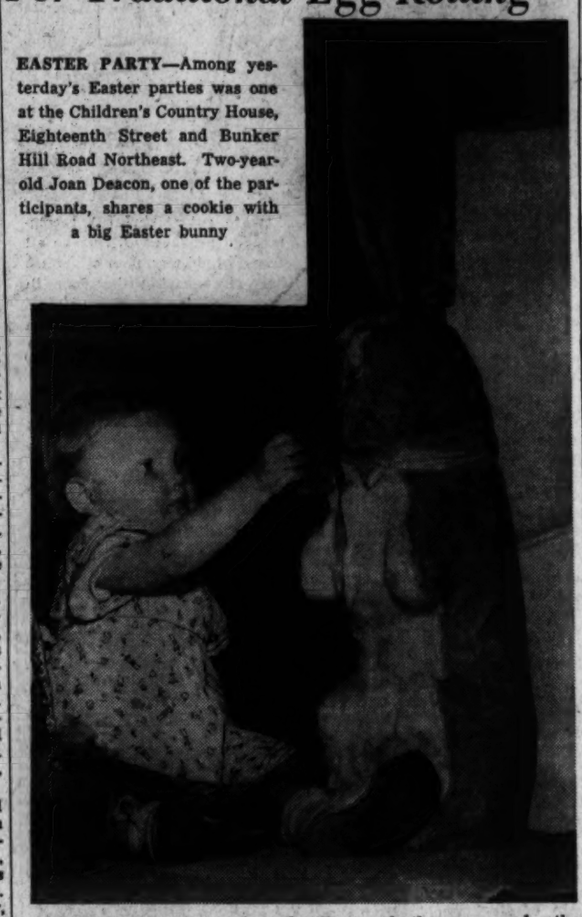
D. C. Youngsters Throng Parks For Traditional Egg-Rolling



EASTER PARTY—Among yesterday's Easter parties was one at the Children's Country House, Eighteenth Street and Bunker Hill Road Northeast. Two-year-old Joan Deacon, one of the participants, shares a cookie with a big Easter bunny

Youthful Washington, barred from egg rolling on the White House lawn by the exigencies of war, trooped to the city's parks, playgrounds and the Monument Lot yesterday to gambol and gamble for eggs by the traditional "egg pickin'" method.

At the Zoological Park, where a count showed 35,000 persons gathered, the holiday was marred for Gene Wynes, 13, of 1121 Twelfth Street when he tried to climb a 90-foot cliff in an abandoned quarry north of Calvert Street Bridge, was stranded halfway up and had to be rescued. Park police climbed to the top of the cliff, lowered ropes and hoisted the shaken boy to safety.

Washington certainly had no complaint about the weather, for it stayed pleasantly in the 70s through most of the day, and a good many people went home with sunburnt faces. The double cherry blossoms were out in all their glory at Hains Point and in front of the birdhouse at the Zoo, and through the park there was a great display of dogwood, redbud, Dutchmen's britches, laurel and violets.

"Egg pickin'" which seemed threatened with extinction a few years ago made great strides toward a comeback yesterday as youngsters banged the ends of their eggs together to see whose would break first. The one that did lost and surrendered his egg to the winner.

There was little actual rolling of the eggs in most of the parks because the crowds were so thick there was no room to roll them. Mostly the adults and children alike used the eggs and other things in their baskets and parcels for eating purposes. A boy named Ronald, who asked that his last name be omitted because his mother might be angry, proudly told a reporter he had consumed the following:

Five hardboiled eggs, two bottles of soft drinks, two hamburgers with mustard, a bag of peanuts, a box of popcorn, a box of crackerjack, a 10-cent chocolate egg, a popsickle, an ice cream cone and assorted candy eggs and jelly beans.

There was the usual quota of lost children at the Zoo and parks—little clusters of people around sobbing boys and girls who knew their names, but little else. The Park Police said all had been returned to their parents when the Zoo gates closed, however.

The city's playgrounds did a land-office business, for parents as well as children seemed glad of the opportunity to get out in the fine weather. Typical of them was the Langdon Park Playground, where more than 600 persons gathered to roll, pick nad eat eggs. All-day suckers were hidden through the wooded portion of the playground by Mrs. Kay Caul, the supervisor, and the children hunted them. Some had slips under the wrappers stating they could be exchanged for war stamps.

There were few accidents to mar the day. Capt. J. A. Collins of the Zoo Park Police reported several children given first aid for cut feet wading in Rock Creek, and said the crowd was "very orderly."

Former Teller Among 39 Indicted Here

John Rodney Young, 38, former teller of the Security Savings & Commercial Bank here, was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on charges of embezzling $38,018 of bank funds. The defalcations came to light last February and Young was arrested 12 days later in a downtown hotel.

Young's indictment was one of 39 handed yesterday to District Court Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue.

Marvin R. Harlow, 1303 B Street Northeast, also was indicted on three counts of housebreaking and larceny. He was charged with stealing $470 from a private residence last February and jewelry, money and narcotics from two drugstores. Harlow came into prominence during the John Ecklund trial when he testified against the "sniper slayer," who was convicted of second-degree murder in connection with the murder of a young colored woman.

Another indictment returned yesterday named Carmen Beach, 28, 1322 Fifteenth Street Northwest, with violating the White Slave Act. The indictment charged her with transporting two women from New York to Washington for immoral purposes.

Others indicted yesterday were:

Willie Baldwin, receiving stolen property; James Baker, Wyatt Ferguson, violation of the Selective Service laws; Wyatt Ferguson, Laura Emery, William A. Emery, George A. Coles, Richard P. Costello, Walter M. Coy, Luther C. Stykes, jr., Howard H. Johnson, John Pratt and John M. Smith, robbery.

Esther Anderson, grand larceny; Marvin R. Harlow, housebreaking and larceny; Melvin H. Ronk, James Junior Bullock, James West and King S. Shelpard, housebreaking; Raymond Allen, Charles W. Scott, Albert Estes, James H. Smith, Roosevelt Covert, Lewis D. Gilmore and George Thompson, joyriding; Frances McDaniels, larceny after trust.

Gov't Girl Fund Climbs To $130,000

Dollars Continue To Roll In After Warplane Drive Is Officially Ended

Pouring in despite the official close of the Government Girl warplane campaign last Saturday night, another $11,015 was turned in to the Treasury late yesterday to swell the total contributions to $130,469.

"Watching the campaign the past two weeks, it is apparent that the final figure for the two warplanes—one for the Army and one for the Navy—will reach $150,000," Donald S. Dawson, chairman of the special committee, said.

Other agencies continued to hike the total overall contribution tabulation.

A demure little Celestial—Miss Cornelia N. Quill—of Cleveland, Ohio, is going to make a trip to the Nation's Capital soon.

A guard of honor for the Navy Department in the Government Girl warplane contest, the young Chinese girl was active in setting a high mark for the Navy Bureau of Supplies and Accounts in drive contributions.

Over the top with 101 per cent, and leading all other Navy Department units, the Cleveland office has sent $2077 to Mrs. Josephine James campaign manager here, it was announced yesterday.

"There are 2053 employes in the office there," Mrs. James said.

Fellow office workers of the Chinese miss will defray her expenses on the trip to Washington.

Instructions for Guards

Honor guards for each of the Government agencies in the warplane campaign will be given instructions previous to the christening ceremony to be held May 9, Donald S. Dawson, chairman of the special committee of the Council of Personnel Administration, said.

One hundred are to participate in the affair, at which time both the Army and the Navy will be represented. Details of the program are under way and will be announced by the special committee shortly, Dawson explained.

"Names of honor guards should be submitted to the committee in writing," Miss Eleanore Leech, secretary, said.

All honor guards are expected to be chosen and submitted to the committee by midnight tonight, it was announced.

Names of maids already submitted to Miss Leech include:

Sophie Dodeck, Federal Power Commission; Betty M. Gordon, Railroad Retirement Board; Madge Lazo, Department of State; Gene Nelson, Tennessee Valley Authority; Josephine Naymark, Office of Strategic Services; Dorothy E. Grimm, Department of Labor; Julia F. Germano, Office of Inter-American Affairs; Elnor Dorn, Tax Court; Terry Stanton, Office of Censorship, and Jean Smith, Board of Economic Warfare.

Employe Fatally Burned in Fire At Fort Belvoir

Michael J. Brennan of Philadelphia, a post engineer employe at Fort Belvoir, Va., was injured fatally in a fire that broke out in the civilian dormitory of the camp Saturday at 11:15 p. m., it was announced yesterday.

Overcome by smoke were five other men, among them Fire Chief Harry V. Ishum, head of the Fort Belvoir Fire Department, and Sergt. Eugene O. Ammonn. Both were credited by camp authorities with "prompt and heroic action which prevented more serious loss of life or property."

659 Violent Deaths in 1942, Coroner Says

A total of 9165 persons died in Washington in 1942, and of this number, the coroner reported yesterday, 659 met death violently.

Thus, a Washingtonian's chances of dying of natural causes were somewhat better than 93 to 7.

In his annual report to the District Commissioners, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said that his office had inquired into 2814 deaths, 36.6 per cent of the total. But most of these—2155—were found to be due to natural causes.

In the category of violent deaths, highway accidents claimed 113 victims. Forty-two were killed by automobiles, 21 by trucks, 19 by street cars and three by trains.

Automobile collisions caused 17 deaths, and collisions of automobiles with other objects—bicycles, pillars, fences and the like—caused another 10.

The adage that home is a most dangerous place was borne out by the corner, who reported that of 173 deaths caused by falls, 79 occurred in homes. There were 33 miscellaneous deaths in homes, caused by explosions, electrical shocks and airplane crashes. One person was killed by a swinging door.

In the category of homicide, shootings led the list, 38 persons having been killed in that fashion. Thirty-one were stabbed.

A total of 112 persons was adjudged to have committed suicide in 1942. Thirty-five took illuminating gas, 28 shot themselves, 17 chose hanging, 15 jumped off bridges, buildings or under trains, and 17 took poison.

There were 13 accidental asphyxiations by gas. Fourteen persons drowned while swimming or bathing, 14 fell from boats or piers, 48 were burned to death, 5 were accidentally poisoned and 2 died in elevator accidents.

The largest single cause of death in the cases listed as natural was diseases of the circulatory system. This accounted for 804 deaths. Five persons died of heat prostration, eight were executed, including the six Nazi saboteurs.

Monro Chides Airlines for Day-Dreaming

C. Bedell Monro, president of Pennsylvania-Central Airlines, took his own industry to task for "day-dreaming" too much about aviation's future and for what he describes as its failure to develop a "constructive postwar program," in the Carlton Hotel last night.

Likening the inrustry's international activities to the gold rush of '49, "except that so few remember how few found gold," Monro declared in an address before a National Aeronautic Association dinner on the sixteenth anniversay of P. C. A. that "unless facts replace fiction there is a grave danger of public disillusionment which will be most harmful to a necessary sound aviation growth."

Occupied with Disputes

"Much criticism is being directed to Government regulatory bodies and bureaus for lack of foresight, yet the air transport industry has not yet formulated a constructive postwar program, being largely occupied with internecine disputes and self-seeking activities," he said. "The public has been led to believe that the age of tomorrow will be an air age in which every other form of transportation will be subordinate to the airplane; that railroads, steamship lines, bus lines will be pitiful remnants existing on the disregarded crumbs from the airlines' table."

Monro urged the industry and Government to cooperate in meeting the industry's postwar obligations, which he said included encouragement and development of private flying, increasing passenger and cargo service at lower rates, and assuming responsibility for taking over from the Army after the war such transport operations as can be continued as commercial projects.

Danger of Chaos

He foresaw postwar competition from one-man, one-airplane companies established by demobilized Army aviation experts and predicted that railroads, bus and trucks will seek to form air transport divisions.

"The result can be chaotic unless a Government policy is set forth and adhered to regardless of pressure," he said, adding that unless legal safeguards were forthcoming the expanding air industry might either require "vast subsidies" or fall of its own weight.

City News in Brief

A pedestrian violation was involved in five out of six of the 42 accidents injuring pedestrians last week, the Accident Investigation Unit weekly traffic review, compiled last night, reported.

Altogether, there were 154 accidents reported to police. Of these 104 were vehicular, 8 were streetcar, and 42 were pedestrian.

Four streets were named by A. I. U. officials as being the most dangerous, and from yesterday through Sunday these lanes will be heavily policed. They are, New York Avenue from First Street Northeast to Fifteenth Street Northwest, where there were eight accidents; Rhode Island Avenue Northwest from New Jersey Avenue to Connecticut Avenue, where there were nine accidents; H Street Northeast from Sixth Street to Ninth Street, where there were three accidents; and Georgia Avenue Northwest from T Street to Kenyon Street, where there were four accidents.

Child Care Problems

Child care problems will be discussed by the Friendship area civilian war services tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the air raid warden headquarters, Woodrow Wilson High School, Nebraska Avenue and Chesapeake Street Northwest. Mrs. Raymond Grayson and Mrs. Francis Davis are cochairmen of the program.

Play by Children

"King Robert of Sicily" will be presented by the sixth grade choral speaking class of Sidwell Friends School, under the direction of Elinor Cox Karsten, at the Children's Museum, 4215 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, at 2:15 this afternoon.

Sheppard to Speak

Representative Sheppard (Democrat) of California will address a meeting of the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped tonight at 8 in the auditorium of the National Press Club, Fourteenth and F Streets Northwest.

Claiming that 23 million people are affected, a considerable number of whom could be rehabilitated for war work, the federation has attracted congressional attention which finds its expression in Senate and House bills, providing help for the handicapped. Reports on congressional action will be made by Paul A. Strachan, president, and Ralph A. Collins, secretary.

Tuberculosis Board Edict Is Defied

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer

Without benefit of official blessing, members of the District of Columbia Tuberculosis Association have called a meeting tonight at 8 at the United States Chamber of Commerce Auditorium, defying an edict by the Board of Directors issued Sunday that the meeting must be canceled.

Members dissenting from the decision of the board, led by Edward B. Persons of 2807 North Glebe Road, Arlington, assert that full airing will be given charges of association mismanagement leveled by Harold H. Lund, former executive secretary, who yesterday was requested to leave the association's office immediately.

Charles L. Newcomb, national Christmas seal director, now here as temporary acting secretary, said last night that so far as he knew no officer of the association would attend the gathering.

Meeting Termed Illegal

Newcomb said tonight's meeting is "illegal" because seven days notice could not be given after the notice of cancellation, and added that no action taken by the gathering could be binding upon the association.

Meanwhile Newcomb revealed last night that the association's program committee, headed by D. Thomas B. McKneely, would meet Thursday afternoon to develop a program for the year.

Lund's Charges

In his resignation Lund charged that the association here was operating without any program at all. He further charged that the District Health Department did not want the association to be an independent body, capable of pointing out flaws in the local program, but wanted to keep the association in its control. He objected to the fact that Dr. J. Winthrop Peabody, president, is a paid official of the Health Department with an annual salary of $3000.

Commenting upon the demand yesterday that he vacate his office immediately, Lund said:

"No Christmas seals should be sold in Washington again until the Board of the District of Columbia Tuberculosis Association has been thoroughly investigated. This investigation should be followed by democratic election of a board responsible to the contributors. This city has suffered too long from a beaurocratic setup in its public and private tuberculosis services and the health of the people has suffered as a result. A thorough housecleaning is imperative."

Immediately after the Easter recess a House District Subcommittee, headed by Representative D'Alesandro (Democrat) of Maryland, has scheduled an investigation of the whole tuberculosis situation in the District.

Educators Review Sex Study Today

Physical education department heads and high school superintendents will meet this morning in the Franklin School to review the reproductive system unit of the senior health course, as requested last week by the Board of Education.

The board, which adopted the revised course last fall, had directed reconsideration of the unit by the teachers who prepared it after Dr. James A. Gannon suggested that the outline on sex education was "shocking." Today's report will be forwarded to the senior high school physical education teachers for further conferences and their findings should be presented to the board at its next meeting on May 5.

Hardy L. Pearce, director of physical education for the schools, told The Post yesterday that the "objectionable" course had been given in several senior high schools during the past term and that there was no record of any complaint. The course is indorsed by the Association of School Administrators.

Parent Head Comments

Social hygiene chairman of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, Mrs. Evelyn Bright Buckley, commented yesterday that while the place for sex education to begin is in the home, certainly it should be introduced into the school curriculum, but incorporated without special emphasis.

Mrs. William M. Sweet, mother of Betty Sweet, a Central High student, noted that children cannot learn too much about social relations.

Mother Supports Plan

Another mother, Mrs. Lucian Jordan, former health director for the District Parent-Teachers, added, "It is most important that health sex instructions be continued in the schools."

ATTENTION: WOMEN AT WORK!

By Jeanne Contini

Chambray is our nomination of the week. It is a suit . . . pure cotton without a suspicion of hayseed. This is the tangible evidence that designers are recognizing the needs of the increasing number of women who will be laboring in town instead of lounging through the summer.

Contrary to certain clinging superstitions, a two-piece costume with different halves does not necessarily "cut you off." The vertically striped jacket makes for that nice up-and-down look while the plain skirt keeps the hips in line. It has a single button at the waist, a nice feature if you're inclined to be a bit bosomy. There is also a detachable white dickie which sports a bow tie.

As to stamina, chambray is one of the finest cottons for sailing undaunted through the suds and emerging refreshed and relatively unshrunk. You can have the suit in blue, rose, or coffee-brown with white stripes . . . About $18.

We only would like to mention that it will give you more wear than you bargained for. To place it, please call NAtional 4200, Extension 324.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

The Young Visitor

"Yes, I've seen everything. Of course after you've seen one of these Washington buildings you've seen them all. . . . The Jefferson Memorial? . . . Yes, and I think it's lousy. . . . Supreme Court? . . . Oh ye-es, it's all right—if you like that sort of thing. Of course it's perfectly antediluvian in its architecture. . . . Well but what I mean is this is a modern age. . . . Yes, we went in and saw the justices. Funny little old men, aren't they! And the Library of Congress! Isn't that a dodo!

"No the Capitol's not so bad. It's sort of quaint. And then of course when you consider the age it was built in—beg pardon? . . . Congress? Oh yes, we saw the Senate. Honestly there were some of the funniest old birds! And listen! Senator Tweet made a speech! Yes! It was a scream! Of course everybody knows he's cracked. And then they all argued around about something. Honestly, they don't have any system at all. . . . The House? It was just as crazy in there. And some old bird-brained guy was making a speech—honestly his I. Q. must have been about zero! They don't have any system there, either. It's simply revolting!

"Lunch? . . . Oh Buzz took us to lunch. . . . I don't know where it was but the food was vile. . . . Yes, he's an ensign. He thinks he'll get shipped out soon. He hopes so. Of course he can't talk much, but from what I gather they're just a bunch of old dodos over at the Navy. . . . And they're just as dumb in the Army, Chuck Piffle says. Larry's going in the Air Corps. . . . Yes he says he wouldn't be bothered with the Army and the Navy. They're simply out of the picture now.

"Yes, we looked in at the Mellon Gallery. . . . Well I tell you the architect made one big mistake there. Buzz says so, too. The perspective's all wrong. And then the thing is thoroughly conventional. . . . The Smithsonian. . . . What's that? . . . Oh, museums simply nauseate me. . . . Yes I think they're completely revolting. Well the whole thing is why should we bother about all those old things when we've got so much on our hands now?

"Mount Vernon? . . . Yes we went out there yesterday. . . . Oh, it's sort of sweet—but not much personality. But then of course the Washingtons were pretty stuffy. . . . Well what I mean is completely conventional. . . . Yes I saw the Monument. . . . Oh so-so. . . . Yes, the Lincoln Memorial is really one of the best things here—but the perspective's not right. . . . Arlington? . . . No, but Buzz says it's just the same sort of things as Mount Vernon.

"Yes I saw Joan. . . Yes, she's in OPA but she simply loathes it. Her boss is a perfect madman. No system, she says, at all. Too many nitwits in authority. She could have gone with WPB but they say it's even dizzier over there. A lot of psycopaths and no system. . . . Joyce? . . . She's at OWI. She says they're pretty bird-brained too. No system whatever.

"Oh yes, I've enjoyed myself. Of course the town's perfectly mad but it's been fun. . . . You know. . . . I was just thinking about next summer—what I mean is about going to camp after school's out. I—I don't believe I'll do it! Well you see this is the thing: I—I just don't think maybe I ought to do it.

"Well, you see Larry's going into the Air Corps—at least he thinks he is—and after all I can type . . . and of course I know the heat here in summer is simply revolting . . . and that I'd have to work for some bird-brained outfit . . . and maybe sleep on a park bench, but—well the whole thing is I do know how to type, even though I simply loathe it and I just sort of feel as if I ought to come down here maybe and . . . and do something.

"What I mean is, well I—I know this sounds conceited and all that but I CAN type and maybe I could do something—well you see the place is such a madhouse and absolutely no system and—well what I mean is I just believe I ought to do it!"

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn

F. G. L., a contributor submits a question on overcalling. He writes: "Here is an interesting hand which I held at rubber bridge recently and didn't quite know how to handle. I sat South and these were my cards:

♠AK93
◇KQJ3

"If I had been dealer I would have opened with one diamond, but, unfortunately, I was second hand. The dealer, East, opened with one spade. What should my bid be? Also, what should I say if the opening is one in another suit?"

The spade opening bid did rather put a crimp in South's plans. With any other opening bid but a spade, South would have an ideal hand for a take-out double, especially with the opening bid of one heart. But with the spade call he cannot double, for he cannot bid with safety over his partner's two-heart response. The chances are he will get this response, not only because of his singleton heart but because the take-out double urges partner to bid a four-card major suit if he has one in preference to any other bid.

South cannot very well venture a two-club or diamond bid on either of his four-card suits without considerable risk. Probably his best plan is to pass and hope the opponents get too high; then he can hit them with a penalty double. Otherwise, he will have to be content simply to let his high cards go unmentioned. To give up a good hand when the danger of bidding it is too great marks a fine player, but it is a virtue rarely found.

'Spring Cleaning Campaign'

With your gayest dustcap bedecked with a sprig of flowers, a bit of imagination and such make-it-easy items as the following, you can't help but finish your spring cleaning with a proud flourish!

No 'Elbow Grease'

Dirt melts away under the persuasive influence of this all-purpose cleaner. The synthetic solvents that are the bases of this cleaner left the soil from the surface without requiring the usual amount of rubbing and scrubbing that has associated housework with drudgery! It is said that soil rinses off 100 per cent, leaving no "flypaper" film to catch more dust. It's good for the laundry and dishes, too. Twelve-ounce size 25 cents and it goes far.

Chase Odors

Fish and cabbage, although not rationed, have a tendency to irritate the neighbors as well as overwhelm the smallness of a one-room apartment. The solution to this—and any other unpleasant odors—is a substance that's new on the market—an odorless deodorizer which is supposed to eliminate odors in 30 seconds!

This product is harmless and very simple to use. A tablespoon will make a gallon of the solution, which can be applied directly, sprayed, or used as a rinse. Its uses are many—it will keep the room free of smoke odor, can be used in lavatories, musty cellars or attics, etc. It kills all odors, and since it has no odor of its own, doesn't substitute one odor for another! A 12-ounce can for $1 makes 24 gallons of deodorant. Also available in 50-cent can.

Stand-in for Steel Wool

Remember our New Year's resolution to keep the pots and pans shining even without the help of steel wool? Here's a good time to renew that resolution and it's an easy one to keep with this concentrated stain remover. Just moisten a cloth with the fluid and then rub the aluminum until clear. You can also use this on copper, brass or chromium and it's not inflammable. Twelve-ounce can 35 cents.

Wallpapering?

If you are, and there's more than one thickness of paper on your walls, it should be removed down to the plaster for best results. How to do this without spending hours peeling off paper? Add this solution to water, brush on the walls, and in double-quick time it will penetrate through the toughest paper and dissolve the paste. Fifty cents.

Any Old Wax . . .?

If you're determined to revarnish your floors—even if you have to do it yourself—here's how to get started. A recommended product will remove all traces of old wax, floor oil, polish and dirt—leaving the floor in good condition for revarnishing. Ten cents. A bit of practice with all of these and you'll be proudly speaking the technical jargon of the handyman!

Lemon Is Cleanser

Grandmother always picked this time of the year for what she called "Spring Housecleaning." It was a special sort of cleaning to freshen things in the house after a long, cold winter.

Many of the methods grandmother used to keep her house spic and span might well be selected for use now. Then, she let lemons aid her in a number of cleaning ways and now-a-days, while many other cleaning products may be curtailed, this versatile fruit is readily available to all homemakers the year 'round.

Aluminum pans and other kitchen utensils are easily cleaned with lemon and some kitchen salt. Mix salt with a little juice from the lemon and rub the article to be cleansed, then wipe off with a wet rag. Afterwards shine with metal polish and you will have a surface bright as new. When an aluminum pot becomes darkened inside, fill it with water, add a sliced lemon and boil to remove discoloration.

Shampoo Substitute

Plain witch hazel can be used as a substitute for a shampoo, if you haven't time for one, according to Patricia Morison, who just completed her role in RKO Radio's "The Fallen Sparrow." She explains that the witch hazel should be applied on a piece of cotton, and patted directly on the scalp where it will work as a cleanser.

Some of Child's Mischief May Best Be Ignored

The doubling up of families brings into the open all those differences of opinion which exist between any two generations as well as between any two persons.

The child who is torn between the conflicting opinions of parent and parent or parent and grandparent is the real sufferer. His discipline is not consistent, it is emotionally inspired. Sometimes he gets away with "murder;" at other times he is punished for a trifle.

Mrs. P. H. admits that this being her first child she may make mistakes, "But, I think my parents-in-law expect too much of my 2-year-old child. I was one of a large family and I am used to taking care of children. I don't think he is spoiled. But these grandparents expect instant obedience, immediately and constantly.

"I find him to be a child to whom 'no' is a red rag. He is stubborn at times but ordinarily sweet-tempered and delights in helping us. My husband and I are peace-loving and anything which disrupts our happy home life is intolerable to us.

"Don't you think there are times when one must overlook naughtiness? Too many people telling him what to do makes him cry, creates a scene, all of which is too much for a small child."

No child should be subjected to such struggles between opinions. Naturally you may not want to ignore a real misbehavior but the many things mischievous children do to tantalize us might better be ignored than dealt with. One can hardly make a blanket statement to cover all probabilities. Rather one should say that the adoption of such an impossible ideal as "instant obedience" could lead nowhere except to trouble.

For if one could bring about such an ideal it would be fatal to the child's development of personality. The more commands obeyed, the more there would be. Eventually everything the parent wanted done for her convenience or comfort, would become sacred and demand obedience.

Closets Could Be Set Straight Now

By Martha Ellyn

Until the postwar world comes along with its precipitron—a device capable of eliminating dust from a house—we will have to go busily on our way chasing dirt and grime.

Homemakers really have something to look forward to in this dirt-prevention device, which consists of tungsten wires and steel plates through which air is drawn. All dust particles are positively charged, then pass on and stick to negatively charged steel plates.

But meanwhile closets, windows, walls and furnishings will need refreshing. Nature has continued on the cold side this spring, so it hasn't been exactly practical to get around to storing blankets, changing draperies and putting slipcovers on furniture.

There are a number of things that can be done previous to general cleaning. One thing is to weed out closets and lift their faces by new fittings. Many persons who are counted among the most scrupulously clean homemakers do not keep closets clean.

Closet floors should not be crowded with shoes, boxes and other dust-catchers. The floor should be cleaned just as often as the room floors. If cluttered with innumerable objects, there is an incentive to brush around rather than clean thoroughly. It is in dust that moths breed. Both closet walls and floors should have a washable finish.

The ideal clothes closet should have good ventilation. A window provides the best ventilation. Of course many closets in houses and apartments never see the light of day. But if garments are hung a few inches apart, air will circulate between them to good advantage. When it is practical, the door should be left open so that some air can get to the closet, in case it does not have a window.

After closets are thoroughly cleaned and clothing is also perfectly free from soil, then is the time to consider what can be stored. Winter clothing, after it is cleaned, should be stored in mothproof containers or bags.

Garment bags, hat boxes and drop-front boxes protect clothing from dust. When made of transparent material, the contents are visible, which is an advantage. Garment bags are made in various lengths, intended for blouses, skirts, fur scarves and daytime or evening dresses. Shoulder covers made of cellophane or transparent cloth also help to keep garments from getting dusty. Witness this saving by the dust that will accumulate on the top of the bags.

Auxiliary equipment in the closet makes for good order. Shoes can be kept in several types of racks or bags. Slanting wooden shelves equipped with a heel rest make a convenient storage place for shoes. Shoe cabinets and shoe bags, which can be anchored to the wall or door, are also available in the so-called bath shops of stores. These bags are made for both women's and men's shoes.

Hat stands and belt racks are also among the handy equipment for closets. In this way a belt can be located readily. Hats, when placed on standards, will stay in better shape.

Since clothes and shoes do absorb and give off odors, it is sometimes best to spray with a scent such as pine. Elene of Vienna, a well-known bath accessory manufacturer, has an excellent pine spray that can be used for closets. Mary Chess also has a lacquer which is available in several delightful scents—carnation, wistaria, gardenia, etc.

Also look to your hangers. They should be free from roughness. Hangers are made in a variety of materials and their price range is from a few cents to several dollars. These are often made up in coverings to match closet ensembles.

Browse through the shops and you will get many an excellent idea for making your closets more orderly and attractive.

SUGAR—Coupon No. 12 in Book No. 1 is good for 5 pounds until May 31.

MEATS, butter, margarine, lard, fats and oils, cheese and canned fish—Red coupons lettered A, B, C and D in Book No. 2 are valid until April 30. Those lettered E are valid through May 31. Those lettered F which become valid May 2, those lettered G which become valid May 9, those lettered H which become valid May 16, and those lettered J which become valid May 23—are all good through May 31.

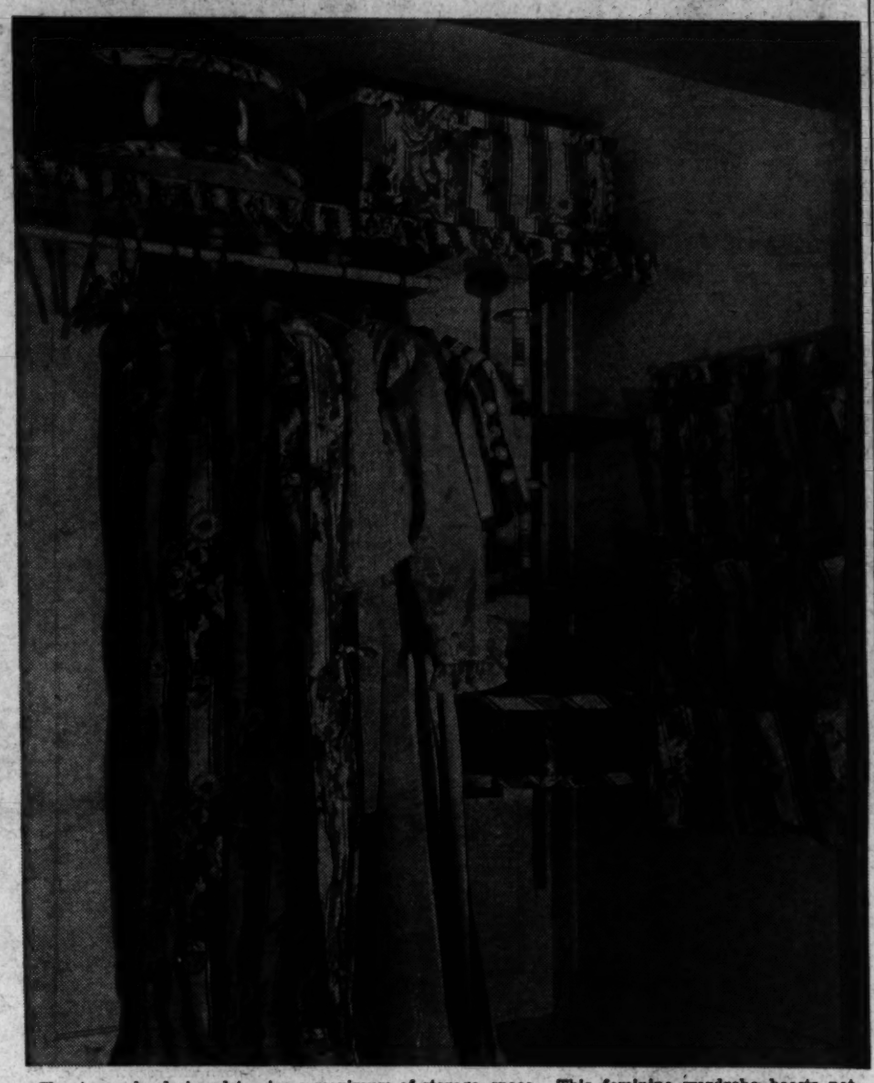
Coupons need not be used week by week but must be redeemed by end of period.

CANNED FRUITS, canned vegetables, soups, fruit and vegetable juices, frozen foods, baby foods, catsup, dried beans (except soybeans) and other processed foods—Blue coupons lettered D, E and F can be used through April 30. Coupons G, H and J are valid through May 31.

FUEL OIL—Coupon No. 5 is good for 10 gallons until September 30.

GASOLINE—Coupons No. 5-A are good for 3 gallons each but must last through July 22. B and C coupons, good for 3 gallons each, expire according to the date indicated in the individual books.

SHOES—Coupon No. 17 in Book No. 1 is redeemable for one pair until June 15. Footwear not covered by rationing includes certain types of play shoes, hard-soled house slippers, soft-soled moccasins, infants' shoes (size 4 or smaller), shoes with fabric uppers and rubber soles, ski and skate shoes, locker sandals, bathing slippers, overshoes, waterproof or snow and water repellent footwear.



Closets can be designed to give a maximum of storage space. This feminine wardrobe boasts not only of order but beauty. Gay-flowered cretonne fittings such as the garment bag, storage box, hat box and edging for shelf make any closet proud to show its face. Hat stands, too, not only keep milady's sky pieces in better condition but also contribute to orderliness

Although Her Father Is Healthy and Competent, Girl's Conscience Suggests She Should Give Up Good Job and Go Home to Solace Ailing Mother

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Conscience is a wonderful guide and it has seen me through many a problem. But this problem, now a year old, has presented itself again; and this time my conscience is torn between two decisions. Please help me clarify the following situation: I am nearly 22, the youngest daughter and next to the youngest child of a family of 10. As long as I can remember, Mother and Dad had to struggle to make ends meet. We children never got much but their loving care and a proper rearing.

Mother and Dad unselfishly encouraged each of us to make our own plans for the future. By the time I was old enough to work, all the children had married but two brothers and I. Mother and I and the others got along very smoothly at home; and being the last of the daughters, I realized then that the comfort of mother's declining years would lie with me. After high school,—and just prior to our country's entry into war,—an opportunity was offered me to come to Washington. My mother urged me to accept. Now, after two years of amazing success, I hold a position here in which I am very happy. This, combined with the beauties of the city, and a host of fine friends I have found here, completes a very satisfying "personal gain."

Since then, the financial situation at home was solved by Dad's turning aside from farming and taking up defense work. However, mother's health has steadily failed in these two years. Last April, I was asked to return home for mother's sake. But I persuaded the family to try to get along the best they could, until my job opportunities here gave out. I hated to think of making a change and starting all over again, while two boys were still at home. I have just returned from another visit home. I find Dad as ever,—healthy and independently contented. But mother's fight for health is practically gone; and my two brothers are inducted into the service. This time, mother did not ask me to come back. The need was apparent.

Miss Haworth, I love Washington. And yet I know that in spite of the fact that my married sisters and brothers have their own hearts' desire, though little duty toward home, I should try to knit a few bright strands into the life of someone besides myself. A fairly decent job is being offered me at home, where I would have the conveniences that lack in my living independently here. I have always had faith in the happiness of my own future, because I have long learned to make the best of every situation. But now I have become afraid, for fear that faith is not enough. I have no particular heart interest to hold me here. What should I do? PUZZLED.

Extravagant Sentiment, All Things Considered

DEAR PUZZLED: Your long-time conviction that Fate had singled you out,—of all your mother's 10 children,—to weave bright strands of happiness into her last years, forfeiting your own heart's desire or holding your own life plans indefinitely in abeyance, if necessary, in order to do so, is an extravagant sentiment, when the whole picture has been considered. In other words, it is the concept of an inordinately scrupulous conscience, possessed by a person of rather poetic imagination and seriously responsible temperament. Your sense of divided conscience, in this particular instance, is chiefly significant as revealing a marked tendency toward scrupulosity,—which is to say, chronically anxious self-searching on the moral front of behavior. It further suggests that, as yet, you have never been confronted by circumstances which implacably required you to make a really fateful decision and heroically abide by it;—so that, lacking the grimly realistic challenge, you have been much concerned to give your conscience exercise in relation to issues largely propounded by your imagination. Or, perhaps, issues more or less invited by your disposition to invite responsibility, by sentimentally identifying yourself with other people's worries or heartaches: especially people who are dear to you.

Your conviction of special responsibility to your mother probably was distilled from many factors,—such as your being the youngest daughter, and the last to leave home, and doubtless the recipient of special affection as her maternal burdens eased. Doubtless she yearned most wistfully toward you, as one by one the other daughters got married; and may have unconsciously implanted the thought that she would be desolate indeed without you;—so that unconsciously you dedicated yourself to the proposition of never really taking wing from her, so long as she lived. Also, your respective temperaments may be peculiarly compatible,—as sometime happens between a parent and one outstandingly sympathetic or dependable child in a large family. But in any event, that nebulous conviction of special duty to her rests on an emotional foundation purely and not on moral fact.

Would Be Intruding On Father's Domain

In gratuitously taking so much upon yourself, you are most naively overlooking the imposing fact of your father's existence and relationship to her. Long before you were born, they had contracted to be all-in-all to each other. You were the incidental fruit of that union; and in giving you life, they invoked the responsibility of fitting you to function independently and creditably on your own in the world; and to pass on the torch of life in your turn; and likewise prepare your children to abandon the nest in due time and freely fulfill their individual destinies. It would be a contradiction of the evolutionary pattern for you to turn back from plowing your own furrow, as it were, simply to companion your mother in her declining years, when she has your father,—"healthy and independently contented," as always,—to look after her.

I feel that if you were to go back home now, to stay with your mother until the end, you would be making a superfluous sacrifice that was only the beginning of a drama of fairly profitless self abnegation. After your mother's death,—to face frankly the prospect that is nagging you with nebulous dread and beginning to shake your faith in the essential joyousness of life,—you would be tacitly nominated to act for the family in caring for father in his last years. You would have put yourself in line for lonehandedly discharging that properly collective responsibility, as the result of an unduly sentimental decision today.

Stay on Your Course And Develop Character

Whereas if you stay here and go on with your own life as planned,—making the most of congenial opportunities providentially presented,—you will be (1) showing a hardier spirit and (2) doing more to develop the gifts of character your parents have given you, than you would be in going back home principally to assuage your anxiety over your mother's decline. You must remember that such distress, always sharply accentuated when the paths of parent and child are newly divergent, is an inevitable part of the maturing process; and that one is acting most sanely and bravely who refuses to let it throw him off the course which long-range constructive thinking dictates.

BY MICHAEL TRENT

CHAPTER XVIII

Ruth held tightly to his hand. "I understand, Jean," she said. "They made you do as they wished. This Drucker then is the man we know as Burke?"

"Yes. He knew me at once, and he threatened to tell people here that I once aided the members of his U-boat. I was frightened. The Americans had given me employment here at the base, and I had met you Ruth, and I did not dare risk losing all that. So I fell in with Burke's scheme when he said he would pretend to be a seaman from a torpedoed ship. I did not imagine he would be dangerous here, alone."

"But where can he go now, Jean?"

"He'll find a way off this island if I cannot stop him."

"You cannot stop him, Jean. You're not a match for him. He's tough and clever. I'll be afraid for you."

"It is something I must do," Dr. Cartier said. "I have a gun at my house. I shall get it and find this Burke, and somehow I shall make matters right for myself." He bent and kissed her briefly on the cheek. "Go tell the intelligence officer, my dear—and do not worry."

Tonia danced with a succession of men, and Steve Lowry did not doubt that she was having the time of her life. Tonia loved laughter and gaiety, she needed the admiration of men. He could see the bright light of happiness in her eyes. But when her eyes met his, from across the room, there was mockery in them. She was still amused over finding Ruth Hammond at the base.

Finally they were alone, walking outside the clubhouse in the moonlight, and Steve was keenly aware of her loveliness and her closeness. Her arm was linked with his; she hugged his arm a little.

"Steve, I should be terribly shocked," she said. "You here, and that girl. . . . How did you arrange it?"

"Don't be ridiculous, Tonia. I can't tell the Army where to send its people. Ruth was here before I arrived."

"All right. Don't be so touchy. It just seemed a bit too convenient. You must care more for her than I imagined in the past. You wouldn't let me talk to her alone."

"I know how biting your tongue can be."

She gave his arm an angry jerk. "That's mean of you!"

"Don't play offended," he replied. "You don't need to act for me. We understand one another." He halted and faced her. "I'm in love with her, Tonia, and she is planning to marry a doctor here. Now my cards are on the table, so let's skip the small talk."

"Well, that certainly jolts me," Tonia murmured. "I thought you were a one-woman man, Steve. I guess I dangled you too long."

"Dangled me?"

"Why, yes, darling. You know I was in love with you." Her beautiful face, perfect as a work of art, was uptilted. "My ambitions were simply stronger than my fondness for you. There never has been any other man—"

"What about Roger?" he curtly demanded.

Her shrug was faint but expressive. "I was fond of him because he was kind and understanding," she told him. "But the memory of you kept our marriage from being the perfect thing a marriage should be." She laughed emptily. "But why this small talk, as you call it? You've gotten over me, wanting now a girl you can't have, and I love you when you no longer find me desirable."

"Tonia, your mind runs in crazy circles."

"But my heart has been in the same groove, always."

Steve stared at her, believing only a small part of this. Tonia might think herself in love, but he wondered if she could ever love anyone but herself. Then beyond her he saw a white-clad figure approaching, walking hurriedly, and he knew it was Ruth. He looked back at Tonia's lovely face. He smiled twistedly and deliberately took her in his arms. As he kissed her, Tonia's arms went about his neck. Then abruptly, as though aware of someone's presence, he put her from him. Tonia turned and saw Ruth.

Ruth said, "Excuse me, but I must speak with you, Steve. It's about Jean." Her voice was shaken and Steve did not know if that was because of his little act with Tonia or because of something else.

News of the Women's Clubs

By Genevieve Reynolds

"I have found people here trying to use India as an excuse to drive a wedge between the United States and Great Britain," said tall, scholarly Sir Samuel E. Rungandhan, adviser to the Secretary of State for India in London.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

Speaking before the members of the Women's National Democratic Club at a luncheon meeting yesterday, he asserted: "It is most essential that there should be no misunderstanding between the United States and Great Britain, for it would affect the war effort."

Whereupon, Sir Samuel, who was president of the Indian Christian Association, Madras, 1938 to 1940, gave a lucid account of the "Political Situation in India" in language that rivaled the beauty of prose poetry.

"If the people of India really were united in their desire for complete independence, Great Britain couldn't resist those demands for one day," said Sir Samuel, who went on to explain that the diverse population of the country itself is not in accord on the question.

For example, he pointed out that the four million inhabitants are divided by religious, cultural, racial and traditional differences, with religion holding the trump card. He cited the 200 million Hindus and 95 million Moslems, bringing about a great cleavage because of religious differences. In addition, there are the 50 million so called depressed or untouchables. Then there are other minority groups. The Hindu social system keeps the last named group entirely outside the social and economic pale.

"Make no mistake," warned Sir Samuel, "the depressed classes are gaining in power. Their leader is a graduate of Columbia University. Every Indian ultimately wants self-government, but the depressed classes want to be assured they will have an opportunity to improve their position, and not be dominated by the Hindus or other majority groups."

Gist of his opinion on the matter is that the Indian problem is not a question between Indians and Great Britain, but between parties in India itself. Sir Samuel said that British policy toward India, while clouded with several dark periods in the past, had been increasingly liberal in the past 30 years, though admitting that granting of concessions often lagged between demands. He attributed this, not to Great Britain's reluctance to give India greater self-governing power, but to the characteristics of the people and country—which he termed conservative and cautious.

"In fact, the provinces of India now have as much self-government as each or any of your 48 States," explained Sir Samuel. "And the main British control is from the central part of India."

Referring to the Moslem Party, he declared that is going stronger every day. He pointed out that the Moslems provide 45 per cent of the two million Indian army.

As for Gandhi, he said that as a great national leader he held much admiration for him, but that Gandhi had used his influence with the National Congress Party, which controls the press, to reject Sir Stafford Cripps' proposal of complete independence when the United Nations are victorious.

"As you know," he said, "Gandhi is the world's greatest pacifist. His doctrine of nonviolence is more important to him than India's independence. By accepting the offer Gandhi thought it would mean India's full cooperation in the war. He believed that an independent India could negotiate with Japan. But his attitude is spiritual and moral sabotage."

Sir Samuel said that Sir Stafford's proposal failed mostly for psychological reasons.

"They were made at a most inopportune time," he explained. "It came at a time when Great Britain's prestige was at its lowest ebb. Remember, in the period from December 7, 1941 (Pearl Harbor), to March, 1942, Japan was winning. The Indian leaders thought Japan would win and reasoned, 'Why should we dicker with England when soon we will be negotiating with Japan?'"

Lady Rungandhan, wife of the speaker, who is a great educational and social welfare leader in India, was introduced to the club members. Like Sir Samuel, she, too, is a Christian.

Other honored guests included Mrs. Curtis Shears, president, who presided; Mrs. John Graham, Mrs. James Souby, Mrs. Allen Phillips and Mrs. Edward Gumaer of Hollywood, Calif., and Mrs. Josiah W. Bailey, wife of Senator Bailey. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Phillips.

Edith Wright Is Engaged to H. Bundy, Jr.

Mrs. J. Butler Wright announces the engagement of her daughter, Edith, to Lieut. Harvey H. Bundy, jr., U. S. A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey H. Bundy, of Boston and Washington. The prospective bridegroom's father is now serving as special assistant to the Secretary of War.

Miss Wright is the daughter of the late J. Butler Wright, former American Ambassador to Cuba. She was graduated from the Fermata School in 1939 and was presented to society in Washington the following autumn. She is a member of the Junior League.

The bride-to-be has traveled widely as the daughter of a career diplomat. The late Mr. Wright was Minister to Hungary and Minister to Czecho-Slovakia and Uruguay in the course of his career and also served at American Embassies and Legations at London, Rio de Janeiro, Honduras, Russia, and was on duty at the State Department during several periods. Miss Wright's mother is the former Miss Harriet Southerland, daughter of the late Rear Admiral and Mrs. William N. Southerland, and made her debut in the Capital. Miss Wright's sister, the former Miss Mary Wright was married a few months ago to Edward Tudor Lampson.

Lieutenant Bundy is an alumnus of Groton School, Yale University in the class of 1938 and was graduated from Harvard Business School. His brother, William Bundy, recently wed Miss Mary Acheson, daughter of the Assistant Secretray of State and Mrs. Dean Acheson.

Just, attorney, lands division, Department of Justice and vice chairman of the committee on arrangements, and Rear Admiral and Mrs. William W. Smith.

The Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Wei, will speak at the luncheon, and also making an address will be Lieut. Gen. Gordon Nevil Macready, commander of the British Army Staff in Washington and representative of the British Army of the Combined Chiefs of Staff.

A service flag in honor of the association's many members in the armed forces will be presented by David S. Davison, attorney, Civil Service Commission, who is secretary of the association.

Mrs. Phronsie Marsh Filmer Is Bride of Erik S. Monberg

Several Weddings Take Place in City And Suburbs Over Easter Weekend

The marriage of Mrs. Phronsie Marsh Filmer to Erick S. Monberg on Easter Sunday was one of many such ceremonies taking place that day in Washington and the suburbs.

Officiating at the 4 o'clock ceremony in the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church was the Rev. Fred S. Bushmeyer. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Addison P. Marsh and the late Mr. Marsh of Lynchburg, Va. Mr. Monberg is the youngest son of Neils Christian Monberg, counselor and secretary of state in the cabinet of King Christian X of Denmark.

The bride wore a suit of navy blue with matching accessories and had as her only attendant Dr. Ruth Bacon of the State Department.

Following the ceremony a dinner took place at the Washington Hotel and the couple left later for New York where they will make their home. The bride is a graduate of Mary Washington College and Columbia University. She has done further study at the Institute of International Relations at Geneva, Switzerland, and at New York University.

Compton—Hampton

Upon their return from a wedding trip, Eugene John Compton and his bride, the former Miss Carol Hampton, will make their home in Alexandria.

Their marriage took place on Sunday in the Epiphany Church at 10 o'clock, with the Rev. Hunter M. Lewis officiating. The bride is the daughter of the late Mrs. Thomas Oliver Bound of Cincinnati and Raleigh, N. C.

The bride was attired in her mother's wedding gown of sheer crepe over satin and trimmed with Chantilly lace. Her floor-length tulle veil was held with a coronet of braided tulle and orange bloosoms and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and white orchids. Her sister, Mrs. Eleanor Hampton Bound, was matron of honor and wore a gown of peach satin with matching headpiece and carried a bouquet of deep purple tulips. Miss Hampton Bound, Miss Eleanor Lynn and Miss Elaine Compton, the bridesmaids, wore moire faille taffeta and carried lavender tulips. Joseph Grisby served as best man.

A reception followed at the Mayflower Hotel. The bride is a graduate of the Cincinnati Kindergarten Training School and from the Institute of Religious Science of Los Angeles. Mr. Compton received his degree at the University of Colorado and is now an engineer in the Bureau of Ships of the Navy Department.

Warren—Lamb

Of interest here was the marriage on Saturday in Dayton, Ohio, of Miss Barbara Sue Lamb to Lieut. Myron W. Warren, both former residents of Washington.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Susan Lamb of Regina, Canada, and has been connected with the Union of South Africa Supply Mission here. Lieutenant Warren was with the Department of Agriculture before entering the Army.

Officiating at the 7:30 service was the Rev. Phillip Porter. The bride wore a pastel blue wool suit with cherry red accessories and carried dark red roses. Miss Rita Kehoe, the maid of honor, was attired in a light beige wool suit and carried talisman roses. Serving as best man was Lieut. John H. Hannock. The couple will make their home in Dayton for the time being.

Jobson—Evans

Maj. and Mrs. N. C. Evans of Washington and Louisville announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Betty Jane Evans, to Lieut. Walter P. Jobson.

The marriage took place on April 22 in the post chapel at the Blackland Army Flying School in Waco, Tex. The bride attended the University of Louisville and is a member of Chi Omega Sorority. Lieutenant Jobson was graduated from Carnegie Institute and is a member of Delta Tau Delta Fraternity. He recently received his wings as a bomber pilot and will be stationed at Fort Worth, Tex.

3 More Diplomatic Residences To Be Open to Public on May 15

Yugoslavia and Greek Embassies To Be Shown on Benefit Tour

Three more diplomatic residences have just been added to the list of beautiful homes near Kalorama and Sheridan Circles which will be open from 2 to 6 p. m. for the May 15 tour benefiting the Washington Home for Incurables.

The Embassy of Yugoslavia at 2221 R Street will be open to the public that afternoon, as will the Greek Embassy at 2221 Massachusetts Avenue, and the Legation of Luxembourg at 2200 Massachusetts Avenue. The royal rulers of Yugoslavia, Greece and Luxembourg are well known and admired in Washington where, since the war, many local residents have worked untiringly to bring help and comfort to the people of their invaded countries.

At the Yugoslav Embassy the porcelains collected by the Ambassador and Mme. Fotitch are particularly interesting as is the portrait of the young King of Yugoslavia which was painted during his visit to the United States last June. At the Greek Embassy the Ambassador and Mme. Diamantopoulos have a rare collection of books, some with handpainted illustrations, as well as a fine collection of fruniture and Aubusson carpets. The Luxemburg Legation is considered one of the finest houses in Washington and Mme. Le Gallais has furnished it with the most charming taste.

Other houses which have been added to those already announced for the tour are the home of Mrs. Charles Stanley White at 2310 Kalorama Road where Mrs. White's fine collection of Waterford glass will be on display; the house of Mrs. Edwin B. Parker at 2001 Twenty-fourth Street with its interesting, authentic Oriental room looking out on a beautiful formal garden, and the very lovely and livable home of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Cabot at 2339 S Street, furnished with choice antiques collected during Mr. Cabot's tours of duty with the State Department Foreign Service.

Completing the tour are the houses previously announced. Mrs. George Maurice Morris' original, Colonial house brought down from New England piece by piece and set up under the direction of the architect who was in charge of the restoration of Colonial Williamsburg, will be the setting for the tea which will give patrons of the tour a refreshing pause and an opportunity to examine the sale articles made by the patients of the Home for Incurables. The Turkish Embassy and the Egyption Legation will be graciously opened for the tour as previously announced, as will also the home of the Undersecretary of Commerce and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor at 1743 Twenty-second Street.

Tickets will be on sale at the doors of all the houses for $2 plus tax and will include tea and admission to all ten houses of the tour.

The John S. Melbys Are Entertained At Dinner Party

Honoring John S. Melby, who is in charge of the Ecuadorean desk at the State Department, the staff of the Ecuador Embassy entertained at a luncheon at the Mayflower on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Melby were also guests of honor at a dinner given Saturday evening by the Commercial Counselor of the Ecuador Embassy and Mme. Emelio E. Maulme.

On Thursday evening the Commercial Counselor and Mme. Mualme entertained at a cocktail party for Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Yoder. Mrs. Yoder is a native of Ecuador and she and her American husband have made their home in that country for the past several years.

Katharine Bard Makes Debut on Capital Stage

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Ralph Bard had particular interest in the premiere of "The Home Front" at the National Theater last night. Their daughter, Miss Katharine Bard, is playing one of the principal roles.

In the audience sprinkled with prominent "names" were Representative Clare Boothe Luce, Senator James J. Davis, Frank Mason, special assistant to the Secretary of the Navy, James M. Landis, director of Civilian Defense, Gen. Irving Philipson, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hopkins.

Tomorrow night the Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Bard will see the play again, and also planning to attend that evening are Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Navy Col. Frank Knox and Donald Nelson.

Cynthia Biggs Is Bride of R. B. Garlock

Upon their return from a brief wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Roger B. Garlock will be at home at 2634 Tunlaw Road. They were married last evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church with the Rev. J. Hillman Hollister officiating.

The bride, the former Miss Cynthia Mary Biggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Biggs, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of ivory satin made along princess lines with net yoke and court train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place with a coronet trimmed with seed pearls. Her bouquet was of white roses and showers of freesia, centered with an orchid. She had no attendants.

William Hicks of Long Island was best man. Ushers were Lieut. Col. Howard M. Biggs, U. S. A., John Biggs, jr., Kenneth Briesch, and Lieut. John S. Wright, U. S. N. R. A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony.

June Theresa King Is Bride Of William Paul Cowles

Ceremony Takes Place in Church With Reception Following at Home

Miss June Theresa King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Henri King, was an Easter Monday bride, her marriage to William Paul Cowles, taking place in St. Gabriel's Church yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Burton G. Cowles. The Rev. William J. Sweeney officiated and Mr. King gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride's gown was of white satin made with a hoop skirt and long sweeping train. The bodice had a high neckyoke of sugar mist embroidered in seed pearls and her coronet which held her long veil of illusion was of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of gardenias centered with a white orchid.

Miss Mary Harrell was the maid of honor and Miss Margaret Gannon the bridesmaid. Their gowns were of eighteenth century style in white mousseline de soie with high necklines, elbow length ruffled sleeves and bouffant skirts accented with bands of lace insertion. They wore white ostrich tips in their hair from which fell short circular veils.

Chief Petty Officer Vincent Meenahan was best man and the ushers were John P. Murray and Ensign William Downing. After a reception at the bride's home the couple left for the South on their wedding trip and will return to Washington to make their home. The bride attended George Washington University and the bridegroom studied at St. John's College.

Miss Miriam Cuthbert Weds Local Attorney

The marriage of Miss Miriam Cuthbert of Los Angeles, Calif., to Charles C. Collins of Washington, took place on April 20 in Greenwich, Conn.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Cuthbert of Los Angeles, and Mr. Collins is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis F. Collins.

WAVE Officer Married to Navy Man

Recent regulations of the Navy Department allow the Navy's enlisted WAVES and WAVE officers to don traditional white satin and orange blossoms for their all-important wedding day. So, wearing an ivory satin bridal gown with scalloped details, a string of pearls and a fingertip veil of illusion, Ensign Rosa Miller Hobbs, U. S. N. R., went to the altar yesterday afternoon at 5:30 in the Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral to wed Lieut. (j. g.) John Howard Joyce, U. S. Navy Air Corps. The Rev. Peter Marshall and the Canon W. Curtis Draper officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Representative Samuel Francis Hobbs of Alabama's Fourth District, carried a bouquet of Easter lilies. The maid of honor, Ensign Charlotte Stevenson, was uniformed as were Ensign Alice Gluyas and Miss Mary Hill, who served as bridesmaids and also as ushers.

Ensign Truman Hobbs of New Orleans, brother of the bride, was best man. A reception at the Congressional Club followed the ceremony.

After the reception the couple left immediately for New Orleans, where they are both stationed.

The bride, a daughter of Representative and Mrs. Hobbs, is a graduate of Randolph-Macon Woman's College and was graduated from the first class of WAVE officer candidates to attend Smith College in the fall of 1942.

Lieutenant Joyce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Joyce of Ashland, Wis. He attended the engineering school at the University of Wisconsin. He received his aviation training in Miami and Jacksonville, Fla., and has been assigned to duty as flight instructor in California.

Art Exhibit In New York To Be Benefit

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, April 26.—Distinguished personalities of the New York scene in the nineties and of the present day, as painted by prominent artists of each era, will be shown at a loan exhibition called "Portraits of Yesterday and Today," in the Grand Central Galleries, at the Hotel Gotham, from May 4 to 16, inclusive, for the benefit of the American Red Cross.

Mrs. Frank Crowninshield is honorary chairman and Charles R. Henschel, chairman of an art committee now gathering the portraits from family collections all over the country.

After several months of research for portraits of famous figures of the nineties, the art committee announces a partial list of these already obtained for exhibition through the cooperation of families of descendants. Particular interest surrounds a portrait of Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Phelps Stokes in bicycle costume, by Sargent; a Madrazzo of a Gerry dance, showing a ballroom scene in the nineties; a family group centered around Mrs. August Belmont and an Astor conversation piece, showing Mr. and Mrs. William Astor and their children (Mrs. M. Orme Wilson, the only one of tthe children still living; Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mrs. James J. Van Alen and Col. John Jacob Astor), and a portrait of Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry.

Many members of society have made reservations for the preview of the exhibition, which will be opened at 9 p. m. on May 4. Advance dinner parties will be given at the Gotham.

Aviation Enthusiasts Attend Air-Line Birthday Dinner

Members of Congressional Set Among Guests; C. Bedell Monro Is Speaker

A formidable assemblage of aviation-minded Americans were guests of the National Aeronautic Association when that body saluted the 18th anniversary of Pennsylvania-Central Airlines at an informal, war-rationed dinner held last night at the Hotel Carlton.

Gill Robb Wilson, president of the N. A. A., presided and paid tribute to P.-C. A.'s pioneer effort in the field of "short haul" air transportation. C. Bedell Monro, president of the airline, discussed important aspects of the needs of postwar aviation.

Mr. Monro is regarded as the "father" of aerial short haul, a policy that has brought cities closer together and has brought about a community of interests between neighboring cities. The soundness of this policy has been proven, Mr. Wilson states, in P.-C. A.'s growth from a small operation of 127 miles to the fifth largest of America's airlines.

Among those who attended the dinner were Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Arthur Vandenberg, Senator E. V. Robertson, Senator Styles Bridges, Senator Rufus Holman, Senator Ralph O. Brewster, Senator James J. Davis, Senator Dennis Chavez, Senator Allen J. Ellender, Senator James Mead, Senator Harry S. Truman, Senator William Langer, Senator E. H. Moore, Senator James E. Murray, Senator Pat McCarran, Senator D. Worth Clark, Senator James G. Scrugham, Senator Francis Maloney and Senator Joseph Guffey.

Other guests included L. Welch Pogue, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board; former Senator and CAB member, John Lee; former Assistant Postmaster General, Ambrose O'Connell; former Senator Matthew M. Neeley, now Governor of West Virginia; William P. McCracken, ICC Commissioner Col. Monro Johnson, Robert V. Fleming, president of Riggs National Bank, and P.-C. A. director; District Commissioners Guy Mason and Brig. Gen. Charles W. Kutz; Thomas Beck, Col. R. W. Ireland, Mayor Cornelius Scally of Pittsburgh; John L. Bohn, acting Mayor of Milwaukee; A. B. Schwarzkopf, president of Norfolk (Va.) Chamber of Commerce; CAB member, Harlee Branch, and many others.

Miss Kramer Wed

Returned to Washington after a brief wedding trip are Mr. and Mrs. William E. Green, whose marriage took place recently in the parlor of the National Memorial Baptist Church.

The bride is the former Miss Arline N. Kramer. She was attired in a white frock and a corsage of red roses.

Marie Virginia Beck Is Wed To Joseph Berry Oliver, Jr.

Ceremony Takes Place in Sacred Heart Church, Where Parents of Bride Were Married

The Sacred Heart Church of La Plata, Md., was the scene of a morning wedding yesterday when Miss Marie Virginia Beck of Washington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Beck, jr., of Welcome, Md., became the bride of Joseph Berry Oliver, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Oliver of Port Tobacco, Md. The Rev. J. C. Brown, S. J., officiated at the 11 o'clock ceremony and nuptial mass.

MRS. J. B. OLIVER, Jr.

The ceremony took place in the same church in which the bride's parents were married and the altar boys who served the nuptial mass were Russell and John Beck, brothers of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white fachiones with a bodice of faille and a full skirt of sugar mist with a long train. Her veil of illusion was held to her hair by a tiara of rosebuds and she carried a bouquet of rosebuds with a shower of orange blossoms.

Miss Elizabeth Vass of Washington was the maid of honor and only attendant and Joseph Beck, brother of the bride, was the best man.

When the couple left for their wedding trip the bride was wearing a tweed suit with navy and white accessories. They will make their home at Waldorf, Md.

The bride was graduated from Sacred Heart in Washington.

John A. Gibson, Jr. Weds Virginian In Church Rites

On a brief wedding trip are Lieut. John Aldrich Gibson, jr., and his bride, the former Miss Mary Nelson Hiden, who were married Saturday afternoon at St. James' Episcopal Church in Leesburg, Pa. The Rev. J. Manley Cobb and the Rev. G. Peyton Craighill officiated.

The bride, daughter of Dr. M. B. Hiden of Warrenton, Va., and the late Mrs. Hiden, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of ivory faille, fashioned with a tight bodice and rosepoint lace yoke. Her fingertip veil was attached to a lace cap and her bouquet was of white orchids. Her only attendant was the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. G. Winthrop Sands of New York.

Lieut. Gibson, son of Dr. and Mrs. John A. Gibson of Leesburg, has as his best man Lieut. E. A. Miller, jr., U. S. N. A. C., of Anacostia. A reception at the home of the bridegroom's parents followed the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of National Cathedral School and the College of William and Mary. Lieutenant Gibson is a graduate of Hampden-Sydney and was recently graduated from the Naval Air Corps School at Corpus Christi, Tex. He is now stationed at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Miss Herfurth Is Bride of W. Lee O'Leary

At an evening ceremony at the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church yesterday, Miss Helen Herfurth, daughter of Mrs. Louise F. Herfurth of 3422 Garfield Street, Washington, became the the bride of William Lee O'Leary, son of Mrs. Charles O'Leary and the late Commander O'Leary of Harrisburg, Pa., and Washington. The Rev. J. Hillman Hollister officiated at the 8:30 ceremony.

Given in marriage by Dr. Charles A. Schutz, the bride was gowned in traditional white, fashioned with a bodice and sleeves of lace and a skirt and long train of satin. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held to her hair by a coronet of lace, and she carried a sheaf of calla lilies.

Patrici Pollard, the flower girl was in pink satin with a matching crown. George W. Frid was the best man.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's mother, who was gowned in powder blue lace and chiffon for the occasion. The mother of the bridegroom wore orchid chiffon.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. A. L. Dunham and Mrs. Arthur A. Topping.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Allegra Fuller from New York City, and Mrs. Anne Dunham from East Orange, N. J.

The bride attended Wilson Teachers College, took special courses at George Washington University, Maryland University and Columbia University and teaches aviation in the Washington High Schools.

The bridegroom, descended from a long line of Navy men, is the brother of Commander Duke O'Leary.

College Girls Take Part in Plays

Maritime Day To Be Observed

President Roosevelt, in a proclamation which praised Merchant Marine seamen for maintaining overseas shipments, called upon the Nation yesterday to observe May 22 as National Maritime Day through the display of the Flag.

IN MEMORIAM

FARMER, FLORRIE B.—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, FLORRIE B. FARMER, who entered into eternal rest one year ago today, April 27, 1942.

Dear one, though you've been called away,
My thoughts are with you every day.
The Lord will someday call me too,
And our lives will then begin anew.

DEVOTED HUSBAND.

Just a year ago today,
Our dear Mother was called away.
We loved her dearly, our very own.
But our Father in Heaven took her home.

Rest peacefully, Mother dear,
Your task is ended and God is near.
We cannot forget you, your help and your love,
And we'll be happy again, when united above.

LOVING CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

Transit Firms Here Held War Industries

. . . "the essentiality to the defense effort of the services rendered by the Capital Transit Co. can scarcely be disputed. Without transportation of Government war workers to and from their jobs, the entire defense program would be seriously hampered. This has become especially true since the rationing of tires and gasoline."

SOME TIME LATER, THE HACK HALTS BEFORE A SHADOWED INN....
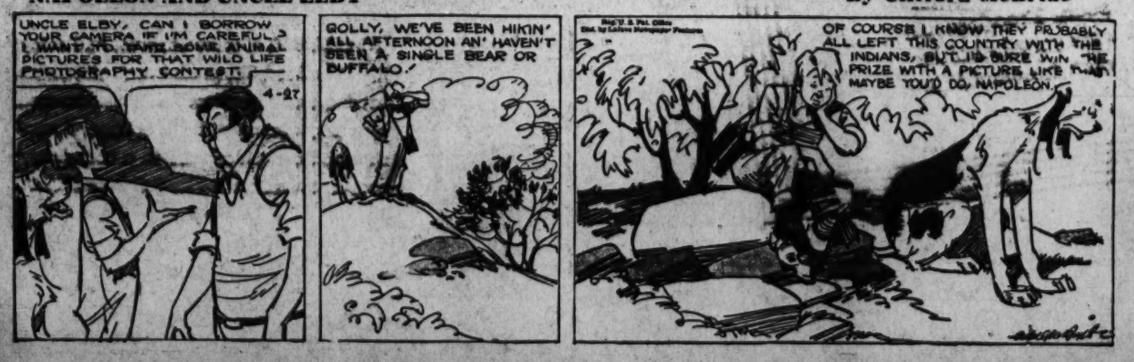
AND NOW TO SCRUTINIZE HIS NEXT MOVE!
WALKING THRU A CROWDED, SMOKE-FILLED ROOM, THE ODD LITTLE MAN WORDLESSLY MOUNTS A STAIRWAY AT ITS REAR....
ENTERING A LARGE ROOM AT THE TOP OF THE STAIRS, HE SEATS HIMSELF, STARES BLANDLY AT A HUGE PAINTING ON THE WALL, THEN SMILES WITH SECRET SATISFACTION AS HE REACHES FOR A BUTTON CONCEALED ON A CORNER OF THE TABLE....

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride



UNCLE ELBY, CAN I BORROW YOUR CAMERA IF I'M CAREFUL? I WANT TO TAKE SOME ANIMAL PICTURES FOR THAT WILD LIFE PHOTOGRAPHY CONTEST!

GOLLY, WE'VE BEEN HIKIN' ALL AFTERNOON AN' HAVEN'T SEEN A SINGLE BEAR OR BUFFALO!
OF COURSE I KNOW THEY PROBABLY ALL LEFT THIS COUNTRY WITH THE INDIANS, BUT IS SURE WIN THE PRIZE WITH A PICTURE LIKE THAT! MAYBE YOU'D DO, NAPOLEON!

You Are Invited

TO THE WORLD PREMIERE OF

WAR BOND SHOW

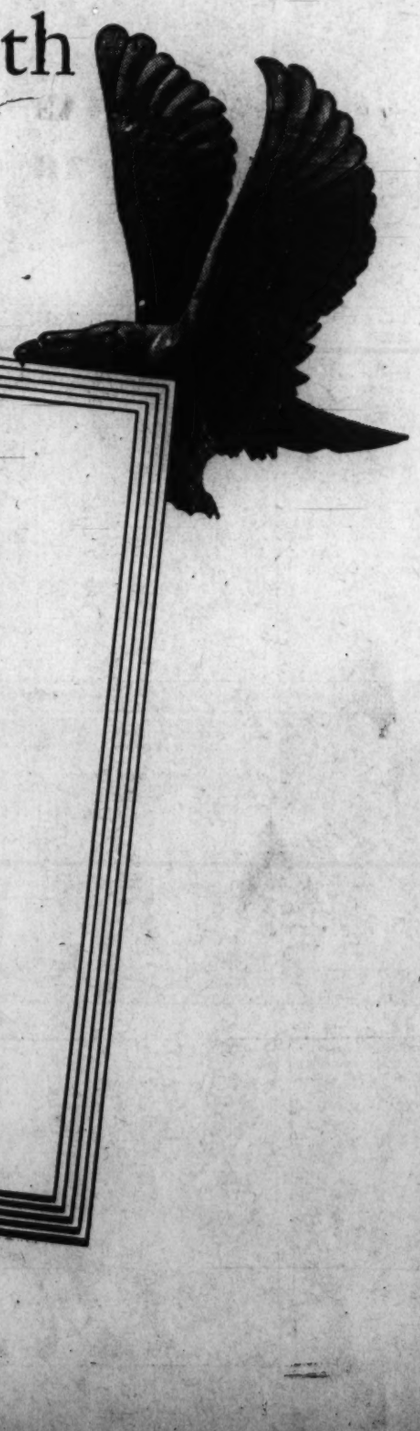
THE FOUR FREEDOMS

WHICH ARE SHOWN TO THE AMERICAN PUBLIC FOR THE FIRST TIME, AS PART OF A MAGNIFICENT EXHIBITION OF SATURDAY EVENING POST ART

AT THE HECHT CO.

TUESDAY, APRIL 27th

and continuing through May 8



YOU ARE INVITED TO MEET

Norman Rockwell

Saturday Evening Post Cover Artist, who made of President Roosevelt's "four essential freedoms" four great paintings of—and for—Americans.

Tuesday, 11 to 12, and 2 to 3 o'Clock
On the Fourth Floor of The Hecht Co.

With the sure perception of a great artist, Norman Rockwell couched The Four Freedoms in American idiom as he selected for his subjects real people and painted them faithfully to the last wrinkle, callus, crow's foot and shoulder stoop. They have shared America's fun and America's sorrow. And now they touch the tenderest emotions of other Americans at war. As they depict Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Worship, Freedom from Want and Freedom from Fear every beholder realizes these precepts are worth defending from despots who would destroy them.

A SET OF THE FOUR FREEDOMS printed in full color reproductions will be given to all War Bond purchasers.

GET A COMMEMORATIVE COVER . . . Norman Rockwell's "Freedom of Speech" was chosen by the United States Treasury Department to illustrate the commemorative covers for War Bonds and War Stamps, procurable only during the War Bond Show at The Hecht Co.

NORMAN ROCKWELL'S lovable "Willie Gillis" pictures will be among the hundreds of original Saturday Evening Post art which will delight visitors daily. Other illustrations, cartoons, seascapes, the Mead Schaeffer "Men at War" series, and even autographed manuscripts from famous authors will be displayed.

ORIGINAL ART GIVEN AWAY! 141 of these original Post drawings and paintings and manuscripts will be given to buyers of War Bonds at the conclusion of the show. Register as you buy your bonds. Hostesses at the exhibit will explain. This is a thrilling opportunity that may not come to you again.

THE FREEDOM SCROLL is a name-document, signed by every-day Americans who love their country and prove it by buying bonds to deliver her Four Freedoms from all danger. Write your name there. Many illustrious ones in modern history-making will be there, too. When the War Bond Show is over it will be presented personally to President Roosevelt.

UNIFORMS OF TWO WORLD WARS have been collected and copied in miniature by Helen Virginia Meyer, costume historian, and authenticated by the Army and Navy. There are 64, each fascinating in minute detail. These educational windows, are but four of 24 windows which will electrify wartime Washingtonians.

WASHINGTON STUDENTS in all schools and colleges are urged to attend the War Bond Show, especially if they plan to enter the Four Freedoms Essay Project co-sponsored by the United States Treasury Department and the Saturday Evening Post. Rules have been mailed directly to the schools.

NO CHARGE, of course, to enter and enjoy the War Bond Show, an event with entertaining and educational exhibits arranged by our government, by a national magazine and a popular store in a completely cooperative effort to . . . Sell War Bonds!
